Bayonets Break Plane Strike, Pickets Banned; Big Aluminum Plant Closed by C. I. O. Walkout; U. S. Tells Defense Labor to Work or Be Drafted

16 Arrested, 30 Hurt; Jackson Puts Blame on Reds

Bayonet-wielding troops, under orders of their commander-in-chief, President Roosevelt, yesterday took over the strike-bound North American Aviation Co. plant at Inglewood, Calif., and announced several hours later that "the strike is broken."

When C. I. O. pickets later started a fight with workers, troops placed 16 of the strikers under military arrest and banned picketing.

The President was informed that virtually normal production of warplanes for the Government will be attained today.

Attorney General Jackson accused leaders of the strike of following "the Communist Party line," and said the situation at the plant "more nearly resembles an insurrection than a labor strike."

But another defense strike broke out, in the Cleveland plant of the Aluminum Co. of America, where C. I. O. die casters walked out while their grievances were being negotiated by the National Defense Mediation Board, as was the case in the North American strike.

Coal Miners and Operators Accept Terms

The House joined the move to curtail defense-crippling walkouts by writing into the Army supply bill provisions denying compensation to either employes or employers who fail after ten days to comply with recommendations of the Mediation Board, and refusing future employment to strikers who picket arms plants after the board has asked them to return to work.

Brig. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, acting Selective Service director, wired all local draft boards to reclassify strikers who have been deferred because of their employment in essential defense jobs. The "work or face the draft" order would make such registered defense strikers eligible for immediate induction into the Army.

A "bright spot" in the labor situation, however, was announcement by William H. Davis, vice chairman of the Mediation Board, that Southern and Northern soft coal operators and the United Mine Workers all had accepted the board's recommendations to avert a strike.

Lumberworkers' delegates applauded the action of their president, O. M. Orton, who had denounced the Mediation Board and refused to call off the strike of some 20,000 Northwest lumber workers in the Northwest. Some 500 delegates adopted a resolution commending Orton's "firm and courageous stand in Washington under fire of criticism from the Mediation Board, newshawks, radio and Government officials."

Tugboat Officers Strike in Baltimore

President Roosevelt flatly asked Harvey W. Brown, A. F. L. machinists president, to bring about an end to the strike against 11 shipbuilding plants in the San Francisco area. Brown immediately called a meeting Thursday of the union's executive council to take action on the request.

A strike of tugboat officers brought towing to a virtual standstill in Baltimore harbor and was said to be slowing the movement of goods for Britain and the United States Army.

Senators took preparatory steps to adopt today the Connally proposal authorizing the Government to take over any strike-bound defense plant, thereby supporting the President's action in the North American Aviation case.

Still another strike threat reached the Mediation Board when Secretary Perkins certified to it the dispute of 4,600 employes at seven plants of the Bohn Aluminum & Brass Corporation at Detroit. The strike is set for today but the board will ask that it be deferred pending negotiations.

Ancient Capital in Peril

Allied Invaders of Syria Reported at Damascus' Gates

Nazis Withdrawing Their Small Forces, Ankara Sources Say

By C. L. Sulzberger
Copyright by New York Times

Ankara, June 9.—British troops, supported by Imperial and Free French forces are now pushing into Syria and Lebanon from six directions, supported by aircraft and naval bombardments along the Mediterranean shore.

[British and Free French armored divisions were reported to have thrust a spearhead into the southern outskirts of Beirut and to be approaching the gates of Damascus, an International News Service dispatch from Cairo said.]

The Allies have already occupied a coastal strip south of Beirut, including the ancient city of Tyre, but the French claim to have severely damaged two British naval units north of that port. German sources assert that the British attempted a landing from the sea somewhere in the vicinity of Sidon and that it was repulsed with the capture of 1,500 prisoners.

Litani River Crossed

The British claim to have crossed the Litani River and to have attained the line Merdjayoun, Shiek Mesking, Kuneitra and Deraa. The French contend they counterattacked and drove Allied cavalry and tank units back across the Litani.

The British and Free French have also taken much of the Jebel Ed Druz region, the railway junction of Deraa and the village of Merdjayoun. They are now believed to be considerably north of these two points and there are unconfirmed reports that the Druz tribesmen have risen in their aid. Persistent rumors are circulating here that Damascus has been taken, but this is doubted. However, it is believed the British motorized forces advancing from Trans-Jordan are almost at the gates of that cultural capital of the North Arab world.

No Heavy Fighting

Beirut Royal Air Force bombed twice today and set ablaze the oil tank of the National Petroleum Co. in Beirut Harbor. The airports of Rayak, Mezzze and Aleppo have been bombed again.

The French claim to have destroyed four British aircraft while losing two of their own. Radio Beirut says the French forces are counterattacking all along the lines but, as far as can be ascertained

Wrecked Bomber Reported Found In Wyoming

Salt Lake City, Utah, June 9 (INS).—An unconfirmed report received at Salt Lake City today stated that the wreckage of an Army B-18 bomber had been found in the mountains between Lyman and Robertson, Wyo.

The report said the wreckage was found by one of several ground crews sent to comb the area for a missing plane, and added it was believed the six men thought to be aboard had been killed. No signs of life were seen about the wreckage, the report said.

Aboard the missing craft were Capt. D. N. Motherwell, pilot, commandant of the Twelfth Reconnaissance Squadron, Boise, Idaho; Lieuts. T. F. Holsteen, J. V. Gallagher, and L. K. Harvey, and Staff Sergts. D. E. Hawley and T. McGuran.

D. C. to Register Home Guard Today

Residents of the District and surrounding areas may volunteer their services for defense of the Capital by registering at District public schools today, tomorrow or Thursday.

Registration will be open in 46 public school buildings from 3:30 to 8:30 p. m. on those three days. A force of 500 trained registrars will accept applications.

A category of volunteer firefighters has been added to the list of services citizens can perform, it was announced yesterday.

U. S. Ship Sunk, Report to Navy Blames Nazis

Eleven of 46 Aboard Found in Lifeboat; Went Down May 21

By the Associated Press

Rio de Janeiro, June 9.—The 4,999-ton United States merchant ship Robin Moor, carrying 8 passengers and a crew of 38, was sunk south of the Cape Verde Islands in the Atlantic about midway between Brazil and West Africa on May 21, it was reported here today.

Twenty-seven crewmen and the passengers are missing.

The Brazilian steamship Osorio, which wirelessed that she had picked up 11 members of the crew, advised that she still was searching for three of the Robin Moor's lifeboats in which other victims presumably took to the sea.

The passengers included three women and a child. The Osorio gave no information as to the cause of the Robin Moor's disaster.

A report that the Robin Moor was torpedoed and sunk "by a German submarine" was received by the navy in Washington yesterday via commercial communication channels.

Officials stressed that the report, the origin of which was credited to the Brazilian steamer Osorio, had not been confirmed officially.

The message, intercepted by R. C. A. communications, was relayed from the Brazilian vessel to

Russia Still Aids China, Despite Neutrality Pact With Japan

Editor's Note

Ernest Hemingway, who needs no introduction to American readers, went to China in January. He went to see how Chiang Kai-shek's war against Japan was going; how much truth there is in reports that the Chinese are menaced by civil war with the Communists; what would be the effect of the then imminent Russo-Japanese pact; and, more important, the status of our own position in the Orient.

He was no casual observer. He spent a month with a Kuomintang army at the front; he visited the generalissimo at Chungking; he got his information everywhere the hard way—first hand.

Soviet Advisers Stay At Posts and Supplies And Arms Trickle in

Hong Kong.—On the day the Japanese-Soviet neutrality pact was signed in Moscow, Dr. H. H. Kung, who is both Prime Minister and Minister of Finance for his brother-in-law, Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek, was dining with Soviet Ambassador Paniushkin in Chungking.

"We hear that a pact is going to be signed," the Chinese statesman said.

"What will be the effect of such a pact on Russian aid to China?"

"None," answered the Soviet ambassador.

"Will you withdraw any troops from the Manchukuo frontier?"

"We Will Reinforce"

"We will reinforce our divisions there," the Soviet ambassador said and the head of the Soviet military advisers in China, a lieutenant general, nodded agreement.

At the time that incident happened I did not care to write it because diplomats rarely impart bad news over the dinner table and it was possible that very different news might come out of Moscow. But since then I have heard directly from both Dr. Kung and Mme. Chiang Kai-shek that Russian aid is continuing to arrive and that no Soviet staff officers, aviation instructors, or military advisers have been withdrawn from the Generalissimo's army.

Proved Logical by Events

My wife and I had lunch with Mme. Chiang Kai-shek the day the pact was announced and during the conversation she said, "But how will we know whether they will really withdraw aid or not?"

"If they are going to withdraw aid—," I told her, remembering how it had happened in Spain, "—the first move will be to withdraw the military advisers, the instructors and the staff officers. As long as they stay on it means the aid will continue."

Last week a letter from Mme. Chiang Kai-shek contained these three paragraphs:

"I am fulfilling my promise to inform you of the generalissimo's reaction to the neutrality pact between the U. S. S. R. and Japan.

"The generalissimo declares that this pact will not have the slightest effect on China's determination to continue national resistance. We

Los Angeles, June 9. (U.P.)—Two Japanese—one described as a Commander in the Imperial Japanese Navy and the other as a former chauffeur of Charles Chaplin—were held in the county jail tonight under heavy bail charged with obtaining important United States Naval secrets.

A third man, Al D. Blake, who was described as an ex-sailor of the United States Navy, also was in custody, but unofficial reports indicated he was the man who lured the two Japanese into a trap through cooperation with the Naval Intelligence and the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

Welfare Chief to Seek Revision Of D. C. 5-Cent Milk Program

By Gerald G. Gross
Post Staff Writer

Drastic revision of Washington's 5-cent milk program for needy families is indicated by evidence presented yesterday to the District Nutrition Committee.

Early action to effect an improved system of distribution, eliminating present faults and making the nickel quarts available to a greater number of malnourished families, will be sought by Conrad Van Hyning, acting director of public welfare.

Van Hyning told the committee, meeting at the Y. M. C. A., he will formally request the Department of Agriculture to broaden eligibility rules and consider means of making the surplus milk more accessible. It is now sold only at 11 stations which are open from two to four hours daily.

Meantime, a response from the Department of Agriculture is still awaited to School Superintendent Frank W. Ballou's application of

House Votes Strike Curbs, Army 10 Billion

First Action to Put Teeth Into Findings By Mediation Board

The House yesterday passed a record - breaking $10,009,655,187 Army appropriation bill, after writing into the bill two far-reaching provisions designed to stop defense strikes.

Under the two antistrike amendments approved during a stormy six-hour session, defense workers who refuse to abide by the recommendation of the National Defense Mediation Board for as long as ten days or who picket a plant after the board has asked them to return to work would be denied any further employment on arms orders paid for under the bill.

First Such Action

Employers would likewise be required to comply with the recommendations of the Mediation Board or be denied any compensation under 1942 military appropriations.

It was the first legislative action taken to curb strikes and the first power voted to put "teeth" in the mediation board's findings.

Opponents contended the amendment amounted to "compulsory arbitration of labor disputes" and was a reversal of fundamental labor law, a charge that was not denied.

Vote Is 138 to 84

The anti-picketing amendment was presented by Representative Case (Republican), of South Dakota, and indorsed by Majority Leader McCormack. It would deny any of the funds appropriated in the bill to be paid to any arms plant worker who "assists in maintaining a picket line or otherwise seeks forcibly to prevent the return of workmen" after the mediation board has certified that a further stoppage of work "will critically im-

Arms Strikers Told to Work Or Face Draft

By John G. Norris
Post Staff Writer

In a virtual "work or fight" ultimatum to labor in defense plants, the Government yesterday ordered a Nation-wide draft reclassification designed to induct into the Army deferred arms workers who are out on strike.

Brig. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, acting Selective Service director, wired all local draft boards to "reconsider the classification of all registrants who have ceased to perform the jobs for which they were deferred, and who are, by such failure, impeding the national defense program."

Announcement of the action was made at a press conference called by Secretary of War Stimson, who left no doubt that it had been approved by President Roosevelt.

Gen. Hershey made no reference to the strike at the North American Aircraft plant, but the order was plainly intended to implement the prior action of the Government in

Army Treats Walkout Like Maneuver

By George Bookman
Post Staff Writer

The Army—at bayonet point—yesterday broke the North American Aviation Co. strike, arrested 16 strikers and banned picketing as Attorney General Robert H. Jackson accused C. I. O. leaders of the five-day-old plane plant tie-up of following "the Communist Party line."

In five hours of lightning action directed by President Roosevelt, Federal troops took full possession of the Inglewood, Calif., plant after at least 30 persons were injured in disorders, 11 requiring hospitalization; 16 strikers were taken to Fort MacArthur under military arrest and the strike was declared to be broken wide open."

The first day of open White House warfare against strikes in defense industries was over and, toward evening, President Roosevelt sent word to the press he was "delighted" at word that the strike

Senate to Vote Today on Connally Measure to Commandeer Struck Plants

Bill Receives Green Light From Leaders

By Robert C. Albright

Post Staff Writer

Administration leaders last night gave the "go ahead" signal to legislation authorizing the Government to take over any strike-bound defense plant.

Backstopping Army occupation yesterday of the North American Aviation Co. plant ordered by the President, the Connally amendment supplementing the President's powers will go before the Senate today.

House and Senate members overwhelmingly joined in commending the President's action. Administration modifications of the Connally plan were withdrawn. Leaders forecast adoption of the amendment as an indorsement of the Army's first move to keep defense plants going.

Following a conference with Senator Byrnes (Democrat), of South Carolina, acting Senate leaders, Senator Connally (Democrat), of Texas said his plan will be offered without change when the Senate calls up pending amendments to the Selective Service Act.

Strikes Called by Name

The amendment specifically empowers the President to take over any factory or plant where defense production "is hampered, delayed, impeded or stopped by existence of a strike or other labor disturbance or other cause."

Byrnes announced he would not press his own substitute which omits direct reference to strikes, but empowers the President to step in on any "existing or threatened failure" of defense production.

The existing Selective Service Act give the President such power only where the plant management refuses to cooperate.

Vehicle for the plan, long held in readiness by the Administration, will be an amendment to the Selective Service law authorizing the President to defer induction into the Army of registrants who have reached their twenty-eighth birthday without being called.

Coincident with the move, Senator Byrd (Democrat), of Virginia, announced he will ask the Senate to go on record condemning strikes in defense industries.

Byrd offered his resolution as a new title to the Connally plan. The Byrd motion resolves:

"That it is the sense of Congress that strikes in industries that affect the national defense effort are contrary to sound public policy and they are hereby condemned."

Senator Tydings (Democrat), of Maryland, meanwhile proposed that employes be required to present grievances to employers in writing, with the employer required to answer. Under Tydings' proposal, both complaint and answer would be made public. Failing of agreement, a board composed of labor, a representative of the employer and a representative of the public would decide the dispute.

Property Bill to Be Changed

Senate adoption of the Connally plant-seizure amendment, it was said, would not modify the Administration's plans for passage in amended form of the pending draft property bill. This measure, now before the Senate Military Affairs and Judiciary Committees, is expected to be changed to give the President specific powers to commandeer raw materials, German-owned patents and other facilities needed for defense.

An effort to call up the Connally plan and other draft act amendments in the Senate was blocked yesterday by Minority Leader McNary and Senator La Follette (Progressive), of Wisconsin. Unanimous consent was required to consider the legislation before today.

Plant Seizure Indorsed

Capitol reaction to the Army's swift occupation of the Inglewood, Calif., plant was sweepingly favorable, with only a smattering of criticism.

Congressional comment:

Senator Connally—"It was drastic action, but there seemed nothing else for the President to do."

Senator Bailey (Democrat), of North Carolina—"It is time for this Government to let the world know who is boss in the United States."

Senator Hill (Democrat), of Alabama, majority whip—"The President did absolutely right."

Chairman Vinson of the House Naval Affairs Committee—"I am thoroughly in accord with the President's policy of firmness in the labor situation."

Chairman May of the House Military Affairs Committee—"I think the President did the only thing left open for him to do."

Senator Norris (Independent), Nebraska—"I would take it over if I was President."

Senator Brooks (Republican), of Illinois—"It is a sad day for the Nation when it is so lacking in leadership that it must conduct defense industries at the point of a bayonet. It shows our unpreparedness."

Senator Smith (Democrat), of South Carolina—"It is high time they were doing it. The whole situation can be blamed on this Administration's failure to act sooner."

Sister Rose Estelle, principal of St. Paul's High School, announced yesterday that the annual scholarship awards were made to Victor Dukson, awarded a full four-year course, and Annette Gilbert, a two-year course, both of Nativity School. The other two-year scholarship was awarded Marguerite Ownes, of Central High School.

Strike Captain Treated for Wound

Army Breaks Plane Strike, Pickets Banned

was "virtually broken" and that production of vitally needed warplanes would be practically back to normal today.

While Jackson charged that the situation at the plant "more nearly resembles an insurrection than a labor strike," helmeted troops, after opening the plant, broke up an attempt to form a picket line on an adjacent main highway and arrested 16 men.

Intent on restoring the North American plant to its customary 10-planes-a-day schedule, Army officials warned that anyone interfering with resumption of operations at the plant would be arrested.

The strategic plant produces nearly 25 per cent of the country's war planes.

Regular Army troops—2600 strong—acting on direct orders of President Roosevelt had moved into the plane factory, which holds $200,000,000 in warplane orders for Great Britain and the United States.

Three Injured by Bayonet

Picket lines of striking C. I. O. United Automobile Workers had been dispersed, first by tear gas and then by the proddnig of Army bayonets. One striker was slashed in the thigh by a bayonet. The C. I. O. said two others were slightly injured by bayonets.

Shortly after noon, Pacific Coast Time, Lieut. Col. Charles E. Branshaw, named manager of the North American plant by the War Department, was able to report to the White House that upwards of 2,000 men, said to be half the normal day work force were back at work, and that "practically all" the full day shift was expected back on the job today.

Five tense but almost bloodless hours had elapsed between issuance of the President's order to the Army to take over the plant and the report to Washington that the strike was "broken."

It was made plain that President Roosevelt, acting under his proclamatio of an unlimited national emergency, had decided to "crack down" hard on strikes impeding defense production.

Order Issued at 10:40

At 10:40 o'clock yesterday morning he signed the executive order directing the Secretary of War to "take possession of and operate" the North American plant.

A comely brunette White House secretary, Ruthjane Rumelt, who received word of the President's action by telephone from his study, informed the press of the sensational move.

Secretary of War Stimson was directed to protect "all workers entering or leaving the plant, and in their own homes."

Declaring that "our country is in danger," the President in an accompanying statement said "I call upon the workers to return to their jobs."

He asserted that "their fundamental rights as free citizens will be protected by the Government and negotiations will be conducted through the process of collective bargaining to reach a settlement fair and reasonable to the workers and to the company."

The Chief Executive pointed out that the North American strike had occurred in the midst of consideration of the dispute by the National Defense Mediation Board. This, said Mr. Roosevelt, was a "violation of an agreement entered into by the bargaining representatives of the workers to continue full production during the course of the mediation."

The executive order, according to Presidential Secretary Stephen T. Early, had the approval of Sidney Hillman, associate OPM director and himself a C. I. O. vice president; of Attorney General Jackson and Undersecretary of War Robert P. Patterson. They were in the President's study when he signed the order, Early said.

The Cabinet had also approved issuance of the order, first of its kind since the defense emergency began, Early announced.

Only Answer, Says Hillman

Hillman, in a statement, called the strike "defiance" of all constituted authority by "an irresponsible group" which has "embarked upon a course of outrageous defiance" to all constituted authority. He said the President's executive order was the only answer.

"A small band of irresponsibles arrogantly appropriated the right to speak and act for North American workers—workers who are lawful, patriotic and law-abiding," Hillman added. "This small band shall not be permitted to flout and betray the best interests of labor throughout the country. Their action must be regarded as contrary to the welfare nd security of the Nation and of labor."

As the President was taking his all-out action to end the strike, there was frenzied, man-to-man fighting at the plant.

The Associated Press reported that in front of each of two entrance gates were 500 pickets and about 2,000 workers, many of them shouting they wanted to go back to work.

Tear Gas Breaks Lines

Mayor Fletcher Bowron asked one group, said the Associated Press, if they wanted to go back to work.

There was a shout: "We want to get back."

"You mean you want to be scabs," shouted Philip M. Connelly, California C. I. O. president.

Tear gas bombs thudded into the picket line, hurled from the top of one of the factory buildings. Several of the bombs were tossed back on company property, but others, exploding near the pickets, caused a retreat and broken lines, through which dashed about a score of workers.

Pickets gave battle when a second attempt to rush the gates was made. Six persons were injured.

Like a Routine Maneuver

Infantrymen marching with bayonets fixed came in from one direction, light armored cars bristling with machine guns and truckloads of reserves from another direction.

Observers said the Army carried out the operation like a routine maneuver.

The only incident, the slashing of one striker with a bayonet, occurred when he refused to give ground to the soldiers. A few pickets tried to argue with the Army men, but not a trooper spoke and fixed bayonets discouraged the solid phalanx massed about the gates.

There was no organized attempt to halt the troops. A few pickets moved out to halt the car of Col. Branshaw, head of the Western Office of the Army Air Corps Procurement Division, but they moved back.

Once inside the plant, Colonel Branshaw said the factory was open under Government control.

He invited the nine-man negotiating committee of the U. A. W.-C. I. O. to a conference. Their demands, given as the cause of the strike, are for 75 cents an hour minimum pay in place of the present 50 cents, and a 10-cent increase in all.

"Colonel Branshaw was not prepared to discuss our demands," said Lew H. Michener, U. A. W. West Coast director, when the conference ended.

Michener said he had protested to military authorities that "innocent, unarmed people were being subjected to points of bayonets for exercising their constitutional rights."

Colonel Branshaw kept Washington informed from minute to minute as the troops quelled the strike.

By 4 p. m. Undersecretary of War Patterson had received from Col. Branshaw the information that the strike was virtually broken and that 2,000 men of the day shift were back at work. He telephoned this immediately to President Roosevelt and the President, according to Early, said he was "delighted."

Pickets Pushed a Mile Away

Late in the day, the troops succeeded in pushing the picket line more than a mile from the plant.

Jackson's statement, pinning a Communist label on the North American strike, was primarily an explanation of President Roosevelt's authority for his bold action.

The Presidential move "rests upon the aggregate of the President's powers derived from the Constitution and from statutes enacted by Congress," said Jackson.

The Attorney General pointed out that the Constitution requires that the President shall "take care that the laws be faithfully executed."

Among those laws, he said, are laws ordering him to enlarge the Army, build a two-ocean Navy, protect those carrying out Government business and carry out the Lend-Lease Act.

The Party Line

Jackson recited also the military powers that rest in the President and said that the President was under an obligation not to allow his function of defending the country to "become paralyzed" by "failure to obtain supplies."

The C. I. O. leaders directing the North American strike were more interested in striking than in settling their grievances, said Jackson, in making his charge that they had followed the Communist Party line.

Thus, he concluded, Mr. Roosevelt was duty-bound to use his civil, military and moral authority to "keep the defense effort of the United States a going concern."

Should Strikes Be Permitted?

The President, on May 27th, said, "This Government is determined to use all its power to express the will of its people, and to prevent interference with the production of materials essential to our Nation's security."

What is "the will of the people" on the question of strikes? Should the Government forbid them, or should workers continue to have the right to strike? To know what the public thinks, read the Gallup Poll in Wednesday's Post.

Told of Threat By Sen. Pepper, Colonel Says

A House military affairs subcommittee was told yesterday that the Engineer Corps, upholding a preference stated by Senator Pepper (Democrat), of Florida, overruled an Air Corps recommendation that concrete instead of asphalt be used for the construction of runways at Eglin Field, Fla.

While declining to argue with this decision on the Florida facility, Col. Frank M. Kennedy, head of the Air Corps' buildings and grounds division, said he believed that, as a rule, concrete was a more satisfactory building material for Army runways.

Questioned by committee members, he said Eglin was the only permanent Government-owed Air Corps field built in recent months with asphalt runways. He added, however, that at the time the decision was made Eglin Field was considered a temporary facility and was designated as a permanent structure only two or three weeks ago.

He said he recommended soil cement for the Eglin runways, but added that he was "glad to yield" to the Engineers' decision in favor of asphalt.

Kennedy said that in January, before the decision was made, Pepper came to see him twice to request the use of sand asphalt. On the first visit, he said, the Senator was accompanied by a Florida highway official and on the second by "some contractors." The Floridians told him, he said, that sand asphalt had been used satisfactorily for years in building Florida highways.

Kennedy said he told them the Engineer Corps would study the question. He said Pepper called him several times after that to inquire whether there had been any decision. Once, he said, he replied he did not know whether a decision had been made, and Pepper remarked he believed he did know.

Asked why Pepper called him if the decision was to be made by Engineers, the colonel replied, "Well, he probably called everybody in the War Department."

He said it was in February or March—he did not know which—that the Engineer Corps decided on sand asphalt, holding it would make better runway than soil cement.

A. W. Perry, committee counsel, asked if Pepper threatened the colonel's military future. He replied the Senator said nothing to him that would imply such a threat, adding that they had had "cordial relations." Questioned further, he said he received "grapevine information that he (Pepper) made a remark," but added that he did not believe the Senator said such a thing.

Kennedy insisted there was nothing unusual about Pepper's request that asphalt be used, adding that many members of Congress called on him in behalf of some local product. Questioned, he replied that he knew of no asphalt or petroleum deposit in Florida. Perry told the committee cement was produced in the State.

C. D. Redwine, of Fayetteville, Ga., president of the Georgia Senate, said he was informed that Capt. Lebaron C. Colt, resident Army engineer at Eglin Field, had resolved to give Allied Materials, Inc., trouble in the delivery of asphalt to the runway paving job.

The Georgian represented his brother, H. P. Redwine, president of Allied Materials, in a dispute with the Pan American Petroleum Corporation before the contract for Eglin Field asphalt was settled. Witnesses told the committee last week, Pepper intervened on behalf of Pan American, whose Florida office was contending for the contract.

C. D. Redwine said he was told by the representative of a Texas asphalt company that Colt remarked that Allied Materials had embarrassed him on the Eglin job and that he intended to give them "all the trouble he could."

"And he has evidently carried it out," the witness added.

He said Allied Materials and Pan American were ordered to deliver 900,000 gallons of asphalt each immediately to Eglin Field to get the work started. He said Colt took Pan American's delivery promptly and the whole amount was delivered in less than nine days. He said Allied's part was ready for delivery May 7 but all of it had not yet been taken.

He declared Colt delayed Allied eight days getting a sample of the material inspected in Mobile and Birmingham, Ala., although Allied had a certificate showing it already had been passed by a Government-approved laboratory.

House Votes Army 10 Billion, Strike Curbs

pede" the defense program and has asked the employes to return to work.

It was adopted by a teller vote of 138 to 84, after three more sweeping antistrike amendments offered by Representatives Starnes (Democrat), of Alabama, and Smith (Democrat), of Virginia, were defeated with Administration support.

Representative Pace (Democrat), of Georgia, then offered the amendment barring the payment of compensation under the bill to "any person, firm or corporation, who shall, for as long as ten days, fail or refuse to respect and abide by the recommendations" of the Mediation Board.

He told the House that as unions could import thugs to picket, the Case amendment would not meet the strike situation. Pace declared, however, that his own proposal would provide "a weapon more powerful than a bayonet."

A few minutes later a large majority of the Congressmen on the floor stood up and cheered Representative Woodrum (Democrat), of Virginia, when he called on the House to "start casting votes for the future well-being of America, even if it'll keep you home next time."

"Isn't it rather ridiculous," he asked, "for you and I to go around thumbing our noses at Hitler when we haven't the intestinal fortitude to come to grips with a little group of radical labor leaders."

When the standing vote on the Pace amendment was taken, House sentiment had completely shifted from the earlier action on the Starnes proposal and the proviso was approved 172 to 91. A later standing vote of 192 to 65, confirmed this action.

Despite a plea from Representative Marcantonio (American Labor), of New York, there was no record vote taken on the Case and Pace amendments.

Marcantonio, who was the most active opponent of the antistrike amendments, cast the only vote against passage of the bill. He has consistently voted against all defense appropriations.

Before the measure was approved by a 350-to-1 roll-call vote, the House reversed an earlier action barring cost-plus-fixed-fee Army contracts.

The proposed ban was beaten by a narrow 179-to-175 roll-call vote, after a letter from Assistant Secretary of War Patterson, declaring it would have a "disastrous" effect on airplane procurement, was read to the House.

Wickards Accept $11,250 in Suit

Chicago, June 9 (AP).—Secretary of Agriculture and Mrs. Claude R. Wickard accepted a $11,250 settlement today in their $50,000 damage suit for injuries suffered July 20, 1939, in a Minnesota automobile accident.

Wickard sought $30,000 and his wife $20,000 from Leigh P. Jerrard, of Winnetka, Ill., charging that Jerrard's car crashed into their automobile on a highway in Jackson County.

C. I. O. Die Casters' Strike Closes Plant Producing Aluminum for Defense

C. I. O. Strike Closes Down Alcoa Plant

By the Associated Press

Cleveland, June 9.—A long-threatened strike halted work today at the Sprawling Plant at the Aluminum Co. of America, where 7,000 men have been turning out aircraft parts and other defense goods.

The C. I. O. Casters Union said it called the strike because Washington negotiations on wage demands were "getting nowhere." It declared union members had concluded that "Government actions were aiding the Aluminum Co. of America in its attempts to deny our membership the wages and working conditions that this greatest of all monoplies can well afford to grant."

The walkout came as company and union representatives conferred at Washington with a Mediation Board panel.

Pickets hoisted "on strike" banners at the afternoon change of shifts. Company spokesmen said about 2,000 second-shift workers made no attempt to enter the plant. Union representatives reported 10 men who refused to join the walkout were ejected forcibly from the factory. Pickets halted trucks seeking to enter the grounds.

Question Board's Purpose

The union's statement asserted it had become "obvious" to the membership and their policy committee "that after six weeks had elapsed since the overwhelming election victory (naming the Die Casters Union as official bargaining agency for 5,500 hourly production workers) the Aluminum Co. of America did not intend to bargain in any reasonable manner."

The membership "all along," had expressed doubt as to the mediation board's "purpose," the statement said, adding:

"This doubt was heightened by the persecution leveled against Alex Balint, union regional director, by six Government authorities and by the action taken by the government against the West Coast aircraft workers."

(Balint's final citizenship papers have been held up, the Cleveland News reported, pending inquiry by Federal agencies. Chairman Dies of the House Committee on un-American Activities said last April that Blaint and several other union leaders were "engaged in an effort at sabotage on behalf of the totalitarian powers.")

Pay Increase Demanded

The company made no comment on the union statement.

The Die Casters Union ask a general 4½-cent hourly wage increase on top of an 8-cent hourly boost granted April 22, and demands that the minimum wage of 72 cents an hour be raised to 75 cents.

The wage dispute was certified to the mediation board last Wednesday—the date set for a strike deadline. At that time the union delayed action and agreed to send representatives to Washington.

The union declared that "in spite of the fact we were told that production was so important here, the board would not meet the union committee until six days after we received certification notice."

The plant has approximately 1,500 employes in addition to the 5,500 represented by the Die Casters Union.

Ashby Carl Jobe Dies in Alexandria

Ashby Carl Jobe, 62-year-old insurance agent, was found dead in a room he occupied at 808 Junior Street, Alexandria, early yesterday. Police said he apparently had died in his sleep of a heart attack.

Mr. Jobe, a native of Luray, Va., is survived by one brother, Edward Jobe, of Luray, who was en route to Alexandria last night to arrange for his funeral.

His death was discovered by Mrs. Margaret E. Myers when she tried to awaken him to report for work, she told police.

Soldiers Arrest Plane Plant Strikers

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

Text of Roosevelt's Order to Break Strike

Following is the text of the executive order issued by President Roosevelt today commanding the Army to take over the North American aviation plant:

Whereas, on the 27th day of May, 1941, a Presidential proclamation was issued declaring an unlimited national emergency and calling on all loyal citizens in production for defense to give preference to the needs of the Nation to the end that a system of government which makes private enterprise possible may survive, and calling upon all our loyal workmen, as well as employers, to merge their lesser differences in the larger effort to insure the survival of the only kind of government which recognizes the rights of labor or of capital, and calling upon all loyal citizens to place the Nation's needs first in mind and in action, to the end that we may mobilize and have ready for instant defensive use all of the physical powers, all of the moral strength and all of the material resources of the Nation; and

Whereas, North American Aviation, Inc., at its Inglewood plant in the City of Los Angeles, State of California, has contracts with the United States for the manufacture of military aircraft and other material and articles vital to the defense of the United States; and the United States owns aircraft in the course of production, raw material, machinery and other property situated in the said company's plant; and

Whereas a controversy arose at said plant over terms and conditions of employment between the company and the workers which they have been unable to adjust by collective bargaining, and whereas the controversy was duly certified to the National Defense Mediation Board, established by the Executive order of March 19, 1941, and whereas before the negotiations had been concluded before the said board, and in violation of an agreement between the bargaining representatives of the company and the workers authorized to appear before the board and conduct the negotiations, production at said plant of said aircraft and other articles and materials vital to the defense of the United States was interrupted by a strike which still continues, and

Whereas the objectives of said proclamation of May 27, 1941, are jeopardized and the ability of the United States to obtain aircraft essential to its armed forces and to the national defense is seriously impaired by said cessation of production, and

Whereas for the time being and under the circumstances hereinabove set forth it is essential in order that such operations be assured and safeguarded that the plant be operated by the United States;

Now, therefore, I Franklin D. Roosevelt, pursuant to the powers vested in me by the Constitution and laws of the United States, as President of the United States of America and commander in chief of the Army and Navy of the United States, hereby authorize and direct that the Secretary of War immediately take possession of and operate the said plant of North American Aviation, Inc., through such person or persons as he may designate, to produce the aircraft and other articles and material called for by its contracts with the United States or otherwise, and to do all things necessary or incidental thereto. Such necessary or appropriate adjustments shall be made with respect to existing and future contracts and with respect to compensation to the company, as further orders hereafter issued by the Secretary of War shall provide. The Secretary of War shall employ or authorize the employment of such employes, including a competent civilian adviser on industrial relations, as are necessary to carry out the provisions of this order. And I hereby direct the Secretary of War to take such measures as may be necessary to protect workers returning to the plant.

Possession and operation hereunder shall be terminated by the President as soon as he determines that the plant will be privately operated in a manner consistent with the needs of the national defense.

Lumber Union Hails Defiance Of U. S. Board

Olympia, Wash., June 9 (U.P.)—Representatives of the International Woodworkers of America (C. I. O.) tonight applauded their president, O. M. Orton, for his conduct last week in Washington, where he rejected a Government peace formula for the return to work of 12,000 striking members in western Washington.

The conference also recommended that locals send delegations to the Columbia River district asking workers there to reject proposals similar to the western Washington peace formula, and join the strike.

Stronger Picket Lines Urged

Another resolution recommended that picket lines be placed on every operation and that all picket lines be sertngthened. It was also proposed that negotiations with the employer's committee be started immediately.

The 500 delegates attending a meeting to decide whether to ask the strikers to return to work while their grievances are adjusted also appealed to Philip Murray, president of the C. I. O., for support. Murray had denounced the walkout and called for the unionists to return to their jobs.

In a resolution, passed with few dissenting votes, the conference went on record as "commending our committee consisting of O. M. Orton, and District President Karly Larsen for their firm and courageous stand in Washington under fire of criticism from the Mediation Board, newshaws, radio and government officials."

Defied Board

In Washington, Orton and Larsen refused to accept the board's proposal, under which the strikers would accept an immediate 7½ cent hourly wage increase, with other working conditions to be investigated by impartial outsiders.

The conference by telegram informed Murray of the resolution and said the delegates "request your cooperation and support in the I. W. A. membership's determination to achieve victory in their just fight against antiunion profiteering of employers." The wire was signed by Bertel J. McCarty, international secretary.

Jackson Statement on Strikes

The text of Attorney General Jackson's statement on the North American Aviation Co. strike follows:

The President's proclamation rests upon the aggregate of the President's powers derived from the Constitution itself and from statutes enacted by the Congress.

The Constitution lays upon the President the duty "to take care that the laws be faithfully executed." Among the laws which he is required to find means to execute are those which direct him to equip an enlarged Army, to provide for a strengthened Navy, to protect those who are engaged in carrying out the business of the Government, and to carry out the provisions of the Lease-Lend Act.

For the faithful execution of such laws the President has back of him not only each general law enforcement power conferred by the various acts of Congress, but the aggregate of all such laws plus that wide discretion as to method vested in him by the Constitution for the purpose of executing the laws.

The Constitution also places on the President the responsibility and vests in him the powers of Commander in Chief of the Army and Navy. These weapons for the protection of the continued existence of the Nation are placed in his sole command and the implication is clear that he should not allow them to become paralyzed by a failure to obtain supplies for which Congress has appropriated the money and which it has directed the President to obtain.

The situation at the North American plant more nearly resembles an insurrection than a labor strike. The President's proclamation recites the persistent defiance of Governmental efforts to mediate any legitimate labor differences. The distinction betwene loyal labor leaders and those who are following the Communist Party line is easy to observe. Loyal labor leaders fight for a settlement of labor grievances. Disloyal men who have wormed their way into the labor movement do not want settlements; they want strikes. That is the Communist Party line which those who have defied both the Government and their own loyal leaders to prevent a settlement of the strike have followed.

There can be no doubt that the duty, constitutionally and inherently, rested upon the President to exert his civil and military as well as his moral authority to keep the defense effort of the United States a going concern.

2 Sides to War, Wheeler Says Assailing Radio

By the Associated Press

Senator Wheeler (Democrat), of Montana, declared yesterday that some radio stations failed to carry both sides of the war issue, resulting in "a reprehensible situation."

"I believe some radio station operators should be called before the FCC and asked regarding their public service attitude," Wheeler said after Chairman James L. Fly of the communications commission testified that WCAU, Philadelphia, had refused to broadcast an address by Charles A. Lindbergh. Leon Levy, president of WCAU, in a telegram to Representative Lambertson (Republican), of Kansas, said that his station had received no request to broadcast Lindbergh's address.

Wheeler criticized radio news commentators who he said "put out propaganda according to the wishes of their sponsors," but did not name them.

Wheeler's declaration came at an Interstate Commerce Committee hearing on a resolution by Senator White (Republican), Maine, asking that the FCC's new regulations for broadcasting networks be suspended. One rule would force the National Broadcasting Company to dispose of one of its two networks.

Fly said that NBC exercises "an unhealthy concentration of power over radio outlets." The new regulations, he said, would "open up the field of radio to healthy competition."

The FCC chairman expressed the belief that a fifth national network would be organized within a year and said the field was large enough for six.

Fly filed with the committee a memorandum of advertising rates charged by the major networks. He said that the total charge for a typical evening hour was $8,240 on the National Broadcasting Co. blue network, $10,780 on the N. B. C. network and $9,410 for the Columbia Broadcasting System.

Way to Stop White House Picketing Told

Representative Stephen M. Young (Democrat), of Ohio, yesterday called upon District authorities to end picketing of the White House by "misguided, misinformed, misdirected and moronic individuals."

Young told the House that if he were the head of District Government, he would "abate this public nuisance and end this offense against public decency and the home life of a citizen who happens to be the President of the United States," by these steps:

First, pick them up in patrol wagons in the morning. Second, "throw" them into a room for questioning to determine if they are Communists or citizens of the United States and what they are doing in Washington. And then——

"After interrogation, I would turn on the steam heat, and then, if the investigation showed no grounds for further action, I would turn off the steam heat and let them out in the cool of a Washington summer afternoon and then repeat the process each morning until there are no pickets in front of this home."

American Peace Mobilization pickets have been at the White House for four weeks.

Strike Ties Up 30 Tugboats At Baltimore

By the Associated Press

Baltimore, June 9.—A strike of tugboat officers kept 30 vessels of five towing companies idle in this busy Chesapeake Bay port following the collapse of wages and hours negotiations.

Maritime Exchange officials said there was no interference with shipping, but steamship operators said the strike impeded movement of aid-to-Britain cargoes and defense materials being stored here.

Chiefly affected by the tie-up was the handling of incoming ships. The only two freighters due in, the American-Hawaiian steamer Pennsylvania, and the Standard Fruit Co.'s Granada, both managed to slip into their berths without the aid of tugs.

A spokesman for the Tugboat Owners' Association said the strike followed failure of the operators to grant the officers' wages and hours demands. Neither side would say what the demands were.

Unofficial estimates were that more than 200 licensed engineers, pilots and mates were involved in the strike. Firemen, deckhands and cooks reported for work but the tugs were kept tied up when the officers failed to appear.

While G. H. Pouder, head of the Baltimore Association of Commerce's Export and Import Bureau, began an investigation of the strike, the Towboat Owners' Association called a meeting to consider the situation.

The strike tied up 14 tugs of the Curtis Bay Towing Co., six of the Atlantic Lighterage Co., four of the Baker-Whiteley Coal Co., four of the Chesapeake Lighterage Co., and two of the A. J. Harper Co.

The United Fruit Co. was unable to obtain railroad car floats for unloading bananas and was forced to hire a fleet of trucks to rush the perishable cargo to the freight yards.

Senator Harrison Returning to Capital

St. Louis, June 9 (AP).—Senator Pat Harrison, of Mississippi, chairman of the Senate finance committee, was returning to Washington today from Hot Springs, Ark., where he had been a patient in the Army and Navy General Hospital for two months. Hospital officials had said his condition was "primarily one of fatigue."

A secretary said he has shown considerable improvement but will continue to rest at his home in Washington, gradually returning to official duties.

Ship Machinists To Consider Ending Strike

Harvey W. Brown, president of the A. F. L. Machinists Union, yesterday called a meeting of his union's executive council for Thursday to consider a request of President Roosevelt for settlement of a strike of machinists in 11 San Francisco Bay shipyards.

Stephen Early, Presidential secretary, told reporters that the President, in a conference with Brown yesterday morning, had "flatly asked him to adjust that strike and get the men back to work."

Brown, Early said, explained that any action had to be by direction of the executive council of the union. Later in the day Brown advised the White House by telephone that this step had been taken at the President's request.

Both C. I. O. and A. F. L. machinists are on strike, demanding a pay of $1.15 an hour and double pay for overtime. The yards have offered $1.12 and pay and a half.

Harry Hook, business agent for the A. F. L. Machinists Union, said at San Francisco he was confident that if the President asked Brown to send the machinists back to work the men would agree to end the work stoppage.

"We're hoping the President will be convinced of our justification to strike," Hook said. "But regardless of what he decides to do, I know our membership will take his dictates. We have the deepest faith in him.

"If he asks us to go back to our jobs, we'll immediately call a special membership meeting to act on his request. And I think our men will resume work."

One efficient, harmless way to do this is to get from your druggist a 35 cent box of Gold Medal Haarlem Oil Capsules and take them as directed—the prompt results should delight you or your money back.

Besides getting up nights, some symptoms of kidney trouble may be backache, shifting pains, puffy eyes.

Don't be an EASY MARK and accept a substitute—Get Gold Medal Haarlem Oil Capsules—the original—the genuine. Look for the Gold Medal on the box—35 cents.

Work or Face Draft, Arms Strikers Told

taking over the factory and as a weapon in other defense strikes.

Gen. Hershey, in his order to local draft boards, called attention to the President's declaration of a national emergency and the fact that hundreds of thousands of men have been called into the Army under the Selective Service program.

"These citizen soldiers have been promised that arms, supplies and equipment will be furnished by their fellow citizens who are engaged in the production of ships, airplanes, tanks, guns and other necessary munitions and supplies," he stated. "They know that other registrants have been deferred from service in the armed forces to accomplish that purpose.

"They demand that no citizen hesitate to do his full share in the strengthening of the defense of America. Our citizen soldiers have merged their individual desires in the common objective; the citizens who have been deferred because they are necessary in the production of defense supplies and equipment, may not refuse to do likewise."

Declaring that the basic principle of Selective Service is to keep men in the jobs where they can be of greatest service, Hershey said that a defense worker who has been deferred from military service "cannot expect to retain the status of deferment when he ceases to work on the job for which he was deferred."

"The status of deferment and the responsibility to perform the necessary work are inseparable," he added.

Stimson said that the War Department's objective in taking over the West Coast plant was "as speedily as possible to get the plant into condition to produce ten planes a day as it was producing before the strike."

Asked if the North American workers could now be considered Federal employes, Stimson replied that the question was "legalistic." To a query as to the rights of North American stockholders, he said, "in time they'll find out."

Stimson made it clear that J. H. Kindelberger, president of the North American Co., would not suffer from the Government's action.

Kindelberger "has a very good reputation with the Government as a manufacturer of planes and as a squareshooter," said Stimson. "There are not enough of them for us to want to do any injury to such a man. You can make your inferences from that."

British Seeking Cheap Victory, Nazis Assert

Copyright by New York Times

Berlin, June 9.—Authoritative German quarters refused comment this evening on whether or not the French government has solicited German aid to repel the invasion of Syria by British and De Gaullist troops.

For the present the Reich evidently prefers to treat the invasion as a strictly French affair.

The British and particularly Prime Minister Churchill, authoritative German quarters and the press assert, felt the need of a military success to counteract the loss of prestige which they suffered in Crete, and wish to be able to allege that initiative in the Near East is in their hands.

See a Grasp at Prestige

German editors suggest that it is significant that the British chose to attack France. The British know, they contend, that they cannot gain even a prestige victory in open fighting with Axis forces, and so have been impelled with numerically stronger forces to engage their former ally.

The explanation given by the British for the attack on Syria is rejected here as a conscious perversion of the facts. The only German soldiers in Syria, it was authoritatively stated here today in confirmation of a Vichy report, are the 20 or 30 members of the German armistice commission stationed in that mandated territory in accordance with the terms of the Compiegne agreement.

"The same England which designates as its obvious right in fact as international law the delivery of weapons and the shipment of weapons from all neutral and unneutral lands, employs the flight over Syrian territory of several airplanes intended for Iraq as the excuse to maintain lyingly against its better knowledge, that Syria has been turned over to the Germans as a base, yes, that thousands of German soldiers have already been firmly established in Syria," declares the foreign office organ, Deutsche Diplomatisch-Politische Korrespondenz.

Held Aimed at U. S. Opinion

"By means of this spectacle," declares this commentary, "the Americans are to be shown, this time at the cost of the French, that England has learned 'blitzkrieg.'"

German quarters interpret Secretary of State Cordell Hull's sharp utterances against the Vichy government "as an element of Anglo-American political cooperation, which, according to plan, also served as a moral-immoral preparation of the entire action."

Women Drivers Win Praise in Britain

London, June 6 (INS).—So satisfied are the authorities with the women truck drivers of the A. T. S. (Auxiliary Territorial Service) that they are engaging another 600 volunteers.

Statistics indicate the women drivers have proved most capable, with a record which shows few breakdowns and a negligible number of accidents. Even a German machine-gun attack on a long convoy was negotiated without the loss of a single vehicle or the women turning a hair.

Special Gifts Unit of USO Campaign to Report Program and Hear McNutt at Lunch Today

Paul V. McNutt, Federal Security Administrator, will address the special gifts unit of the United Service Organizations at a luncheon at the Willard Hotel today.

Dwight F. Davis, chairman of this unit, said each of the 10 teams engaged in collecting special gifts will report the amount collected toward $250,000 to be raised in Washington. Of this amount, $105,000 is to be spent for strvice men on leave in Washington.

Key men in the District of Columbia Government unit of the USO will meet in the District Building at 3:30 p. m. today, Lieut. William Exton, U. S. N., will outline the objectives and methods of the campaign.

The first U. S. O. posters to be displayed in Washington appeared at New Jersey Avenue and D Street Northwest yesterday. Officials of the local campaign took a hand in putting up the posters. Sidney F. Taliaferro, chairman of the campaign, and Davis wielded long-handled brushes in the billboard ceremony. The posters bear the picture of President Roosevelt and a facsimile of his signature under the words, "U. S. O. deserves the support of every individual citizen."

A campaign speakers committee will be formed at 8 o'clock tonight.

A policy statement in the current bulletin of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America says that churches should heartily support the United Service Organizations. The statement was issued by Dr. Luther A. Weigle, Federal Council president, and Dr. G. Pitt Beers, chairman of the Home Mission Council of North America and of the Christian Commission for Camp Communities. They said: "This work will supplement that of the churches as much as the same organizations supplement the churches in the average normal community."

In civilian life Maj. Morgan was secretary of the United States Tariff Commission, Maj. Gosorn, a special accountant for the Southern Railway System, and Maj. Rhodes, an attorney.

Msgr. Grieff Is Dead; Passion Play Author

Union City, N. J., June 9 (AP).—Msgr. Joseph N. Grieff, who wrote and produced the first American Passion Pyal in 1915 after hearing a papal plea for peace in the early days of the World War, died yesterday of a heart ailment.

The 88-year-old priest had been pastor of Holy Family Church here for 57 years. The Passion Play, staged each Lenten season, had been witnessed by almost a million persons. Nearly 200 Holy Family parishioners made up the cast.

Italians Call British Brutal In Syria Action

By the Associated Press

Rome, June 9.—Fascist circles expressed anger today over the British invasion of Syria and awaited a probable speech by Premier Mussolini tomorrow to mark the beginning of Italy's second year of war.

Preparations were made for a solemn ceremony in the Chamber of Fasces and Guilds at 5 p. m. (10 a. m., E. S. T.)—almost the corresponding hour that the Premier announced his declaration of war on Britain and France last June 10.

Musoslini in a tribute to the Italian Navy today said the war was now "one between two worlds" and is "at one of its most decisive moments."

For tomorrow's chamber session, the first in several months, cabinet ministers and nearly 800 national councilmen who composed the chamber's membership were ordered to wear the Fascist uniform.

Italy's "successes"—with German aid—against France, Greece and Yugoslavia are to be commemorated.

Fascist newspapers predicted England's invasion of Syria will prove "a new error" and will only "delay her defeat several months." London soon will learn the "great and unforeseen effects" of its move which was termed "brutal and criminal aggression."

Those who ordinarily speak for the Fascist regime said the British move would not alter the Axis war plans, presumably plans to conquer Palestine and Egypt in a drive for oil in the Near East.

With the Italians indicating the conviction that another year will see the United States actively in the war unless it is ended soon, a Fascist organ said the British action in Syria was intended to feed American war propaganda with British success.

Fascists meanwhile declared that the first year of the war—in which Italy lost 245,075 men as prisoners or casualties—showed Italian capacity to bear privations and resist strong British forces on many fronts.

Writer Finds Russia Is Still Aiding China

began it single-handedly, and, if necessary, we shall end it the same way. What other nations, friendly or otherwise, may or may not do, will not influence us to fight on until victory is won. Outer Mongolia and Manchuria are parts of China, and the people of these regions themselves feel that they are indissolubly linked with the national government which recognizes no alienation of territory, and does not intend, to, whatever happens.

"So far there is no indication that the U. S. S. R. will withdraw its advisers from China, or will cease supplying us with war materials."

The italics are mine.

Russia has given China more aid than any other country has furnished. She has provided planes, pilots, trucks, some artillery, gasoline, military instructors and staff officers who act as military advisers. She has loaned Chaing Kai-shek's government something over the equivalent of 200 million United States dollars.

On a Barter Basis

Most of this huge loan was made on a barter basis and has been repaid in tea, wolfram (tungsten ore) and other products. The Russians drove a hard bargain when the barter terms were made and at present the Chinese have a difficult time buying the tea at the prices agreed upon with Russia. But they are still making deliveries.

Feeling between Chinese Communists and the Central Government is so bitter on both sides that I was amazed at first to find Soviet staff officers still serving in an advisory capacity with Chiang Kai-shek's armies and Soviet aid to China still coming in steadily. While I was at the front with Chinese Central army troops I encountered Soviet staff officers and I saw new Russian planes which had come in, both bombardment and pursuit. In the officers' club where I lived at Chengtu, in northern Szechuan Province, the room numbers on all the rooms were in Russian and various delicacies we had for breakfast, incluuding cocoa and tinned butter, had come via Vladivostok and Chita.

This Vladivostok route was using the Trans-Siberian railroad to haul freight to Chita. From Chita to Urga all transport was by truck and bus. From Urga to Ninghsia camel caravans carried the freight to the Chinese roadhead, where it was loaded onto trucks again for the haul to Chungking and Chengtu.

Old Friends Meet

No visitors are allowed to see the Russian military advisers, instructors and pilot instructors, but I had run into three Russian staff officers out at the front on an impassable muddy road where all transport was stalled, and greeted one of them whom I knew with "How are you doing, Tovarish?"

"It was evidently decided after that encounter that there was very little point in concealing from me the Russians' presence, and from then on the subject was always discussed very frankly. Consequently I had a good chance to compare the Chinese field staff and general officers' opinions on the various foreign military advisers they had fought under.

Almost unanimously they ranked the Germans first as soldiers and staff officers and the Russians second. Their complaint against the Russians was that they rarely worked out any offensive action, on a large or small scale, in sufficient force. To simplify the explanation to the utmost using men in terms of money: If a position was purchasable for 50 cents, the Russian would try to take it for a dime. They would fail at that and finally have to pay $1.15 for it due to there no longer being any element of surprise.

On the other hand, if a position was worth 50 cents, the Germans would attack it with a dollar and a half. After it was taken you would often find that only a quarter out of the dollar and a half had been spent.

Chinese generals, if they are convinced that you know what you are talking about, are extraordinarily frank, straight talking, intelligent and articulate. After having spent some time on various British maneuvers the atmosphere at the Chinese front with the men who had fought the war lords for five years, the Communists for ten, and the Japanese for nearly four, was as different from that of a British staff as the locker room of the Green Bay Packers' professional football team would be from even such a good prep school as Choate.

One Chinese general asked me what the British in Hongkong thought of them. We were a couple of days of riding together past the opening formal politenesses. We had drunk numerous cups of rice wine and worked late over the map.

"Does the General want to really know what they said?"

"Yes, truly."

"The General will not be offended?"

"Of court not."

"Well, we don't think very much of the Chinese, you know." I tried to reproduce it. "Johnny's all right and a very good fellow and all that. But he's absolutely hopeless on the offensive, you know. We have absolutely no confidence in him over taking the offensive. Truly none. No. Too bad. We can't count on Johnny."

"Johnny?" asked the General.

"John Chinaman," I said.

"Very interesting," the General said. "Very interesting."

Then he went on, "We have no artillery to speak of, you know. No planes. Or a few; you know that of course. Do you think the British would go on the offensive without artillery or aerial support anywhere? Anytime?"

"No," he interrupted me. "Let me tell you a Chinese story. A new Chinese story. Not an old Chinese story. Do you know why the British staff officer wears a single glass in his eye?"

"No," I said.

"Ho," he said. "It is a very new Chinese story. He wears a glass in his eye so he will not see more than he can understand."

"I will tell that officer when I see him," I said.

"Very good," he said. "Tell him it is a little message from Johnny."

MEET GENERALISSIMO'S WIFE—Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Hemingway with Mme. Chiang Kai-shek at Chunking

35,000 Expected to Register For D. C. Home Defense Today

Citizens of Washington and vicinity today will be given an opportunity to offer services in defense of their Capital City.

At 3:30 p. m., public schools in all sections of the District will be opened for the registration of volunteers. A force of 500 trained registrars will be on hand until 8:30 p. m. to accept applications for emergency duty.

The same registration hours will be in effect in 46 school buildings for three days—today, tomorrow and Thursday. An estimated 35,000 persons more than 16 years old are expected to sign up.

A new category—that of volunteer firefighter—has been added to the list of services for the three-day registrations. Fire Chief Stephen Porter estimated that a force of 1,000 auxiliary firemen is essential to adequate protection.

Unable to Leave Posts

Mrs. Harry S. Bernton, director of the volunteer services registration, emphasized that registrars will be unable to leave their posts for the purpose of signing up groups or individuals and urged all who plan to register to appear at one of the schools.

Special cards listing the type of services have been printed, and when filled out they will be filed for both immediate and future use.

There are urgent needs, said defense officers, for a multitude of skills and talents—everything from cooks to auto mechanics. Registrants are instructed to designate not only their choice of service, but their ability to do other things—such as driving cars, typing, first aid etc.

Seek Total Registration

To determine the potential volunteer strength of Washington and its suburbs, local defense officers are hopeful that every man and woman 16 or older will offer to serve in some capacity whether they are called immediately or are held in reserve for ultimate service.

Maj. Brown has asked the registration committee to turn over to him all the names of those who register for auxiliary police duty. He said he needs 1,600 volunteers for this service, including 100 women.

Will Receive Pay

If selected for police work, the volunteers—when on active duty—will receive compensation commensurate with the minimum annual salary of a regular police private, Brown declared. The auxiliary force will wear a special uniform.

Both the auxiliary police and fire-fighting forces will be given extensive training courses.

Also today, local defense executives will confer here with Mayor F. H. LaGuardia of New York, chief of the new Office of Civilian Defense.

LaGuardia outlined his plans for community defense last Friday at a special conference at Third Corps Area headquarters in Baltimore and announced he would come here for further discussions with District authorities.

Another Meeting Sought

Both Capt. H. C. Whitehurst, executive officer of the defense council, and Police Superintendent Ernest W. Brown, chairman of the civil protection committee, said they were anxious to meet with La-Guardia again.

Whitehurst said his organization had no specific problems, but he wants to be sure his program is in line with the national defense chief's ideas.

Allies Reported at Damascus, Fall Forecast

here there has not yet been any fighting of a heavy nature. The British contend that officials in regions occupied are cooperating with them.

The De Gaulist Levant radio station announced the capture of 183 German parachute soldiers, including a colonel. This report is also scouted and there is reliable information indicating that the Germans are getting out of the Levant as fast as possible. German sources here say they believe the Reich will not "bother" to help in Syria, but suggest an imminent major attack on Egypt from Libya.

The Beirut radio announced tonight:

"Our forces are defending the country superbly and many enemy motorized units have been destroyed by our guns."

The allied attack seems to be developing as follows: One column crossed the border from Palestine at Naqura and has moved north along the coastal roads, occupying Tyre and continuing northward. Another column is moving up the valley of the Jordan River. Another is marching on Damascus along the Amman-Damascus Railway line.

Another has crossed from Trans-Jordan into the Jebel ed Druz region and is believed to be in the vicinity of Souetda.

Two columns, believed to comprise together a motorized division, are entering eastern Syria from the Euphrates Valley region of Iraq and moving parallel in the direction of Deir ez Zor and Aleppo. The British hope to capture Aleppo with these forces within the next four days and then stand firm.

The "Free French" forces have been fighting north of Mafaa. There are unconfirmed reports of an advance toward Homs, the headquarters of the French Foreign Legion in the Levant. Few details of naval action are available. The official French claims is that British forces disembarked from a fleet of ships including a battleship, two cruisers and five destroyers and were captured. However, there is no claim that 1,900 prisoners were taken.

Advance Report Slowed

The Germans here state they have information that between 25,000 and 30,000 British and "Free French" troops are participating in the attack. A source in Beirut—with which steady telegraphic communications have been reestablished—asserts that the British advance has been slowed down and in most places halted.

The writer talked with a neutral observer who left Aleppo after hostilities began, and he said it was generally hoped throughout the mandated territory that the British have started their offensive with large enough forces to end this incident in a few days before it develops into a full-scale war. The opinion of British circles here is that Syria and Lebanon will be occupied within a fortnight.

The observer cited above said the French feel they will have to fight hard if the British do not take over quickly, but they hope they can merely get away with a face-saving defense. He said high French officers were pro-Vichy, but that a great many young officers were De Gaullists, and that several of them have been arrested in the last few days.

He reported the Germans have been evacuating men and materials, including aircraft and technicians from Syria. This is confirmed here by all informed circles.

He said Beirut had been full of rumors of attempts on the high commissioner, Gen. Henri Fernand Dentz's life and that arrests had been made.

It is known here that Vice Premier Admiral Darlan telegraphed Beirut just before hostilities and told Gen. Dentz to ask the Germans to leave in order to avoid giving the British a pretext.

This was done, it is understood, after Admiral Darlan had previously made the same request of Joachim Von Ribbentrop, the German foreign minister, who agreed to concur.

Rockefeller Pledges $50,000 More to USO

New York, June 9 (AP).—John D. Rockefeller has pledged a second $50,000 to the United Service Organizations, the USO announced today, because he feels that "adequate provision for the out-of-camp leisure time of soldiers and sailors is vital to maintaining the high morale traditional among our armed forces."

Eklund to Appeal For New Trial Today

John Eugene Eklund, 26, who was found guilty last week as Washington's sniper killer, will ask Justice James M. Proctor for a new trial today.

James R. Kirkland, Eklund's counsel, said the motion would be based on supposed error of the trial court in allowing the jurors to hear the details of two murders beside the specific one for which Eklund was on trial.

Dan Beard Ill

Suffern, N. Y., June 9 (U.P.).—Daniel Carter Beard, cofounder of the Boy Scouts of America, was reported late today to have rallied slightly from a serious illness with which he is stricken at his home. His condition was described still critical, however. Beard will be 91 June 21.

*Streamliner "Torpedo" Six Sedan Coupe $923

A GENERAL MOTORS MASTERPIECE

"YOU BET I LIKE my 1941 Pontiac 'Torpedo' better than any car I've ever owned. And why shouldn't I? It's brimming over with pep, power and getaway. It's a beauty inside and out. In fact it's everything Pontiac owners told me it would be.

"But it's even more than that. Pontiac is the first big car I've ever had—and I can tell you there's a whale of a difference between owning a big car and a small one.

"You have more room of course—but that doesn't begin to tell the story. You get a big car ride—and by that I mean Pontiac gives you enough length and weight, without which no car can really be comfortable.

"But most important of all is the feel Pontiac gives you—you know you've really got hold of something when you get behind the wheel! Call it pride of ownership or whatever you like, but Pontiac certainly gives you a lot of it!

"Yes Pontiac is priced so low that my monthly payments are unbelievably small. Also I'm getting even better gasoline and oil mileage than from the lowest-priced car I previously owned. Furthermore, Pontiac will save me money on repairs and upkeep. So I'm saving plenty all around.

"Yes, sir—I signed off motoring worries when I signed the order for a Pontiac 'Torpedo'. You'd better do the same—today—at your Pontiac dealer's!"

U.S. Asks Vichy To Permit British in Syria

Secretary of State Hull, charging France with playing Germany's game in Syria, yesterday called on the Vichy government in effect to permit British troops to enter the French mandated territory without resistance.

Moreover, Hull told French Ambassador Gaston Henry-Haye in an hour-long conference that he was not at all sure that France is not permitting Germany to use her bases elsewhere.

He made the flat charge that the Germans use Syria as a base of operations and said that they appeared to need it for their larger military operations.

Hull Repeats Warning

Warning France once more against collaborating with Germany beyond theterms of the armistice, Hull gave the French envoy this admonition:

The United States would be extremely regretful if the French in protecting interests, which from a military point of view were closer to German interests than their own, should find themselves in a position of fighting Great Britain, their former ally, to further German interests.

The interview, which took place at Hull's Wardman Park Hotel apartment because he felt indisposed, was granted at Henry-Haye's request.

The French Ambassador told reporters later he wanted to protest to Hull what he termed the "absolutely unjustified" British attack on Syria.

U. S. Examining Conduct

Hull's answer, authoritative quarters said, was to tell Henry-Haye that the United States is examining French conduct in all phases and is not at all sure that the trouble is confined to Syria.

As a matter of fact, Hull told him, acts of collaboratoin of the Vichy government beyond the strict armistice terms in the cultural, religious, economic and military fields are all being examined.

The purpose of these studies, Hull made clear by implication in a strong warning to France last week, is to aid in deciding whether the United States should break off relations with France.

So far there has been no change in relations with France, it was said, and yesterday's meeting between Hull and Henry-Haye was described as cordial.

Denies Presence of Nazis

Henry-Haye told reporters, as he has before, that there were no German troops or air units in Syria, vital because of its proximity to oil wells of the Near East and to the Suez Canal.

He said that France would never take the first step in a move to sever relations with the United States.

Henry-Haye expressed the hope that the conflict between Britain and France, now raging in Syria, would be localized.

Hull, in return, charged flatly that Germans used Syria as a base of operations and said that they appeared to need the territory for their larger military operations.

Missing Falcon Ends Wandering With Power Dive on Pigeon

SATAN'S RETURN—Once again Satan is back in the hands of his attractive mistress, Mrs. William F. Turner

By Scott Hart
Post Staff Writer

The strange excursions of Satan the falcon ended here yesterday in a dramatic power dive on a terrified fleeing pigeon.

And the driving pointed wings of Satan, seen over 30 far-apart areas of Washington since the bird's escape last Friday from its owner, Mrs. William T. Turner, 2032 Pierce Mill Road Northwest, drooped at home last night. The bird was very tired and no little disillusioned with making a living on its own.

It was this aspect—to make a living on the fly—that brought Satan home to roost. It was hunger. He showed it in his eyes when he folded his wings and dived with terrific speed straight for the pigeon. This brought him into the back yard of John B. Wood, 1741 North Capitol Street.

Satan would have eaten pigeon then—an innovation in its accustomed died of beef, starling and crow—but the diving aim was bad. The pigeon, terrified, crashed onto the upper back porch. Satan struck the lower back porch, shook himself and looked about as if reflecting on the difficulties of eating away from home. Mrs. Wood, who was standing all the while on her porch, wondered what on earth was happening.

A window raised in the house next door.

"That's Satan," the neighbor called. "I saw his picture in The Post last Saturday."

Some little boys ran up and called the Animal Rescue League. The league sent out a truck. But meanwhile, the neighbor had called Mrs. Turner and she and the rescue truck arrived at the same moment. Satan's foot, a tendon severed, was dripping blood. Mrs. Turner had received her thirty-first call, but this time she had gotten back her bird.

One caller had seen Satan flying above the Congressional Airport. Another had reported him near Forty-seventh Street and Massachusetts Avenue Northwest. One person had seen him flying near the Zoo, another over Rock Creek Cemetery.

It wasn't love he sought, but food, everyone agreed after Satan was seen close-up. His eyes were hungry, he had grown very thin, and besides, the people said, mere love couldn't throw a fellow into such a nose dive as Satan made yesterday.

Peril of Losing Syria 'Grave,' Vichy Admits

By the Associated Press

Vichy, June 9.—British naval squadrons tonight were reported lying off Beirut and Tripoli, holding Lebanon's capital and chief port under threat of their guns, ready to speed the land campaign with naval bombardment.

The French acknowledged that the situation on land in Syria was "particularly grave."

Those words were attributed to Jacques Benoit Mechin, oldtime aide of Vice Premier Admiral Darlan and now one of his chief collaborators with the Germans at Paris.

But the French forces, at sea, aground and in the air, were putting up a "tenacious resistance to the forces of the adversary, superior in number and powerfully armed," a communique from Beirut said.

In one sector of the land fighting a large number of armored vehicles—meaning anything from Bren gun carriers or armored cars to tanks—were reported demolished by artillery and aerial bombardment while troops defended the mandated area's soil "foot by foot."

Vice Premier Darlan will broadcast tomorrow night.

Tripoli Reported Shelled

Reuters, British news agency, relayed a round-about report that the British already had shelled Tripoli, terminus of one branch of the pipeline from the Mosul oil fields of Iraq.

This report also said the fleet had gone into action at various other points along the Lebanese coast.

One unconfirmed report was that defenders of Beirut had blown up the coastal road leading from Haifa, Palestine, through Acre and Tyre to the Lebanese capital, hoping to block or hamper combined land and sea action along the coast south of Beirut.

A British landing party put ashore yesterday south of Beirut was reported rounded up.

A French-British naval engagement near the Lebanese coast was reported officially to have resulted in grave damage to a British destroyer. The French did not say what sort of naval forces they used.

A Beirut communique said two British warships were seriously damaged off the coast north of Tyre in "brilliant action by two of our destroyers."

Landing Operations "Hindered"

This communique said that up to Monday morning the allied attacks had been held at all points while counterattacks at certain points hindered allied landing operations.

Allied mechanized columns adopted German tactics, which the British and French learned as allies a year ago on the Western Front. They speared through the defense lines, racing deep beyond to disrupt the rearguard and communications.

The target of one thrust was Merdjayoun, about 40 miles south of Beirut and equidistant southwest of Damascus. The French denied "for the moment" that Merdjayoun had been captured.

The thrust at Merdjayoun was part of the offensive toward Beirut, which the defenders considered secondary to the thrust toward Damascus, capital of Syria, which has no coastline.

Away from the coast the Allies were finding the going tough, according to reports. They were required to thread through hills and mountains of Jebel ed Druz or along the fringe of that wild region or between Jebel ed Druz and the coastal plains.

the steamship Lages and then to the steamship Deer Lodge.

The Navy declined to publish the exact text of the message pending confirmation of the report.

Jefferson Caffrey, American ambassador to Brazil, informed the State Department of a report that the Robin Moor had been sunk, but did not state what was the cause of her destruction.

Jeffrey said the captain of the port at Fortaleza had received a message from the Osorio reporting that yesterday at 9 p. m., she picked up 11 crew members who were drifting in a lifeboat.

In spite of all efforts, the message said, the captain of the Osorio had not yet been able to find the other three lifeboats of the Robin Moor.

Carried No Munitions

New York, June 9 (U.P.).—Officials of the Seas Shipping Co., Inc., owners of the Robin Moor, said today that the vessel left for Capetown May 6 with a general cargo which included no munitions of war.

Part of the cargo, they said, was a consignment of motor truck parts to South African ports and to Laurenco Marques, Portugese East Africa.

Commanded by Capt. Edward Myers, of Baltimore, the Robin Moor carried these passengers:

Mr. and Mrs. Ben Cohn, (Cohn is an employe of Loew's, Inc., motion picture distributors); Mr. and Mrs. R. W. McCullough and their 2-year-old son, en route to the Firestone Tire and Rubber Co. plant at Port Elizabeth, South Africa; Mr. and Mrs. Harry G. Gennell, British citizens, Gennell being the former secretary of the Trinidad leasehold, British West Indies and Philip C. Eccles, British banker.

The Cohns and McCullough are American citizens. Mrs. McCullough is Dutch.

The Robin Moor, formerly the Exmoor of the American Export Lines, was built at Hog Island shipyard in 1919. Its cruising speed was 19 knots.

Cavalry Leads British in Syria, First Use of Horses in This War

By Edward Kennedy
Associated Press Staff Writer

With Allied British-Free French Forces in Syria, June 8 (Delayed).—Aided by charging cavalry, in the first British use of horses in this war, British and Free French forces swept into Syria today.

As dusk fell Saturday, tanks, armored cars, guns and trucks filled with soldiers poured out from the pleasant groves of northern Palestine where they had taken shelter under the olive and cypress trees.

Suddenly the road came alive with military traffic rolling toward the border.

While all of Merdjayoun, just across the Lebanese frontier from Palestine, was still asleep, Australian infantry with Bren gun-carriers and light artillery sped up from the shores of the Sea of Galilee.

Just before reaching the town they cut across fields and into near by Syria.

They surprised the frontier post where a French sergeant and seven Lebanese guards surrendered without a word, and then they drove for Clare where they found the fort abandoned.

But soon they encountered a volley of shots from the hiding place of the garrison close by.

British instructions were not to fire until fired on. The fortunes of war now were pitting the British against their former ally and the soldiers of Gen. de Gaulle against their brothers in the army of Marshal Petain's France.

On meeting this resistance—which seemed to be of a delaying rather than a determined kind—the Australians opened artillery fire which knocked out the big guns trained on Merdjayoun.

As the sun came up, the Australians stormed the stronger fortres of Khaim, which is perched on a hilltop. They paused now and then in their shelling to give its defenders time to think about giving in.

But by mid-morning the fortress still was holding out so parties were sent out to flank it.

British control of Merdjayoun marily go into battle with protruding bayonets which are the terror of the enemy—this time went in without bayonets.

Similar delaying resistance was reported at other points but some cavalry patrols found no opposition.

British lanes patrolled the skies over the land forces. No enemy planes appeared.

Metulla, first scared to find a war on, calmed down on finding that shells were whizzing only at the old fort. Children ran through the streets clapping their hands at each boom, grownups watched the war from the roofs.

Australian casualties in the morning in this sector were one soldier shot in the finger. Arabs coming over said there were no casualties on the other side.

3-Day Ceremonies Start at 'Liberty Or Death' Church

Richmond, Va., June 9 (AP).—St. John's Episcopal Church received greetings from Richmond clergy at ceremonies tonight in connection with the church's celebration of its 200th anniversary.

The week-long celebration opened yesterday with services conducted by the Rt. Rev. H. S. St. George Tucker, Bishop of Virginia and presiding bishop of the United States. Communicants and visitors crowded the little white church, renowned as the site of Patrick Henry's "Liberty or Death" speech, for the exercises.

John Stewart Bryan, president of William and Mary College, will deliver the anniversary address Tuesday at 11 a. m. and on Thursday the Viscount Halifax, British Ambassador to the United States, will be the speaker. A pageant recreating the proceedings of the Virginia convention of March 23, 1775, is planned for Wednesday at 8:30 p. m.

Painter Injured In 20-Foot Fall

Lyman Crouch, 34-year-old painter, was seriously injured yesterday when he fell 20 feet from a swinging stage while at work on a house in the 1200 block of Eleventh Street Northwest.

Crouch was taken to Emergency Hospital in a taxicab by Waverly Mayton, of the paint-contracting firm, at 1205 L Street Northwest, and admitted with compound fracture of the left forearm, possible fractured vertebra, and other injuries. Hospital officials described his condition as "fair."

Milk Program Faces Revision

May 31 for a 1-cent milk project in the public elementary schools. The Surplus Marketing Administration, an Agriculture unit, administers both types of programs.

Extra Cost Per Some

At the meeting of the nutrition commitee, which is composed mainly of Federal and District welfare woorkers, various members brought out the following information:

Some of the aged and blind who are eligible to buy the nickel quarts actually have to pay 15 cents a bottle: Ten cents to the boy or girl who is sent for it and five cents for the milk itself.

Six and seven-children families with a WPA income of $52 a month are not allowed to buy the low cost milk, while families on public relief and more comfortably situated have that privilege.

Nearly 400 Washington families, whose heads have been certified for WPA jobs but have not yet been placed, are permitted to buy the five-cent quarts—but few of them have sufficient funds to satisfy their milk needs.

Heads of another 117 families are certified for WPA but unassignable, due to physical or occupational handicaps. In a twilight zone, they can get neither WPA employment nor relief. Eligible for the five-cent milk, they are spending whatever funds they have for other things.

Good Nutrition for All

"If it's the Agriculture Department's responsibility to bring milk within reach of the undernourished needy, they should meet it," said Paul Edwards, District WPA administrator. "Good nutrition on a proper basis should be denied no one."

Leon J. Steck, who represented O. M. Reed, chief of the Surplus Marketing Administration Dairy Division, replied that under existing legislation the Agriculture Department's milk policy is directed primarily at disposing of surplus, rather than giving the needy free or low-cost milk at the farmers' expense.

Reminded that the department buys up eggs, fruits, vegetables and other surplus commodities and distributes them gratis to the poor, Steck said the relatively high price of milk makes the same system impractical for that product.

Strongly urging extension of 5-cent milk cards to WPA families, Edwards said there are at present 6,000 whose income is $68 a month or less. Their average size is 4.2 persons, he added, estimating that five of every six of these families have children of school age.

Mrs. Grant Submits Data

Van Hyning indicated that, in asking liberalization of eligibility rules fixed by the SMA, he will recommend not the blanketing in of all WPA employes but only those whose earnings are in the under-$68 class. He also will urge that low-cost milk be extended certified recipients of private charity.

Mrs. Elizabeth O. Grant, Health Department nutritionist and chairman of the District Nutrition Committee, submitted figures showing that the following were eligible to buy nickel quarts in May:

On public relief rolls—Old-aged, 3,722 individuals; blind, 243 individuals; aid to dependent children, 990 families; general public assistance, 2,245 individuals and families.

Certified for WPA and awaiting assignment—380 individuals and families; certified for WPA but unassignable, 117 individuals and families.

"That gives a total of 7,697 individuals and families who are permitted to buy the low cost milk, yet sales averaged only 2,500 bottles a day last month," said Mrs. Grant.

"It is no wonder that the program is a failure. The aged and the blind, who comprise about half the total, are physically unagle to go to the 11 depots for their milk. And those who have been certified for WPA jobs don't have the necessary funds."

Unable to Contact Derrick

Mrs. Grant said she has tried many times, but in vain, to contact Bruce B. Derrick, secretary-treasurer of the Maryland-Virginia Milk Producers Association, for the purpose of enlisting that body's cooperation in the nutrition drive.

"Then when I telephoned to obtain a list of the association's board of directors I was told it was unavailable," she declared.

In this respect, the nutritionist's luck has been no better than The Post's. Derrick has refused to answer questions, or to comment on the daily stories which this newspaper has been publishing since May 21 setting forth the need of adequate milk coverage of the poor, both at home and in the schools.

Since an estimated 90 per cent of the milk consumed in Washington is produced by members of Derrick's association, their cooperation is necessary in any extension of the surplus milk program or establishment of a cent-a-glass project which would double or treble the number of milk drinkers among school children.

Van Hyning urged the District Nutrition Committee to look and work toward the eventual creation of a permanent milk-supply pro-

WHY FALSE TEETH WEARERS HAVE BAD BREATH
Millions Suffer Without Knowing!
You can't notice any odor from your plate or bridge—but others may! Dentists call this odor "denture breath" and it's serious. It comes from a mucin-scum that collects on plates and bridges. This scum is almost invisible—but it can make your breath so bad that friends shudder. It can breed decay-bacteria that infect your other teeth, actually hurt your health and spoil your pleasure.
Ordinary brushing often can't get this scum off plate or bridge—can't protect you against "denture breath." But just try Polident! Polident not only cleans—it actually purifies plates and bridges without brushing. It gets every bit of scum, tarnish, stain and odor—dissolves it away and leaves your plate sweet and clean as new.
Your breath will be fresher, your mouth feel cleaner—and your plate last longer and look better. Polident is approved by dental authorities, Good Housekeeping and tens of thousands of delighted users. Long-lasting can costs only 30¢ at any drug store.

FEEL PEPPY! RELIEVE THAT AWFUL BACKACHE
DUE TO FATIGUE AND EXPOSURE
Feel like stepping out again by relieving that backache (due to fatigue and exposure). Just rub on some En-ar-co and instantly it begins its four-fold work of helping soothe that back. Pleasant. Only 60c at your druggist. National Remedy Co., New York City.
EN-AR-CO

Best friends were amazed in woman's improved looks... new energy... pep!
A marvelous change can be brought about by overcoming miserable digestive complaints, underweight, sluggishness and loss of appetite—all by two important steps—
Restore vital digestive juices in the stomach... energize your body with rich, red blood. Here's how!
If you are one of those unfortunates who have been ill, or have suffered with colds, the flu, worked under a strain, failed to eat the proper foods, or have been vexed by overtaxing worries... yet have no organic trouble or focal infection... and your red-blood-cells have become reduced in vitality and number... if your stomach digestion refuses to work properly, then here is good news for you!
S.S.S. Tonic is especially designed to build back deficient blood strength... to revive and stimulate those stomach juices which digest the food so your body can make proper use of it in rebuilding worn-out tissue. These two important results enable you to enjoy the food you do eat... to make use of it as Nature intended. Thus you may get new vitality... pep... become animated... more attractive!
Feel and look like yourself again
Yes, when you tone up the stomach and get its digestive juices flowing freely, you should enjoy again that old-time zest for food... stomach digestive miseries should vanish. S.S.S. Tonic also gives you the mineral matter in soluble and digestive form to restore your blood to its rich, red color... this makes for greater strength... color in your cheeks... resistance against disease attacks.
Because S.S.S. is in liquid form it begins its work as soon as you take it. Make the S.S.S. treatment a part of your daily diet. You will be delighted with results. Scientific Research shows that S.S.S. Tonic usually gets results. Thousands and thousands of users have testified to the benefits it has brought to them—that's why so many say "S.S.S. Tonic builds sturdy health and makes you feel like yourself again." © S.S.S. Co.

Adm. Stirling Favors Unified U. S. Air Force

By Rear Admiral Yates Stirling, Jr., (U. S. N., Retired)

Copyright by United Press

The question of whether the United States should have a unified air force, now pending in Congress, is not an easy one to settle. There are reasons why separate air forces should be retained by the Army and Navy. Especially is this true for the Navy.

The Navy claims, and with reason, that a naval aviator must be, first and foremost, a naval man. He must know the plan of the naval commander-in-chief, and must be capable of recognizing his own warships, and not confuse them with those of the enemy. The Navy declares that it is most dangerous to permit a pilot, without knowledge of the principles of naval strategy, to range over the oceans, not knowing in what localities his own warships are operating. He might bomb or torpedo his own ships.

Our Navy aviation is the best and most highly trained of any in the world. The Navy is against destroying this setup and putting its aviation force into an united force which would be divorced from naval control.

British Navy Keeps Air Arm

The question now is: What is the best organization for the greater number? Proponents of a united force say that the vast number of airplanes we will have, being turned out by the hundreds in our factories, must be organized for war, and that we must concentrate upon getting our airplanes perfected and the pilots trained to go up against an enemy, even though a few may become confused at sea because of insufficient naval training.

There is another point that united air force men make in support of their claim. It is that in the large additions to naval personnel made in the emergency, there are many naval ratings that cannot in the short time provided fully learn naval strategy, and those men are little different from the thousands that have joined the air force and are being trained as aviators. They say, therefore, that the Navy's objection to a united air force no longer holds, and that it is a propitious time to follow the lead of the united air forces of Germany and England. England, however, has retained its naval air arm under naval control.

The claimants for a united air force insist that the ranking officers to command air power must be aviators.

It has been demonstrated in the war in Europe that air men, even the top officers, must be young men. Fliers should be from 20 to 28 years old, and officers in control of aircraft activities should be no older than 45.

The united air force idea is not new. It came up just after the World War, in the days of Gen. William Mitchell, who was a strong advocate for it. If a decision should come for a united air force, there would be authorized a secretary for air in the President's Cabinet, and under that office an organization to administer the entire air effort of the country.

Many airmen, after studying the war in Europe, feel that having separate forces under the Army, Navy and Marine Corps, diversifies and diffuses effort. They claim that unification would group these three forces together with a minimum of interference, friction and duplication.

As for the tactical command they claim that can be worked out, by assigning air forces to the Army and Navy for a special task, but that the large pool of planes would remain under the leadership of air men, who will employ them as an arm of self defense independent of the Army and Navy. It would seem that such an organization, provided the naval arm is maintained intact and under naval command, would brighten the air corps prospects,

LILY PONS
Her Third Year of Marital Harmony

Silvermine, Conn., June 9 (AP).—Lily Pons and Andre Kostelanetz are celebrating their third wedding anniversary, and the secret of their matrimonial success is probably the oddest on which a marriage ever hinged.

Three years of wedded bliss wouldn't be much of a record for ordinary people, but it is for them. When they took the leap on the second day of June, 1938, some of their best friends were dubious.

After all, Lily was the Metropolitan Opera's glamour girl, and the abbreviated, bouncy, beaming Kostelanetz was a conductor of note—both career people.

Their careers were close enough together to cause possible professional jealousy, with the added unfortunate feature of keeping them separated geographically most of the time. Lily is on tour about nine months of the year, and Kosty is tied down to New York broadcasting. And neither subscribes to the theory that distance—in marriage—lends enchantment.

Their solution for bringing harmony out of all this potential discord, they related happily on the terrace of their pleasant country house, was that great invention of the Wright Brothers, the airplane.

Frequent aerial dashes out of New York were the way Kosty managed to bombard Lily with the proposals that eventually led to the mariage, and the same technique has kept their happy family together since.

For two years running, Kosty rang up the record as the Nation's Number 1 air traveler, commuting between his concerts to the various points on Lily's tours. (He finally lost the title to Mrs. Roosevelt.) Last year, he made more than 20 junkets out of New York to see Lily, for a couple of days or a couple of hours—in California, Texas, New Orleans, Florida, New Brunswick. . . .

"Twenty Years ago, even ten years ago, without zee airplane we would be divorce in seex months," Lily Chorlies in her gay soprano, and Kosty beams assent.

The other bogey, professional friction, just hasn't arisen, because they work together in harmony, figuratively and literally. Kosty plays the piano for Lily's rehearsing and makes some of her arrangements, and she listens to his concerts and gives him "beeps." The rest of their intermittent domestic life is quite a complicated pattern: About half common interests and half differences.

The only sport Lily is interested in is horseback riding. Kosty likes swimming and tennis. The only game they play together is Chinese checkers, which they do in a wide-open, cut-throat version—"Kangaroo" double jumps in which you can get across the board in one move, and each player maneuvering three sets of men.

Then they like animals. They have a parrot and nine other weird tropical birds in a makeshift aviary. A dog peaks around the corner, and it's an English sheep dog; the next time it's a West Highland terrier; and the next time, a French bulldog—they have all three. Plus a yellow Persian cat, which has just had five kittens. Lily's famous ocelot, which didn't take to Kosty and vice versa, ended up in the Bronx zoo.

Lily and Kosty also have a theory that every husband and wife should see some new point of interest together every year. This year, to celebrate their anniversary, they took a four-day trip to colonial Williamsburg, Va. Next year, for anniversary No. 4, Lily says:

"We have beeg party. . . ."

Two Brothers Held For Assault

Second Precinct police last night were holding two colored brothers, 30 and 35 years old, in the beating of Hubert Leaman, 29, owner of a gas station at 101 Florida Avenue Northeast, and Oscar F. Adams, 29, attendant at the gas station.

Police were told that the brothers drove into the station late Sunday, bought some gas, and presented an $11 check in payment. When Leaman refused to accept the check, police said, a fight started in which Leaman suffered a cut scalp, possible fractured skull, and loss of speech, and Adams received a badly bruised left eye and possible fractured cheek bone.

Both men were taken to Sibley Hospital. Leaman, admitted to the Hospital, was in fair condition yesterday. Adams was allowed to go home after treatment. Leaman lives at 1401 Columbia Road Northwest; Adams at 1412 Seventeenth Street Northwest.

Hitler Sends Wreath of Orchids To Kaiser's Funeral at Doorn

By the United Press

Doorn, Holland, June 9.—Former Kaiser Wilhelm, honored in death by the homeland he fled after leading the German armies to World War defeat, was interred today in the tiny chapel at Castle Doorn where he had been in exile for more than two decades.

The new warlord thus paid tribute to the old. Wilhelm, head of the House of Hohenzollern, died last Tuesday in his eighty-third year. The consuming interest of his last days was an avid study of the maps which the World War corporal in the Kaiser's old Imperial Army was revising so swiftly.

The body will remain in the chapel on the grounds of Doorn Castle until a mausoleum is built later somewhere in the estate.

The funeral rites were simple. The climax came when the coffin was placed on the bier in the chapel. Four candles on tall sticks were lighted. Four of the Kaiser's sons in imperial uniform drew swords and placed themselves around the bier as a last guard of honor.

The coffin was carried down the steps of Doorn House at 11:15 a. m. to a long gray automobile. A guard of honor representing the Third Reich Army, Navy and Air force presented arms. Military bands struck up a dirge.

Headed by the honor guards, the procession moved slowly across the little hump-backed stone bridge over the castle moat to the chapel.

The wreaths, carried directly behind the coffin, included tributes from the King of Sweden, the Crown Prince of Spain, the Swedish and Danish Nations and the Government of Bulgaria and Hungary.

Hitler was represented by Dr. Arthur Seyss-Inquart, Nazi Commissioner for the Netherlands.

Home Guards

Washington's "army behind the Army" will begin to take form this week—the first city, appropriately enough, to mobilize its citizens since the declaration of the unlimited national emergency. Today, tomorrow and Thursday, 44 public schools will be open between 3:30 and 8:30 p. m. for the voluntary registration of local residents who are willing to do their part for civilian defense. The District Defense Council's committee on volunteer service has emphasized that there are jobs for all in nearly a dozen major categories. These include office work, medical aid, manual labor, social welfare, entertainment, home-making and mechanics. The commitee, whose headquarters have been established in the old National Guard Armory at 501 Pennsylvania Avenue Northwest, has prepared cards on which registrants may list their skills and indicate the hours they would be available for service. There is no compulsion whatever to register. The undertaking is designed, first, to find out the potential volunteer strength of the community, and second, to plan its effective organization. The success of the plan depends, of course, upon individual willingness to cooperate for municipal security.

The Dutch Say No

Erasmus taught the Hollanders to say yes to life. One result was the creation out of the bottom of the sea of a brand-new lebensraum, an art of creation which should put in proper perspective the have-not argument with which the Nazis used to trade on the sympathy of sentimental pacifists. Another result was Netherlands India. Here there grew up a model of colonial administration and an El Dorado of raw materials and tropical products of which the leading items are oil, rubber, and tin. All these commodities are available to the world, including Japan. But the Japanese lately have been demanding the lion's share, particularly of rubber, and have been overcharging their demands with threats. Could the Dutch says yes to such a demand, especially when presented at the point of a club? Erasmus and all the ancestors of the Dutch nation required a no to that, and this is the answer which Mr. Van Mook has returned to Mr. Yoshizawa.

The Dutch object to the terms of the demand as well as to the manner in which it is couched. They are perfectly willing to accommodate the Japanese for their domestic needs as shown by purchases over a five-year period. Beyond this quota they will not budge, and even this quota is predicated upon a priority which the Dutch already have accorded to the British and the Americans. The reason for the qualification requires no explanation from the Dutch negotiators. Britain is the head and front of the fighting forces of freedom in the world which are aiming, among other things, at removing the Nazi heel from the Hollanders' motherland. And the United States has constituted itself Britain's arsenal. The Dutch would be wanting in patriotism if they allowed the Japanese to be the buyers of Dutch commodities for the enemies of the Dutch, or even if they did more than put Japan in a secondary place to Holland's friends among the customers for the tin, rubber, and oil of the Indies.

Still it is refreshing to see this picture of Dutch stubborness—as refreshing as the Japanese find it disconcerting. Mr. Yoshizawa is so discomfited that he seems to be appealing for his own recall. This is not an unusual role for Mr. Yoshizawa. For he is the same plenipotentiary who at Geneva ten years ago failed to be tough enough for the Japanese when the League was trying to get the Japanese out of Chinese Manchuria. He had to give way to the brusque Matsuoka, now Foreign Minister, and it looks as if Mr. Matsuoka might again have to come to Yoshizawa's rescue. At any rate, the Foreign Minister is said to be considering a change of front in Japan's approach to Batavia. Instead of insisting upon the demand as an economic one, the Japanese are hinting that they might shift the demarche on to the political plane. In short, the Dutch East Indies may be "invited" to join in the "co-prosperity sphere" which is Japan's version in Asia of Hitler's New Order in Europe. To such an approach, we fancy, the Dutch negative will be even more emphatic, especially if they are openly supported, as they should be, by this country.

Work Or March

President Roosevelt's executive order taking over the North American Aviation plant at Los Angeles is the most decisive step the Administration has taken to end the epidemic of strikes in defense industries. In effect the President has told the Inglewood strikers that they must go back to work on reasonable terms or lose their privileged status as defense workers under the Selective Service Act. The plant is now under control of the Secretary of War, and it may properly be said that the Government has taken this segment of the aviation industry under its protective custody. Thus the strike is necessarily broken, for no group will be permitted by public opinion or legal authority to carry on a strike against the Government in time of national emergency.

It is noteworthy that the President has taken precautions to avoid depriving the striking employes of any basic rights while remaining firm. "Their fundamental rights as free citizens will be protected by the Government," according to his statement, "and negotiations will be conducted through the process of collective bargaining to reach a settlement fair and reasonable to the workers and to the company." Meanwhile full protection is being granted to those who return to work. Any who fail to return will lose their classification as essential defense workers under orders sent out from Selective Service headquarters yesterday to local draft boards. Thus the Administration is putting into effect a modified form of President Wilson's famous "work or fight" policy during World War I. and by this token shows that it intends to meet the strike menace with the same courage and strength. This is a welcome sign. For the irresponsible agitators directing the strike at Inglewood had defied their leaders as well as the National Defense Mediation Board and, in crass indifference to the national security, had even resorted to force in keeping a vital defense plant closed. No government could let such a challenge pass without endangering its own foundation.

Fortunately, Government control of the plant is likely to be temporary. It will be turned over to private management again as soon as the President determines that it can thus be operated in conformity with the requirements of national defense. Presumably Federal control will continue only until the new agreement is worked out and reasonable assurance is given that production of war planes will not again be delayed. By such a policy the national interest can be protected with a minimum of encroachment on private rights. Almost as important is that Congress shall be brought into this picture in the effort to establish industrial peace in defense industries. In the executive order of yesterday the President failed to cite the specific authority under which he acted. Last week he suggested passage of a bill to give the Executive, among other sweeping powers, authority to take over defense plants paralyzed by strikes. His words led many to assume that he does not now possess such authority, and that assumption is naturally strengthened by the vague reference in the executive order to constitutional and statutory powers. There is no reason to keep on by-passing Congress in meeting problems of this sort, especially when Congress seems eager to pass additional legislation to insure a steady flow of war materials.

Petain Forgets

The proclamation issued by Marshal Henri Philippe Petain to the French forces in the Near East is, to say the least, a pitiful document. The aged marshal may be convinced that he is telling the truth when he declares that: "Today is the first time that French sovereignty in the Levant has been threatened." But all the facts point to the contrary. French sovereignty over Syria and Lebanon was threatened and to all intents and purposes disappeared when the French armies surrendered to the Nazis and the Vichy regime agreed to an armistice with the Third Reich. Since then France and that part of the French Empire which remained loyal to Vichy have been subject to Hitler's orders.

That was bad enough. The situation definitely became worse when, as a result of Admiral Darlan's deal with the Fuehrer, Vichy agreed to a program of wholehearted collaboration with the Nazis for the purpose of bringing Hitler's "new order" into being. But since that "new order" could have no fundamental reality as long as the British remained in the field, the underlying meaning of the Darlan-Hitler deal was that Vichy France was henceforth prepared to join forces with Germany against Great Britain.

It is hardly surprising, then, that British and Free French forces have moved into Syria. They would have been justified in doing so even if there were truth in Marshal Petain's vehement denial of the presence of any German soldiers in the mandated area. For, given the strategic importance of Syria and Lebanon with reference to the struggle in the Near and Middle East, the ultimate military occupation of the mandated area by the Axis could be taken for granted. And, indeed, the preliminary moves in the direction of such an occupation were already under way when the British and their De Gaullist allies struck.

To assert, as does Marshal Petain in his proclamation, that the French in Syria are "the object of a deeply unjust aggression" is to distort the meaning of words. This will be shown by events. For there are indications that by no means all the troops to whom the marshal counselled resistance will obey his orders. Many of them must be perfectly aware that in fighting the British and their fellow Frenchmen of the De Gaulle movement they would be helping not France but Germany, not the cause of freedom but the cause of slavery.

It is for this reason that, despite communiques issued in Beirut which tell of the "brilliant" defensive measures taken by Gen. Dentz's forces against their former allies, the British and Free French forces appear to be making steady progress in their march into Syria and are now approaching Damascus.

In counselling the army of the Levant to resist, Marshal Petain is doing precisely what Adolf Hitler wants him to do. That is not the least tragic aspect of the tragedy of France.

Age For Draftees

There appears to be general agreement that at present men in the upper age groups ought not to be drafted into the Army. The only question at issue is what precisely should be the age limit for deferment and whether that limit should be set by law or left to the discretion of the President. The Senate Military Affairs Committee has answered these questions by approving a proposal authorizing the President to defer all men 28 years and over, and writing the age limit into the bill which they are considering. Brig. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, deputy Selective Service director, had indicated that a top age of 27 years would probably be fixed for active service if the matter were left to executive determination. So it would seem that no great difference of opinion exists in respect to the proper deferment age. However, a good deal of opposition will undoubtedly arise against proposals for fixing the deferment age by law instead of leaving it to executive discretion. While legislative action has the advantage of enabling registrants to lay their plans for the future with more assurance than they otherwise would, the setting of the deferment age by law would introduce an undesirable rigidity into the Selective Service system. It is conceivable that conditions might arise which would call for speedy changes in the rules governing deferment. Prompt action can only be assured by giving the President latitude within the upper and lower limits set by the Selective Service Act to decide where to draw the deferment line. It seems only reasonable that he should have that power.

Toll Line

Chairman Fly, of the Federal Communications Commission, who is involved in an acrimonious controversy with the two leading broadcasting networks, had a pleasanter subject upon which to talk in announcing the agreement whereby the American Telephone & Telegraph Co. is to reduce long-distance rates. Mr. Fly cited the agreement as an example of what can be accomplished when Government and industry sit around the conference table in an atmosphere of mutual respect and good faith. No doubt the harassed chairman of the FCC spoke feelingly. But, with all due respect to him, the negotiated agreement in regard to long-distance rates is hardly a major achievement. The A. T. & T. had been ordered to show cause why these rates should not be reduced and, on the basis of its earnings record, it would have had great difficulty in doing so. For the net income from toll operations jumped from about $20,000,000 in 1938 to over $27,000,000 in 1940. Controversial problems of regulation, moreover, lie ahead when the FCC has completed its studies of methods used by the A. T. & T. in arriving at rate bases, the cost of furnishing telephone service, depreciation practices, rate of return, and similar questions connected with rate making. At the same time the success which has hitherto attended FCC efforts to negotiate reductions in telephone tolls greatly increases the chances of an amicable settlement of future issues involving basic questions of rate-making.

BROKEN SONG

Why should I grieve that under blowing grass
You, who were all my love, are quiet dust?
The glory has but passed, as all things pass:
The flame has sought its source, as all flames must.
Have I not noons, and high tides of the sea?
Hills, and blue morning glories when I wake?
All summer's roses blossoming for me,
And swaying honeysuckle vines to take?
And there are brooks, and every bird that sings:
Fragrance and touch of purple grapes to know:
The taste of cherries, and the thrill of wings,
And these—the dearest—rain and trees and snow.
For me the dreamy apple blossoms drift,
For me the bright October maples burn . . .

So days—sufficient unto self—the swift
Mercurial mind. The heart is slow to learn.

New Leadership

I read your editorial criticizing Col. Lindbergh's call for a new "leadership." This was followed a few days later by one in similar vein by Dorothy Thompson. It seems to me that both of you are straining the meaning of the word "leadership," straining the interpretation to mean that Col. Lindbergh called for a change of leaders. It would seem too obvious that Col. Lindbergh could not have meant a change of leaders, for we all know, and certainly Col. Lindbergh knows, that that cannot be done for some years yet. It was easy to knock down that scarecrow that you set up.

While I violently disagree with Col. Lindbergh's thesis as to American participation in the war, I heartily agree that this country does need desperately a change in "leadership." For instance, such a change as President Wilson went through from his attitude when he told the country to be neutral even in their thinking, to the one in which he led us into war.

Look back upon the "leadership" in this country to last summer and the President's statement at that time that Congress could well go home, to his complete silence in respect to strikes for so many months, and his failure to unite the country spiritually in the defense effort, and his failure to produce the material for defense in an effective way. Look to his declaration of business as usual, that social gains must be retained, which, of course, include the wages and hours law, look to his quiescent attitude at spiralling wages, and therefore spiralling costs. All this, capped by his fireside chat, and its failure to clear confusion in the public mind or to slow up strikes, has seemed clearly to indicate that a new "leadership" is needed and desperately needed. To think otherwise is to take on a Pollyanna attitude of mind—all leading to our following the pattern of the enslaved countries of Europe—"Too little and too late."

For Real 'Sportsmanship'

In a recent letter to The Post, Pat Allen pats America on the back for being a country where clean sportsmanship is the rule, and where the athletic arena supplants the blood-soaked battlefield. This is cause for gratitude, and a determination that it shall remain so as long as "we, the people" can continue to do or say anything about it.

But in one respect the picture your reader paints is inaccurate. The great American standards of sportsmanship in athletics and other fields are still stained by the indefensible practice of barring negroes from many contests, and stupidly segregating them in others.

Let us not boast too freely of our "sportsmanship" until we are ready to extend some of it to our colored fellow citizens.

American 'Fish-Fry'

A wise Chinese ruler once said, "To govern a great state one should do it as a cook fries small fish, that is, without scaling or cleaning them." Unfortunately, the New Deal for almost a decade adopted the opposite idea, having removed the "golden" scales from corporate bodies while literally "cleaning" the American taxpayer. As a most natural consequence we are at present involved in fiscal disorder of the first magnitude.

Conservative and balanced minds agree that if intelligent methods are adopted the waste can be checked. Inasmuch as the Government has embarked on a stupendous defense program, isn't the time ripe to devise ways and means to combat unnecessary costs with the view of making ends meet? This can and must be done in order to forestall ultimate disaster.

"Blackout"

Other cities have experienced blackouts, but why does Washington have to have one every night? What has happened to our street lights recently? Why are they not turned on until 20 minutes after dark every evening?

This stupid practice has been continuing since early spring; in fact the worst evening of the late winter, Friday, March 7, when Washington was visited by the only snowstorm of the winter, our more than half a million citizens groped around on their way home in the utter darkness with no street lights until 6:30 o'clock, at least fifteen minutes after darkness had fallen on the city.

Several times recently the Fire Department has raced through the streets of northeast Washington in this miserable darkness, and had some child or grown-up been killed, because of this stupid practice, 14 investigations would have been started the next day, with your money and mine, to ascertain wherein the fault lay.

When a number of crimes were committed in the early hours of the morning, just before dawn, several years ago, Congress had to be appealed to to allow the street lights to burn longer, and now it is evident we must appeal to Congress again to have these street lights turned on at the proper time in the evening.

Just what does Congress think of our beautiful city? We have officials in our District Government who cannot be trusted even with the childish task of turning the street lights on and off at the proper time? How in the name of common sense can they be entrusted with the more responsible tasks that must confront them in the running of the District government?

Life Expectancy

When Pasteur first advanced new theories as to disease control, spectacled doctors still believed in "spontaneous generation." As a result of Pasteur's labors, medicine has largely been canalized into prevention of disease based upon research in bacteriology. As a result, human expectancy of life has been so increased that it is now practically double in intellectual Sweden what it is in backward Hindustan.

Some medical experts say we can hope for practically no further gains in increasing life expectancy. However, those of us who have been watching the tremendous advance in human genetics are convinced that further strides will be made through similar control of inherited diseases. In a democracy, progress in thus prolonging human life is dependent upon each citizen educating himself to eugenics.

Oil Shortage

I see that Mr. Ickes has decided that there is a shortage of oil, so we have got to go without gas on Sunday and freeze to death the rest of the week. In the same report he says that we are shipping 60,000 to 70,000 barrels a day to Japan, so I cannot see that there is any shortage of oil. Why cannot we have the oil and let Japan freeze?

Later in the article he says that the trouble is not a shortage of oil but a shortage of transportation and then suggests that we use coal. If there is a shortage of transportation I cannot see why we cannot transport oil just as well as we can transport coal.

We do not mine any coal in New England and it has got to be transported.

I think the thing for Mr. Ickes to do is to get busy and hire some good oil and transportation men and see that we get oil. THOMAS FISH.

Comments On 'Property Seizures'

In The Post of June 5 I read with appreciation the editorial entitled "Too Much Power," in which you stated that the bill to grant unlimited power to the Government to seize private property gave too much power to the Government and should be amended. I agree that no property owner under this legislation would be safe, but why stop at amendments when it would be equally easy to kill this vicious legislation? Experience has shown that legislation and amendments are being interpreted by our Administration and our New Deal courts in a manner that was not intended by Congress, so it is time that Congress put a halt on all power-granting legislation.

Certainly this bill grants too much power, but it is only one of a long series that have been granting undue powers to the Administration, until today it is a question whether the people and the States enjoy the rights guaranteed to them by our Constitution and our Bill of Rights. In fact so far has the granting of powers by Congress to the Administration gone that one sees serious discussions in the press as to the power of the Administration to wage war in distant countries, when everybody knows that Congress alone has the right to declare war; the fact that this discussion is taking place clearly reveals that already too much power has been granted by Congress, so why grant these additional powers which are a direct threat to every property owner in the United States?

It seems that these powers are claimed to be necessary, so that the Government can hold the threat of seizure over any industry that, on account of strikes or other causes over which the industry may have no control, may not be able to meet the production demands of the Government. This is doubly vicious in that it is known that our Administration has always favored organized labor, and it would be only too easy for these elements to cooperate in creating strikes for the purpose of making it possible under this legislation for the Government to seize the plant. This indeed would place all American industry under the fear of vicious labor leaders who would claim all control over production in all factories or else call strikes so that the Government with its Ickes, its Hendersons, its Hopkins, its Perkins, and its other incompetents, could take control. When this may be happening to big industries it would be silly for the small property owner to believe that he could escape the tentacles of this grasping octopus.

No, this bill should be killed promptly and effectively. Once made into law, it would hang as a sword of Damocles over the head of every property owner for years to come. Recent history has shown that the New Dealers are avaricious for power and are not willing to give up any power that they may be able to push through a Congress that seems to be inclined to surrender its own and the people's rights to an Administration that has shown little efficiency in coping with the depression but great efficiency in creating one emergency after another, in wasteful expenditure of public funds, and in keeping the public in a state of alarm.

The Post Impressionist

La Barrymore

Miss Barrymore draped herself, arch but enticing, on a wicked-looking sofa. Her leading man (a fascinating rake) poised his left knee dangerously on the sofa's edge. Epigrams were flying sharp and fast, and Miss Barrymore reared back to deliver the punch speech, which begins, "Ah, yes, my dear Charles! But to a woman, love is both a necessity and a luxury." (If you insist on being literal, I doubt if you can find this particular line in the script of "The Love Duel." But after ten years, these exact words ring clear and sweet in my memory.)

In all the current rash of reminiscence about Ethel Barrymore, I've missed this one important item—perhaps an essential item to the well-rounded Barrymore saga. Admirers have pawed dreamily through old photographs and stitched up columns of nostalgic prose in celebration of her fortieth year behind the footlights. But I've noted no reference at all to L'Affaire Lake Charles.

You may recall that Miss Barrymore went on tour in the early '30's with a dramatized "Scarlet Sister Mary." The road didn't care for Barrymore in blackface. So by the time her company reached Lake Charles, La., she was giving the one night stands "The Love Duel," a minor Broadway success of the previous season.

The little opera house in Lake Charles is old, drafty, and inclines to baroque carving and dust-encrusted gilt. The play, if you remember, has to do with a stylish, thirtyish lady of unmistakable charm and uncertain morals. Miss Barrymore gave the part everything, with a red satin decolletage and a long cigarette holder. That night in Louisiana, the first act of this high-falutin' business went swimmingly. Lake Charles' drama lovers were lapping it up.

It happened toward the end of Act II. Miss Barrymore was smiling enigmatically and taking a deep breath to toss off the "dear Charles" quip when feet started stamping the floor in the second row orchestra. A high hysterical giggle launched an undercurrent of feminine panic.

A mouse was at large, and most of the audience caught on right away. So did Miss Barrymore.

The stage was silent for 30 seconds . . . 45 seconds . . . .

Audience morale, even among those in the thick of it, remained noticeably high; ladies scrambled to sit on their feet as inconspicuously as possible; the gentlemen gallantly tried to murder the mouse without being ill-bred or noisy about it.

I wish that all of Miss Barrymore's many admirers had been present. She was no less than magnificent. Maintaining the voluptuous pose, draped across the sofa, she simply twisted her head and looked out at the disturbance with interest. There was no nonsense of pretending that nothing was wrong. Nor was there petulance or prima donna hauteur, either. She just seemed curious.

I never actually saw the prompter, but I see him clearly now as a small, red-eyed man with a tobacco cough. I see him standing back in the wings, grimly clutching his script, unstrung at first by the ever-lengthening silence on the stage, telling himself in final panic that Miss Barrymore had blown up in her lines.

The voice from the wings was audible throughout the theater. "Ah, yes, my dear Charles," the voice suggested, "but to a woman, love is——"

The stomping and gasping and giggling went in a wave up the second row orchestra and down the third.

The eyes of the leading man had never left Miss Barrymore. His handsome profile had congealed. The stage ached with quiet for that slow count of 25, until the urgent voice from the wings suggested for a second time: "Ah, yes, my dear Charles . . ."

If Miss Barrymore was annoyed, she put on one of the greatest performances of her career, and you can have your "Declassé" and "The Constant Wife." She had abandoned play-acting, and was frankly engrossed in the crisis of the second row orchestra.

The prompter, counting slowly, must have reached 25 for the third time when some swift-footed gentleman caught the mouse under his heel, lifted up the remains, and began making his way unobtrusively toward the box office. Miss Barrymore's brooding eyes followed the young man with interest, step by step up the aisle.

The jittery ladies got themselves in hand and the audience grew suddenly still. This time the voice from the wing, edged with hysteria, had no competition as it shouted, "Ah, Yes, My Dear Charles . . ."

During the split second which theatrical folk dismiss as "timing," the Barrymore eyes flickered casually over the orchestra, noting at their leisure that all was well.

But first, there was a small social obligation. The r turned in a complete half-circle to face the prompter's w g and made a low, gracious bow. Don't ask me how she managed this from a semi-reclining position. She just did, that's all. "Thank you very much," she called clearly, in that sweet, rich voice, as she bowed toward the helpful wing.

Then she turned briskly to the leading man and gathered up all the scattered threads of plot with a swift, sure nod. "Ah, yes, my dear Charles," she began. And the familiar line was oddly fresh and spontaneous. There wasn't a snicker in the house. HILLIS MILLS.

Today And Tomorrow

The Strategy To Defeat America

LIPPMANN

WHILE WE are debating whether we mean to do what we have said we are going to do, Hitler is acting rapidly to outwit us and to block us. We have announced that we shall manufacture weapons and help get them delivered to the British Isles. The great objective of Hitler's campaign in the Mediterranean is to defeat this policy before we actually decide to make it effective.

Knowing that the combined industrial power of Britain and America and their combined naval power are sufficient to neutralize the German navy and to prevent the German army and air force from winning the war, Hitler is moving with all possible speed to offset American intervention by obtaining the use of French, Italian, and Japanese sea power. Our power is naval power. The purpose of the Mediterranean campaign is to get possession of the French Empire, to liberate the Italian fleet, and to induce Japan to enter the World War. Then, when we do decide to do what we have said we shall do, he confidently expects that he will have in his hands the ships and the strategic bases to checkmate us.

THE CONQUEST of the Mediterranean is the only way open to Hitler, who lacks a navy, to conquer the British Empire. As long as the British fleet is in the Mediterranean, Hitler can never be sure that his agents and his dupes in Vichy can really compel the French Empire to obey his orders and serve him effectively. But if he can drive the British out of the Mediterranean, he can occupy French Africa, he can capture the French navy, and he can establish himself in force in the French ports on the Atlantic.

At the same time, if he drives the British out of the Mediterranean, he makes what is left of the Italian navy—and there is a good deal left—available for commerce raiding in the Atlantic or in the Indian Ocean. Finally, if he drives the British out of the Mediterranean, takes Suez and the entrance to the Red Sea, he may persuade Japan to attack Singapore from the east while he threatens to attack it from the west.

THIS GENERAL strategical plan has a very fair prospect of success if the British have to fight alone both in the Atlantic and in the Mediterranean. Their naval forces and their merchant shipping are not sufficient to serve the British Isles and the Middle East and the Far East. Undoubtedly the residue of truth in all the rumors that have been spread abroad recently is that unless the British know promptly whether we are going to intervene in the Atlantic, they may have to take the very grave decision of concentrating their forces for the final defense of the British Isles. If the British did have to take this decision, there is no doubt whatever that the French Empire would go over lock, stock and barrel to Hitler, and with it, Spain and Portugal. After that, and with Japan more than ever incited to action, the protection of the Western Hemisphere would be for us a desperate defensive.

The success of this campaign depends upon a gamble—but a very sound gamble from Hitler's point of view—that we shall not use our naval power to defeat it before it is too late. The British are not yet driven out of the Mediterranean, the French Empire is not yet joined to the Axis, the French nation is not yet the ally of Nazidom. The combined sea power of Britain and the United States is still greatly superior to that which Hitler can muster; it is quite capable of winning the Battle of the Atlantic not only in the sense of seeing that munitions are delivered to Britain but in the larger sense of seeing to it that Hitler does not get the French, the Spanish, the Portguese bases and the French fleet and the use of the Italian fleet. The combined naval power of Britain and America is sufficient now to hold the control of the Atlantic and keep the Axis landlocked in Europe. But if the British have to give up the Mediterranean, and the French Empire and fleet are captured, the situation will be very serious indeed.

WHAT IS HAPPENING to France is a conclusive demonstration of what the defeat of Britain would mean to the United States. Marshal Petain, like so many Americans today, thought that if he surrendered to Hitler, he could then retire into neutrality. But in fact France is compelled not merely to desert her ally but to turn against her ally; to be defeated in this war is not to retire from the war but to be pulled over to the other side.

Those Americans who innocently advise the British to make peace with Hitler ought to realize from the example of France that what they are advocating is something that is a deadly danger to America. For the only kind of British government that can make peace with Hitler is a British government on the Vichy model, and such a government could only hope to get concessions from a victorious Hitler if it collaborated with him against the last free government left on earth. Since the Western Hemisphere is the greatest prize of empire that there is, it is obvious that the collaboration of Hitler with a British Darlan must be carried out at the expense of the Americas. And therefore, those who are working to force Britain to sue for peace are, whether they realize it or not, striking a mortal blow at the security and the vital interests of America.

The Once Over

By H. I. Phillips

1941 Baccalaureate

Gentlemen of the Graduating Class:

What can I say to you when I am as stumped as you are, perhaps even more so? How can I advise you on what lies ahead when I, too, am only guessing? How can I expect you boys to accept my opinions on the deeper significances of the hour when I've changed my mind a dozen times in the last three minutes?

Let me be frank with you and admit at the outset of this 1941 baccalaureate address that we are merely observing a tradition, carrying out a custom and filling a program. The difference between this year and others is that rarely before have we done it in so thick a fog. Once a baccalaureate speaker was regarded as a sage, a philosopher and a guide. Today he knows—and you know—that he would be the tallender on a program of quiz kids.

Once it was the fashion to scan the horizon, pierce the future and point the way. At the moment the world is in such a mess I cannot tell a horizon from a tightrope, the future has a sign on it reading "Closed Until Further Notice," and trying to point the way is like trying to make Mystic and Lexington on a merry-go-round horse. Let the theme of my speech today be "I Give Up."

Last year I could have said you were lucky to live in America. This year I am not so sure of that. There is every indication that you may be merely swapping class numerals for a serial number, exchanging your tennis rackets for rides and turning in your football suits for Army regalia. Indeed, the next signals you hear called may be from within an Army tank; and to be on the second eleven may presently mean that you merely jump out of a plane after the other 11 boys have done so.

I do not know what you boys think of me, and your elders in general, as you sit here today and regard me with what strikes me as a very critical eye, but no matter how tough your verdict is I do not blame you. What your elders have done to this little old planet is a sight to behold, and we have what I might vulgarly call a hell of a nerve to stand here and advise you now. All I ask is that you have a heart and try to understand that I would rather be elsewhere, TOO!

I can't even maintain a straight face and tell you education is a wonderful thing this time. There has never been more education. The world stands on a new high level, so far as learning is concerned . . . And look at the darned thing! The airplane is a product of brains, and it is destroying great cities and killing little children. The tractor is a product of education, and it has become the super tank in the sickening parade of panzer divisions. The ignorant savage never had a submarine, and I will give an extra sheepskin to any member of this graduating class who can show that the aborigines ever dreamed of bombing maternity wards from the skies.

Sometimes I wonder if the world has not grown too smart and whether we shouldn't refuse to graduate any young man who shows promise as an inventor. At this moment I am filled with a clammy sensation as I realize that among you gentlemen about to step out into this cruel world there may be a youth who may become a topnotch chemist. It makes me shiver to realize that I may be looking into the eyes of some boy who is a genius at aeronautics.

The very thought that a so-called civilized and intelligent world can get itself into the shape it is in today makes me feel that what we need more than anything else is a 20-year course in abysmal ignorance, with special honors for any boy who is excessively stupid. But I am being too frank. Let me get back to my original subject. What was it? I pause for a reply, and I don't get it. Nobody knows what I had in mind. That makes it unanimous. I thank you. You will now step out and let the janitor sweep up the buildings for next year's classes, if any.

Washington says the feet of draftees today are bigger than those of 1917. Or else those Army shoes are much tighter.

It will embarrass Mr. Roosevelt when gasless days force him to realize that the trip back to the horse and buggy has come under his regime.

The White House Debate

ALSOP

THE CLIMATE of the President's mind is all-important in these times. The decisive hour of the war is approaching with relentless speed. The country must act boldly and promptly to meet the Nazi menace. Only the President can give the lead. If he waits too long the end will be disaster. Thus even the most trivial indication of the President's intellectual weather is of absorbing interest.

An indication by no means trivial is a report of the President's customary answer to the advisers now urging him to act at once. The report comes from two independent and highly authoritative sources. As it is thus cross-checked, it may be depended upon far more than most reports of this sort.

THE REPORT is that when urged to act, the President always recurs to the case of his former chief, Woodrow Wilson. President Wilson, he points out, was far better placed when he led the Nation into the first World War. A succession of incidents, in which American lives were taken and American property was lost, had inflamed public opinion over many months. The debate on the armed merchantmen bill had revealed an almost united Congress. There were only 12 in the little band of willful men whose Senate filibuster forced Wilson to arm the merchantmen on his own authority. In the end, when Wilson went to Congress and requested a declaration of war, he could be certain that every dissident voice would be drowned out by the roar of enthusiasm from a truly United States.

Against the case of Wilson, the President then lays his own. While admitting he can count on majority support, and by crystallizing public feeling may make the majority extremely substantial, he remarks that the unshakable minority is both well-organized and hysterically violent. This minority, he adds, is enough larger in Congress than the opposition to Wilson to carry on an interminable and highly dangerous filibuster against proposals for action of any sort. Resort to Congress is useless. Therefore, he says, he cannot act without the pretext of an incident, preferably a German attack on an American ship in the Atlantic, which will pull the country together and simultaneously permit him to order the Navy to fight back.

THE PRESIDENT'S reasoning is undoubtedly correct. The only trouble with it is its lack of relation to the war situation. Those of his advisers who have enough essential guts to argue with the President have answered his argument very simply.

They have agreed that the risks of immediate action are very great. Although it seems certain that Germany can be beaten by Britain and the United States fighting in full partnership, dependable predictions of the future are impossible. Naturally, entering a major war is risky in itself. Furthermore, although it also seems probable that determined action by the President would pull the country together, no one can be positive that serious national disunion would not ensue.

On the other hand, these men have pointed out that the risks of further delay are infinitely greater than the risks of action. The decisive hour is at hand. If the hour is allowed to pass, Germany will win the war, and mastery of the world. In a Nazi-dominated world, the United States will be subjected to political and economic pressures that cannot be withstood. The destruction of the decencies and liberties for which this Nation stands, the subversion of our system of government, and perhaps even the loss of our independence, will be the inevitable results.

THE PRESIDENT agrees that these are the alternatives, but still clings to the hope that his problem will be solved for him by the incident he so much desires. It would be more difficult to see why he does so, if there were more men having regular access to him with the essential guts to bring the alternatives rudely and regularly to his attention.

Unfortunately, while still performing many of the needless routine tasks that exhaust him, the President no longer discusses general policy with many members of his Administration. He sees extraordinarily few people except on specific business, and when he does see such officials as Secretary of State Cordell Hull or Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson, he sticks to the business in hand. And while Harry L. Hopkins and the President's one or two other familiars have a proper sense of the terrible urgency of these days, they are not the sort to press their chief unduly.

CONSEQUENTLY, while convinced of the need for action, the President has not acted. Before he acts, according to one of those who have known him best and longest, he has first to make up his mind on the facts, and then "To wake up one morning with the feeling inside himself that he wants to do the job." He passed the first stage long ago. In the last week, Ambassador John G. Winant has returned from London to spur the President on, and several other persons with great influence over him have had the opportunity to echo Winant's arguments. Perhaps certain minor but spectacular measures will have been taken even before these words are printed. And if Winant is really successful, before long the morning will at last come when the President wakes up with the needed "Feeling inside himself" to make a complete commitment.

Mexican Picture

By Glen L. Swiggett

Labor And Defense

THE MEXICAN political scene since the inauguration of Avila Camacho last December is confusing. Certain proposals of his administration will undoubtedly lessen the influence of Lombardo Toledano's labor organization, C. T. M., largely responsible for the social-economic reform program of the preceding administration of Lazaro Cardenas. But C. T. M. is supporting, outwardly at least, the President, in spite of these challenging proposals which would replace communal lands by small peasant holdings; restore large-scale farm and industrial properties to former or similar corporation management; remove from organized labor, especially in government, groups suspected of communism; and weaken the power of C. T. M. in the Mexican Revolutionary Party.

One wonders why C. T. M. has not protested these proposals. Delay in doing so may be due to pre-election commitments or post-inaugural compromises. Lombardo T., however, is a trained lawyer, and may be biding his time. Nevertheless, he is confronted by obstacles which he easily could have hurdled under President Cardenas. The resurgence of the old ally of the American Federation of Labor, is one. Under Cardenas this rival organization almost faded out of the Mexican labor picture. It has just been announced, however, that the earlier Pan American Federation of Labor, planned by Samuel Gompers and Luis Morones, secretary of labor under President Calles, will hold a reorganization meeting, probably in Mexico next month. C. R. O. M. will represent Mexican labor at this conference. It is not likely, however, at this late hour, that the Morones federation, even with the favor of the President, will ever replace C. T. A. L. Lombardo Toledano's Latin American Labor Federation, at least in the Mexico-Bolivia bloc. But they might merge. Only recently C. R. O. M. and C. T. M. have entered into agreements that speak well for Mexican labor leadership.

THE RECENT VICTORY of the C. I. O. in the workers' poll at Henry Ford's River Rouge and Lincoln plants will undoubtedly strengthen the labor leadership of John Lewis and Lombardo Toledano, labor allies in the Caribbean and West Coast countries where, through C. T. A. L., local organizations accept the labor ideology of Lewis and Lombardo T. The pre-election challenge of Lewis to President Roosevelt met with no outspoken opposition in Latin America, since labor's dislike of personalism in public office outweighed regard for the President's earlier social reform legislation.

C. T. M., an advocate of Mexican defense by Mexico, has not been so definite on the subject of hemispheric defense under the Havana Declaration. C. T. A. L. has expressed the fear that the United States will attempt "to take advantage of the European conflict to strengthen the bonds of imperialism."

Lombardo Toledano's 12 questions, relating to Mexican preparedness and hemispheric defense, put to Avila Camacho May 31, are, in this connection, illuminating. They are at the same time somewhat perplexing, in view of the President's lengthy, but guarded reply on the following day. This answer is not conclusive, although it should be comforting to C. T. M. with respect to defense and any alienation of sovereignty or territory incident thereto. The President definitely assured organized labor that here was no secret pact between Mexico and the United States; that their collaboration was only the result of a mutual defense understanding, and in no sense a military alliance. To question is to doubt, even to object. It may well be, therefore, that Lombardo's questions concerning foreign policy to the Mexican President were intended as labor's veiled protest against proposals that imperil social-economic gains for which C. T. M., under the Cardenas government, was largely responsible.

AVILA CAMACHO either believes in the Havana Declaration or is trying to conduct foreign affairs to meet pre-inaugural promises. He told Mexican labor on the eve of his inauguration that "there is no use in killing the goose that lays the golden eggs." The reference is obvious. By his appointments, in particular of Ezequiel Padilla as minister of foreign relations, he showed that the first step of his administration was to win the friendship of the United States Government, under great strain since March, 1938. His friendly gestures, however, cannot be depended upon without the reconciliation of Mexico's domestic policy, based upon labor's demands for the continuance of the Cardenas social reform program, with what labor considers Avila Camacho's conflicting foreign policy.

Satisfactory politico-commercial relations, including even defense, between Mexico and the United States depend upon convincing organized Mexican labor of the good intentions of the United States Government. After commendable spade work it would, indeed, be tragic if misunderstandings should now prevent the growing friendship between these two countries from coming to fruition.

Speaking Of Freedom

PEGLER

I HATE to seem intelligent and reasonable, and perhaps you will vindicate me of any such seeming when you have read this, but it does strike me that we have put too many bricks in the hod in promising to establish all those beautiful freedoms, forever, everywhere in the world. That is a terrible overload which we never can tote up the ladder. These freedoms can never be established in this world until all the nations and peoples are united in one great brotherhood of the human race, and one of the most reliable ways to start a fight in our own country is to propose that.

Accompanying the instinctive star-spangled pop on the nobe which would greet this suggestion you would hear something old and familiar about a Popish plot or something newer just as angry, and probably from me, about the dirty Communists. Christianity, logically, is nothing but this great, loving brotherhood of all the peoples of our little world, but the human breed is far from the day when national and racial boundaries will be obliterated and a man will be a man among his brothers wherever he finds himself on earth, living strictly by the word of Jesus Christ. And, even if communism were good, the Americans with their faces worn nude and their habit of washing and bathing, wouldn't like it, if only for the final reason that it has been brought to us by a lot of hairy Russians who smell pretty high, tell lies about everything and say the most scandalous things about God, whom we profess to love, but whose teachings we follow at a distance measureable only in light years.

NOBODY BELIEVES that we have any intention or even a popular desire, to say nothing of the ability, to establish all those freedoms everywhere and the worst of it is that we don't even believe it ourselves. We know in our hearts that we have no more right to inflict freedom on the German people than they have to impose Hitlerism on us, and that if we should go to war under that device Hitler would only have to yell, "To arms, boys! Those goofy Americans are coming to liberate us again."

I just don't believe the Germans or the Russians, and they take in a great deal of territory and population which we would undertake to emancipate, have any appetite for freedom, and it would be perfectly all right with me if they should continue to belt each other over the head with wagonspokes and solemnize their massacres and famines within their own territory until they get bloody well sick of it and try some other way. I feel sorry for the Italians, because they do have their pride, and anyone who doesn't like Italians socially, without necessarily crooning over them, is missing something pretty good. But Italy is not our country, and time is long and Italians have plenty of future in which to work out their troubles.

And while it certainly makes a fellow sore to see what the Germans have been doing to their other captives, a recent peek into an old Congressional document giving the minority report on the investigation of the original Ku Klux Klan reminds me that only 65 years ago and a few years before, we Americans of the Northern tier were doing pretty much the same to the people of the defeated and destitute South. We thought up more deviltment to humiliate, persecute and rob those Southern people, a marvelously brave and durable foe in war, and our own national and personal kin, than any of us are likely to remember now, if we ever knew. We sent among them some of the dirtiest grafters and common thieves that the human race ever has produced to its shame, and Hitler himself couldn't outclever some of the nasty and remorseless ingenuities by which we taxed their property away and sneered their human and civic rights out of existence. The wonder is not that the Southern politician and the patriot waved the bloody shirt as long as they did but that the Southern people ever did have the bigness of soul to forgive, forget and co-operate again. It wasn't only the awful, malicious brutality of what we did so much as the repulsive character of the swine whom our Government selected to do it, all of whom, incidentally, had good, sound, Anglo-Saxon or Aryan names, and never a Ginsburg or a Cohen among the whole foul kaboodle.

WE CAN'T shrug that performance off, as though our kind of people would never be capable of that sort of thing again, because it all happened within the life of many living Americans, and the character of the human race or a people doesn't change that much in that span of time.

Well, so what?

Well, so at least this: That our task is to defeat a military and economic national enemy solely for selfish nationalistic reasons of security and prosperity just as we would undertake to lick another great free republic for the same reasons if it ever came to that.

Beyond that, they can worship Hitler if they want to worship Hitler or kiss a pig if they want to kiss a pig, which would be all one to me.

But we do sometimes talk the damndest sentimental bushwah to open our pores and lather ourselves up for situations that are nothing more nor less than practical questions of life by fighting or death by surrender, and I hope this finds you well this lovely summer day.

House Committee Approves Deep Cut in WPA Funds

By the Associated Press

A reduced relief appropriation of $885,000,000 for next year was approved yesterday by the House Appropriations Committee which voted also for retention of present restrictions on WPA, such as that forbidding employment of aliens.

The total was $95,000 below what President Roosevelt recommended for the 12 months beginning July 1, and was 25 per cent lower than the current fund. The committee said the cut would necessitate a reduction in WPA employment from an average of 1,300,000 this month to 941,315 in July or August.

In addition to trimming WPA's request the committee allocated $50,000,000 of the total to the Agriculture Department for extension of the food stamp plan, and called for a $10,000,000 cut in the $50,000,000 fund now available to WPA for paying wages higher than usual to workers on defense projects.

But at the same time, the committee gave "hearty commendation" to continuation of the WPA defense training program which it said had enabled more than 30,000 workers to fit themselves for private jobs.

President Roosevelt and Howard O. Hunter, WPA Commissioner, had proposed a series of revisions in the relief law, including removal of the ban on employment of aliens and the requirement that persons on the rolls for 18 months be dismissed to make room for others.

Rejecting these suggestions, the committee said:

"The WPA is not a permanent service. It is an emergency activity for the temporary relief of unemployment. Every sound reason to reduce it and every restriction that will operate to prevent abuse should be availed of."

In this connection, the committee urged WPA administrators "to bend every effort to find private employment" for those on the rolls to make room for still others.

It reduced this year's $44,500,000 for WPA administrative expenses by $9,694,000, or 20 per cent, and refused to place WPA administrative employes under civil service.

Women Report Steady Progress In Home Missions

Steady progress of home missionary enterprises was reported at yesterday's sessions of the annual convention of the Women's General Missionary Society, United Presbyterian Church.

Mrs. Arthur B. McBride told of the work among the Indians at Tama, Iowa, and Spokane, Wash.; Mrs. Ada Kent Wilson described the program being conducted for Negroes in the South, and Mrs. William S. Cook emphasized city mission projects. Mrs. Cook is general home missions secretary.

Delegates enjoyed a tour of the city, followed by a tea and reception at River Road United Presbyterian Church in the afternoon. They will elect new officers this morning, as the conference ends at Wallace Memorial United Presbyterian Church.

Lindbergh Denies He Hinted At Overthrow of Government

By the Associated Press

New York, June 9.—Charles A. Lindbergh, spokesman for the America First Committee, said today that any statement that his recent speech in Philadelphia was directed toward President Roosevelt was untrue.

Lindbergh said that his call for a "change in leadership" was aimed at interventionists—"the leadership of the opposition which we (the Nation) have been following in recent months."

"Neither I nor anyone else on the America First Committee advocates proceeding by anything but constitutional methods," he said.

Lindbergh's remarks were made in reply to a telegram from William E. Moore, managing editor of the Baltimore Sun, received at the committee's office which said:

"Since you recently began using the phrase that the America First Organization is 'seeking new leadership in Washington,' it has been noted that other foremost speakers for the America First Committee are using the same phrase. Gov. La Follette used it here in his speech last night (Thursday). The Sun would be glad to print your explanation of the meaning of this phrase, and how a new leadership could be set up under our constitutional form of government before the next election."

Lindbergh replied:

"In reply to your telegram of June 6, my reference to the need for new leadership applied to the leadership of the interventionists which the Nation has been following in recent months.

"This is obvious if you read the paragraph of my Philadelphia address in which I asked, 'is it not time for us to turn to new policies and to new leadership?' In many press reports my question was removed entirely from its context. Neither I nor anyone else on the America First Committee advocates proceeding by anything but constitutional methods. It is our opposition (the interventionists) which endangers the American Constitution when it objects to our freedom of speech and expression. Under the Constitution, we have every right to advocate a leadership for this country which is non-interventionist and which places the interests of America first. This is, in fact, the primary objective of our committee. We believe that a non-interventionist and fundamentally American leadership is of vital necessity to the security and welfare of our country."

USHA Approves 110-Home Project At Fort Belvoir

Work is expected to start immediately on a new defense housing project which was approved yesterday by the United States Housing Authority. The project is for 110 homes for families of Army enlisted personnel at Fort Belvoir, Va.

The contract goes to C. B. Ross Co., Inc., New York City, on a bid of $354,102. It calls for frame construction of one-story twin houses and group houses of four dwellings each. The work is expected to be completed in four months.

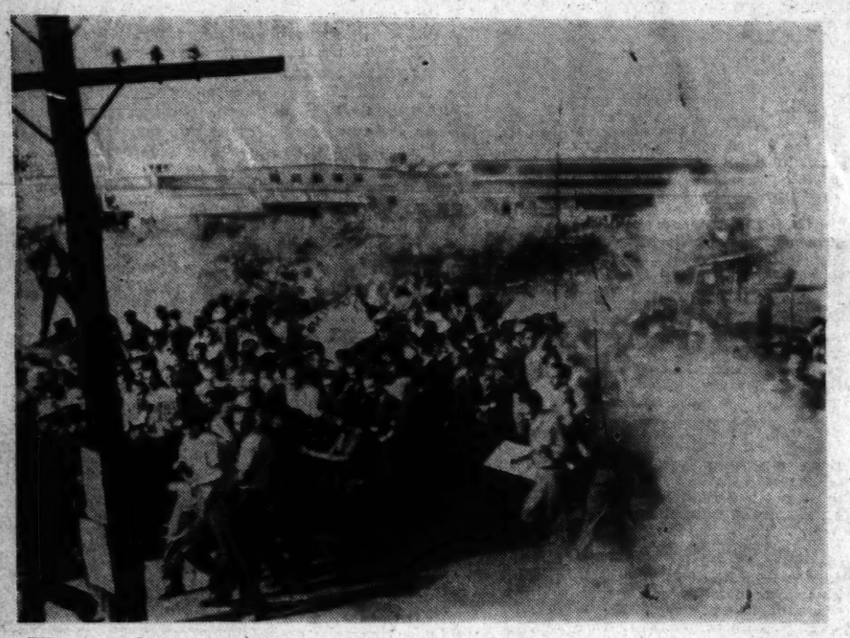
Pickets Fall Back as Army Breaks Strike—Advancing with bayonets fixed, United States Army soldiers clear a field across from the North American Aviation plant, in Los Angeles, of striking C. I. O. workers and pickets. The commanding Army officers on duty at the plant notified President Roosevelt that the strike had been virtually broken. Thes flag at left was seized from a striker by a soldier, but an officer quickly st epped in and returned it to the striker



Tear Gas—Before the Army arrived, a shoving mass of C. I. O. pickets blocked the way of nonstrikers attempting to resume work as the plant's gates were opened yesterday. Tear gas bombs hurled from the factory broke the picket line

Commanding Officer's Statement As Army Breaks Aircraft Strike

By the Associated Press

Los Angeles, June 9.—The text of the statement by Lieut. Col. Charles E. Branshaw in taking over the North American Aviation plant in the name of the Government:

By authority of the President of the United States and in compliance with orders of the Secretary of War, I am this day taking over in the name of the Government the plants and activities of North American Aviation, Inc.

BRANSHAW

My instructions from Washington are to take immediately all steps necessary to protect workmen desiring to enter the plant, those leaving the plant and in their homes, and to take such other additional measures as may be needed in the interests of national defense.

Effective immediately, the plant will be opened for work under Government control. Employes desiring to return to their jobs will be given all necessary protection to insure free and safe entrance to and exit from the factory.

The proper civil authorities are giving full cooperation to the extent of their ability in the enforcement of local, State and Federal laws and in any additional steps deemed essential and authorized by the national emergency powers of the President.

I ask all law-abiding citizens in this community to assist authorities and employes in the exercise of their duties and their privilege to return to work.

Under Government control, employes of North American Aviation will not be coerced or intimidated to return to or remain in the plant. At the same time and to the extent possible under the law, no person or organization will be permitted to coerce or intimidate any individual who desires to return to work, nor will any action, calculated to delay, hinder or endanger national defense production in the plant be tolerated.

Bill Cunningham's Column: Conn-Louis Bout May Be 'Leg Show'

MUSCLES TAUT, CONN SKIPS ROPE

By Bill Cunningham

In his Pompton Lakes fitting academy young Mr. William Conn, the palpitant Pittsburgher who will endeavor to tease, tear and torment the colored champion, Joe Louis, into official defeat in New York's next big ball yard opera on the evening of June 18, weather permitting—and don't crowd, gents—is leaving his boxing mostly in status quo and working overtime upon his gams, or legs.

That forecasts an extremely dreary evening for customers possibly, but it's strategically as keen as a new razor blade on a cold winter morning. There's nobody in sight now who can beat Joe Louis with fists. A sufficiently skilled journeyman might beat him with legs.

The gentleman who essays the job will have to bring a couple of other items up onto the rostrum with him to be sure. He'll need a left hand that has some of the snake in it, and yet can stiffen and jolt occasionally with at least an approximation of the surprise and shock a gentleman receives when he suddenly runs headon into a wagon pole.

He'll, too, have to bring his own refrigeration system, and it'll have to be sufficient to keep him at all times as cool as an orchid in a florist's icebox. Given these and a pair of those whalebone legs that can mount the bicycle and bank the curves, a flaming will to win, a plenitude of endurance, the ability to roll with a punch and to take a solid one every once in so often without splashing into the tank without benefit of spring-board, and you have one type of aspirant who "can take Joe Louis."

Louis Power New for Conn

The interesting part about Conn is that he has most of that upon the evidence of his previous encounters, mostly, however, with large blobs of fistic futility. He's never met a Louis, nor anything even approximating a Louis. Compared to the voltage the champion will pour down through his mitts, previous belts that have caressed the Conn features—and they're very handsome features—will remind him more of the soft warm kiss of some affectionate child.

But ol' Joe jes' ain't natchelly got much of a pickup to his getalong. Some of the boys always have called him Shufflin' Joe in honor of his plantigrade stance, and he's not picking 'em up and putting 'em down now as fast as even he used to—which never was what you'd call fast.

The lighter and cleverer combatant has used legs before. Corbett did against Sullivan, as has already been noted. Tunney did against Dempsey. Those who saw it will never forget the aging Jack, his own once magnificent legs no longer there, stopping, licked, in that silly looking back-pedaling foot-race with Tunney after the latter arose from that famed "long count," and motioning for Tunney to stop running and fight, the very motion being confession that Dempsey couldn't catch him.

The greatest feat I ever saw a truly great pair of legs acomplish in this type of endeavor was turned in by the powerful underpinning of the Frenchman, Georges Carpentier, the night Tunney beat the former Poilu almost to the original protoplasm without being able to knock him down.

Nothing Left But Legs

All of Carpentier was dead but those powerful legs. His body bent limply forward from the waist as if his spine had been shattered. His useless gloves hung open on nerveless hands almost, but not quite, dragging the floor. His encarnadined face was but a ghastly cartoon of what normal features should be. Tunney, the job obviously tasteless, had free and unobstructed throws at a sodden and limp-necked target. It's doubtful that Carpentier could have heard a bell or even a cannon.

He was as dead as a haddock 2,000 years old—all of him was, that is, but those powerful legs. They kept walking . . . walking . . . walking, the nerveless body above them swaying and swinging. But they wouldn't buckle. They didn't seem to know how to stop. That's what had produced this ghastly situation.

SPARRING, CONN PLANTS A RIGHT

The man wasn't fighting. Still he obviously wasn't down. The referee didn't seem to know how to proceed. Obviously he'd never been called upon to adjudicate anything like it. Finally even the sports writers were screaming at him, "For God's sake, stop it." The crowd took up the cry. Tunney had been pleading for quite a while, but of course his request couldn't exactly be called unbiased.

The referee finally snapped out of the trance, the horror, or whatever froze him and did stop it, and they led not a man, but a pair of legs, to a corner.

Conn's a gone gosling if he gets punched that hard, but, with what he has to top them, a real pair of legs might run him through this one in a vertical condition. He's following a proper procedure, and if, as he promises, he'll "carry the best pair of legs into the ring any challenger ever had," Mr. Louis had better roll his artillery up early and be sure of the range.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Bride of Four Months Is Unhappy Because Husband's Favorite Pastime Is Visiting His Family; Should She Grin, Bear It, or Try to Wean Him Away From Them?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am a young wife, 21 years old. My husband is 25. We have been married four months, and during this time a problem has come up that I don't know how to cope with. My husband works nights until 10 o'clock and has Saturdays and Sundays off. On weekends and holidays he feels we should spend the whole time with his family. And while I think it's fine that he loves his family so much, I would rather we had more leisure to ourselves. I would like to go dancing or to a show with him occasionally, at his suggestion. I have often broached the idea, but I always get "turned down."

For instance, we stayed home last Saturday night because he had a slight cold and wanted to "break it up." Then we spent the whole day Sunday with his family. I had told him earlier that I wanted us to go to our minister's home, as he was having "open house." My husband said, "All right, we'll go." But about 5 o'clock in the afternoon, at his parents' home, half a dozen members of the family started playing poker, which is a favorite amusement when the family gets together.

The game didn't break up until about 7:30—and then my husband asked me what time the minister was having open house! I was in the worst of moods by then, and I asked to be taken home. I felt then, as I have felt before, that I deserve more consideration from my husband than being left to entertain myself, with magazines or newspapers, while he plays poker with his family. But judging from his actions, he seems to think I am a puppet, who can be taken up and put aside at will.

What am I to do? Sit around twiddling my thumbs while he plays poker with his family? Stay at home and let him go to them? Or resign myself to the situation and grin and bear it? Except for this one complaint, we get along beautifully. We have known each other for several years and I am sure this problem is not so serious that we can't straighten it out, with your help. I might add that we have been living with my people, but we are moving into our own place, this weekend. Please give us your advice.

JEAN.

Husband Is Straining Against His In-Laws

DEAR JEAN: The fact that you young newlyweds have been making your home with YOUR family, ever since you married, probably has had a lot to do with your husband's tiresome insistence on spending most of "your leisure time together" with HIS people. And it is reasonable to hope that, by moving into your own place—as you are doing this weekend—you will automatically slip into a more self reliant and satisfactory social routine.

I imagine that, without your seeing it, your husband has been somewhat uneasy about, and perhaps even embarrassed by, his "in-law" status in your household; that he has never been really comfortable there; has never felt that he actually "had a home" since he married. And, therefore, that it has been a great relief and safety valve to him to get back to the old familiar surroundings of HIS home background every weekend, where he can—as he might say—"take his hair down and be himself."

Also, it's possible that he has seen you making much of—and being made much over—by your family; so that he has had a vaguely wretched feeling of being a "fifth wheel" in the picture; and has been, with unconscious resentment, somewhat definatly asserting HIS possession of loving family; so that he has had a to HIS folks" your main recreation.

It is fortunate, indeed, that you are getting into your own place this weekend. It is high time you did so, and I believe, as I have said, that it will prove to be the heaven-sent solution of your little conflict. Once in your own home, be on your guard, yourself, against promoting frequent visits to, or from, your family. Since you disapprove of your husband's too-close association with his folks, set him the more independent example you wish him to follow.

When on your own, away from your family, quietly take the lead (which is every wife's business) in gradually working up a lively, "young-marrieds'" social program, for yourself and your husband, that will keep you, as a couple, more in touch with friends your age, than with your respective line-ups of relatives. For instance, instead of waiting for your husband to invite you to go dancing or to a show, lay plans for a foursome excursion with another couple, and ask your husband to set the date, in advance, as to when he can go.

Or when you know a certain movie or stage show is coming to town that you want to see, let him know you are setting aside, say, Saturday evening or Sunday afternoon to see it with him. Plan ahead, with friends, for Sunday afternoons at golf or motoring or sightseeing trips—or for Sunday breakfast entertaining, etc.

In other words, "manage" your husband into the discovery that he can enjoy himself away from his family. "Educate" him into the habit of beauing you about, once or twice a week. Because, now that he's won you, it's likely he never again will take the intitiative in "entertaining" you, as he did in the days when that was his one excuse for seeing you. It's your turn, now, to take the lead in planning social entertainment for both; and if you take that lead, in a diplomatic but sure-handed way, he is sure to fall in line and be glad that he married such a good companion.

'Garbage Can Jewelry' Sets A New Style

Credited to Miss Gretchen Shaw, art instructor, the innovation is sending girls to the kitchen whenever they feel the urge for new costume jewelry.

Painted corks and bits of old leather become floral cut-out belts. A handful of tiny evergreen cones becomes a coat ornament. A bag of fancy-cut macaroni becomes a bracelet. Necklaces are fashioned from beautiful pink beans.

Miss Shaw christened the "garbage can jewelry" after a girl produced a novel two-strand necklace from cantaloupe seeds. One strand was left au natural, the other was carmined with fingernail polish.

"The bean and macaroni necklaces have become so popular," says Miss Shaw, "that you can find good imitations in the five-and-tens."

Nylon Makes Debut for Evening

Nylon, which made its debut this season in the field of textiles, has become the No. 1 glamour fabric of the year. It is featured above in a sheer marquisette weave that is unusually clear and fragile looking. This filmy, chiffon-like fabric admirably lends itself to the draped bodice. The straight, full, double-fold skirt is carried out in the old-fashioned treatment. It is a combination of light pink or flesh and black—the latter forming the outer skirt and very effective over the soft pink. In addition to its sheer beauty, it has such practical qualities as unusual strength, easy dry-cleaning and nonsagging

Frequent Shampoo Not Harmful to Movie Stars' Hair

Hollywood, Calif.—The very fact that the beautiful hair of screen actresses is so universally admired should forever lay the ghost that frequent shampooing is harmful.

"It couldn't be," is the contention voiced by Joan St. Oegger, Perc Westmore's ace hairdresser. "I've seen a young player come into the department with drab, stringy hair and after a few months you wouldn't recognize it."

According to Joan, the daily shampoos and natural drying process are actually beneficial to the texture and health of the hair. There isn't a hot suction dryer in the place, she tells us. Mr. Westmore doesn't believe in quick, scorching dryers that bake the scalp and result in split ends, dandruff and a dull, grayed condition.

"When a girl's hair is inclined to dryness," Joan says, "we use a special formulaed dry cleaner in place of soap and water. And everyone has a hot oil treatment once a week.

"Nor are heavy waving lotions used to set even the most intricate arrangements. We merely set the hair immediately after the wet shampoo or use a light waving fluid after the dry shampoo. Occasionally, for the stylized coiffures, such as Marlene Dietrich's for "Manpower," a light lacquer is sprayed over the hair.

Brushing is important. If any of the girls neglect it at home we make up for it with fifteen minutes of sturdy brushing before the hair is washed."

Watch Your Dots In Buying Dress Or Laundering It

With fashionists insisting that oversized polkadots are smart, don't forget that little item of proportion. For nothing is very large or very small except in relation to something else that is larger or smaller.

Polkadots the size of a dollar are very smart on the tall, slim woman. But these dots make the small, plumpish woman look like the circus balloon man. On these women polkadots the size of a quarter are big enough to convey the impression of oversized dots without making the wearer ridiculous. Very small women will find polkadots the size of a dime give them this oversized effect.

And, while studying the size of polkadots in relation to your own size, the American Institute of Laundering, which does scientific research for professional laundries all over the country, suggests that you look very carefully into the construction of these polkadots, especially in your washable dresses.

Although many of the dots featured in our current fashions are woven right into the material, or printed on it, some of the smaller patterns may be printed with substances that melt and smear when the fabric is ironed. And a smeared polkadot is as unattractive as faded patterns.

Feminine Foot Ills Find Ease In Exercises

By Ida Jean Kain

IT SEEMS high heels are the Achilles' heel of a woman's vanity and it wouldn't be too far out of line to say that as a result there are about 100 women to every man with foot trouble.

But, just to even things up, the men are in the majority when it comes to having "lifts" put in shoes for extra height.

The explanation for feminine foot aches given by T. O. Day, shoe expert, is this: High heels throw a woman off balance so that she comes down on the ball of the foot and, usually, throws her weight to the inner border, which is the weakest position of the arch.

To offset this mechanical inefficiency, it is suggested that exercises to strengthen the arches be taken seriously. It is good exercise to stand barefoot on a towel and pick up folds of the material with the toes.

Go Barefoot in Sand

Since the muscles along the back of the calf are continually contracted in wearing high heels, these muscles are in need of stretching exercises.

You can combine footwork with a leg stretcher in this exercise: Stand 10 or so inches away from the wall, facing it, with palms of hands on the wall about chest height, fingertips touching. Have your feet pigeon-toed. Keep the knees and back straight. Hold all those positions as you slowly bend your elbows and lean toward the wall.

Once will be enough for a starter. After a few days, begin to increase until you are repeating five times.

Another good leg stretcher is to sit on floor, legs straight out in front, feet together, bend forward at waist, and grasp the toes, pulling them toward you. Relax and repeat five times.

Standards for Exercise

If you decline to take on any more exercises, you might like to invest in a pair of the new foot exercise sandals. These are flat, wooden soled sandals and so constructed that you are compelled to flex your aches and grip with the toes to produce the flapping sound that tells you they are beworn correctly.

Women will never give up their high heels and will continue to have that characteristic downhill walk. But the back should be kept straight and balance established by a slight forward inclination at the hips. This makes a much more attractive picture than letting the hips jut out and the small of the back cave in.

Most of the women who demand to be made taller are models or actresses, who must increase their stature to the 5 feet, 8 inches that seems to be the style in these careers.

How tall a man wants to be depends, I am told, on how tall his best girl is. The Napoleon of industry can add a good two inches to his actual height by having "lifts" built into his shoes, and nobody need be the wiser. In some instances, the build-up may be even greater.

'Doing Up' Curtains Easy When Simple Rules Are Followed

A really fastidious homemaker wouldn't trust her best friend with washing her woolens or her curtains, though more know how to care for woolens than understand how to "do up" curtains properly. A good laundry knows how to do the job right, but lots of women don't.

The first place to be careful is when you buy the curtains—if they aren't of proper quality, they won't stand up under washing. Check that when you buy them. If they are rayon ninon, they'll take special care, but they'll look so pretty you won't mind that . . . the main warnings here are to use tepid water, mild soap flakes and an iron, that's not too hot . . . ironing them when they're damp-dry and stroking lengthwise of the fabric rather than across it to make it hang right. Curtains with buckram in the headings or with fancy pinch pleats have to be dry-cleaned.

With cotton curtains that have a firm, even weave, the job is simpler. Use soft water at a high level and a heavy lather of mild suds, never letting the temperature of the water get above 90 or 100 degrees Fahrenheit in either suds or rinse tubs. Usually it's better to put them through two suds baths, and three or four rinsings. Don't wring them by twisting, but they can go through the wringer on the washer safely. Don't starch marquisette or theatrical gauze curtains unless they have ruffles, then just starch the ruffles.

Lace curtains with ruffles will hang better if ruffles are starched a little more than the main part of the curtain. Don't ever starch ball fringe. To adjust curtains on stretchers, fit one end first, then adjust other end and sides so they are smooth but easy—if they're too tight, they'll be strained and wear out more quickly than they should. Don't include ruffles on stretchers. When dry, touch up curtains with iron and iron the ruffles.

For Strong, Graceful Legs

For the woman who wears high heels, here is an exercise that will do wonders toward stretching the calf muscles in the back of the leg. Movie Actress Lucille Fairbanks uses a rod to aid her keeping-fit campaign. Lying on the floor, she passes her feet back and forth under the rod. This exercise helps to relieve the muscles along the back calf of the leg that are contracted from wearing high heels.

Needlepoint Designs Due To Come Back

By Elizabeth MacRae Boykin

WE'RE constantly being startled to realize how completely war changes every detail of our lives.

The needlepoint we used to do nearly all came from Vienna—remember? So when Vienna was blacked out, as far as the rest of the world was concerned, it caused a great furore among needlepoint importers.

The foremost designer of the lovely things we used to get from Vienna fled her beautiful city and has been in this country making plans for a new group of patterns—she's being very secretive about it so far but we understand that they're going to be wonderful.

For weeks now we have been trailing mysterious tidbits of news about them but the line has not yet been shown.

In the meantime one of the leading decorators has sponsored a provocative exhibition of needlepoint by a Frenchman in America, Marcel Vertes. These are fanciful, often fantastic, in conception but always delightful. The flowers have little faces, and such things as white kid gloves and graceful hats are worked into the designs.

New ways of using needlepoint are suggested too — for mirror frames and clock borders, for boxes and lamp bases and table tops under glass . . . along with the always appropriate chair and bench covers.

Needlework is an old and regal art—court ladies in the once-upon-a-time whiled away their hours at it, for then few women could read and they were shut up within castle walls much of the time with the men off to the wars.

We owe to their boredom our thanks for many traditions of fine old needlepoint and tapestry. Not even modern machines and modern technical skill has been able to equal such work, and so it is still worth a lady's time — a pastime that produces heirlooms.

Clare Boothe, the playwright, has another good reason for needlepoint—she says it keeps her from talking too much!

Count Calories To Reduce

JUST TEN short weeks go by—but what a change in Miss Puffy's figure! Her low-calory diet melts away 20 of those unsightly pounds.

At the start she can't even squeeze into a size 40 play suit, but at the end of her diet she's a slim-hipped, slim-legged outdoor girl.

Calories, you see, are the fuel in food. If you take more than you use, you gain. But if, for a while, you eat foods with fewer calories than you need then your system burns up that storehouse of pounds.

When you eat such heavy-weight dishes as banana and nut salad (300 calories), chocolate soda (375), and cup custard (300), you add a total of 975 calories to your day's menus.

But you can be calory-wise about your selections and still enjoy mealtimes—and "snack times." A salad of tomato stuffed with cottage cheese (80), lemonade (72), sponge cake (100) have only 252 calories among them.

And on your diet you will begin to feel as peppy as a young girl. Look at your calory chart and you'll see there many low-calory foods also famed for their vitamins. String beans are only 45 calories a cup, half a cantaloupe, 50.

'Debs of Tomorrow' Get Diplomas at Foxcroft

By Hope Ridings Miller

"Diplomas today, and debuts tomorrow." That's probably what a number of sweet young things, swathed in filmy white organdy, lace or chiffon, thought yesterday when they stood in line at fashionable Foxcroft School, Middleburg, Va., to receive their diplomas from Miss Charlotte Haxall Noland, head mistress.

HOPE RIDINGS MILLER

Earlier, they heard William C. Bullitt, former U. S. Ambassador to France, deliver the commencement address; and the entire company knew he spoke with special feeling, for his own daughter, Anne Bullitt, was among the graduates. And from all over the country had come a number of prominent persons to attend the exercises.

The company assembled in the gardens of Foxcroft, where the ceremony took place. Later, an informal reception and buffet supper rounded out the program for the day; and later last night a number of the graduates were accompanying their parents back home.

"Watch the graduating list at Foxcroft every June, and you'll have a good idea Who's Who in the deb crop for the months that immediately follow." This dictum has been faithfully observed for a number of years; and at least half of those in yesterday's group already have completed plans for their debuts either this summer or next autumn.

Miss Bullitt will lead off the list on Thursday of this week when she steps out under the aegis of Mrs. Frederick Sterling, wife of the U. S. Minister to Sweden, to make her bow to Washington society at a mammoth ball at the Sulgrave Club. Her formal debut ("Really, my only debut," she says) will take place later this month when her father entertains at a large dance and supper at Meadow Farm, his estate near Pennilyn, Pa.

But yesterday, pretty Miss Bullitt didn't have all the spotlight. Not by any means. She shared honors with more than 20 other girls, whose relatives and friends looked on proudly. There was Miss Averill Penn-Smith, daughter of Mrs. Plunkett Stewart, of Unionsville, Pa., niece of Averill Harriman and granddaughter of E. H. Harriman, who founded the Orange County Hunt. Miss Penn-Smith, acclaimed the "most popular" girl in her class, also has won numerous awards as a horsewoman.

Also among the graduates was Clare Brokaw, daughter of Mrs. Henry Luce (Clare Boothe), the latter of whom was among those present at the exercises. It seems Miss Brokaw takes after her mother in matters literary, and the past year she has edited Tally-Ho, the school magazine.

Nandine Szechenyi Receives Diploma

Miss Nandine Szechenyi, daughter of Countess Laszlo Szechenyi (the former Gladys Vanderbilt), of Washington and Newport, was among those receiving a diploma; as were Miss Frances Clow, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kent S. Clow, of Lake Forest, Ill., and Miss Edith Sayburn, of Grosse Pointe, Mich., whose mother, Mrs. Wesson Sayburn, and whose aunt, Mrs. Isabel Dodge Sloane, were among those witnessing the ceremony.

Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Firestone, of Akron, Ohio, were there to see stone, receive her diploma; and their daughter, Elizabeth Fire- Mr. and Mrs. Carl J. Schmidlapp (he's vice president of Chase National Bank) were on hand to see their daughter, Miss Jean Schmidlapp, get hers.

Miss Noland also had the pleasure of handing over a diploma to her niece, Miss Rosalie Noland, of Birmingham, Ala. Others in the graduating class included Miss Helen Bruce, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Bruce, of Baltimore; Miss Diana Gambrill, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Gambrill, of Peapack, N. J.; Miss Kitty Van Pelt, Philadelphia; Miss Maizie Cadwalader, of Port Washington, Pa.; Miss Isabel Russell, of New York; Miss Adelaide Cole, of Corning, N. Y.; Miss Barbara Harpley, of Southampton, Long Island; Miss Bettina Dilworth and Miss Augusta Jones, of Sewickley, Pa.; Miss Edith Sharples, of Haverford, Pa.; Miss Kitty Wickes, of Baltimore; Miss Sally B. Moore, of Birmingham, Ala.; Miss Nancy Redmond, Miss Marion Miller and Miss Cynthia Howe, of New York; Miss Hannah Sullivan, of Philadelphia; Miss Mary Jane Derby, of Charlottesville, Va., and Miss Romaine Pierce and Miss Cornelia Robb, of Boston.

Seabiscuit Owner Among Those Present

Among those attending the exercises were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Howard (he's the owner of Seabiscuit), whose daughter, Mimi Howard, is a pupil at Foxcroft.

The fete as a whole wrote another colorful chapter in the history of a school that long has been considered one of the most fashionable in the country. Dixon Wecter, in his excellent book, "The Saga of American Society," included this illuminating paragraph:

"To enumerate all social criteria known in the United States would be well-nigh impossible. There are fashionable tailors, automobiles, perfumes, furs, magazines, cocktails, styles of letter paper. And, of course, conventions. Did anyone in society ever dot an 'i' with a circle? Except perhaps during her first year at Foxcroft, Farmington, Westover, Miss Chapin's or Miss Walker's—for these are the topmost girls' schools." Socially speaking, of course.

In a setting of palms and fern at the All Souls' Memorial Church yesterday afternoon, Miss Marguerite du Pont Lee, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cazenove G. Lee, jr., became the bride of Ensign Walter Butler Mahony, jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Butler Mahony, of Scarborough-on-Hudson, N. Y. The Rev. H. H. D. Sterrett officiated at the ceremony.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of antique ivory satin fashioned with a tight bodice and full sleeves of rosepoint lace. Her lace veil, which fell from an orange blossom coronet, was made of two panels of heirloom lace. The wedding gown and the veil have been worn by three brides in the Mahony family. She carried a shower bouquet of white orchids, stephanitis and sweetheart roses.

Miss Patricia Arnold, of Greenwich, Conn., a cousin of the bride, was her maid of honor. Her yellow and green plaid organza skirt was set off by a long-sleeved blouse of yellow silk jersey with which she wore a green-veiled trimmed white straw hat. The bridesmaids, Miss Marion Smith, of Simsbury, Conn., Miss Rebecca Lee, Mrs. Robert Whitelaw Wilson, and Mrs. Leland Scott Brown, of Bedford Village, N. Y., wore dresses similar to that of the honor attendant. They topped their plaid skirts with blouses of green silk jersey and carried arm bouquets of white snapdragons, larkspur and carnations.

Walter B. Mahony served his son as best man, and the ushers were C. Clothier Jones, jr., of Philadelphia; Gilbert H. Mudge, James L. McConaughy, jr., of New York; Robert Whitelaw Wilson, Leland Scott Brown, of Bedford Village, N. Y.; L. Vandegrift Lee and Richard H. Lee, brothers of the bride.

The bride attended Vassar College and her husband was graduated from Amherst College. They will make their home in Washington.

Among the out-of-town guests at the wedding and at the reception which was held at the home of the bride, were Mr. and Mrs. Edgar H. Arnold, of Greenwich, Conn.; Mr. and Mrs. Colin Gardner, of Middleton, Ohio; Rear Admiral and Mrs. Lamar Leahy and Mr. and Mrs. B. Hugh Saunders, of Paterson, N. J.; Mr. and Mrs. Maurice du Pont Lee and Mrs. Alfred I. du Pont, of Wilmington, Del., and Mrs. Elise Packard, of Baltimore.

Minister Casey And Wife Give An Informal Dinner

The Minister of Australia and Mrs. Richard Casey entertained last evening at another of the informal dinner parties they are giving this season. The ranking guests were the Brazilian Ambassador and Mme. Martins.

The Minister will leave tomorrow for a week's plane tour of the United States from east to west, and north to south. He will fly first to North Carolina to speak at the annual potato festival at Elizabeth City, then back to Washington and New York. From New York, he will fly to Los Angeles to speak at the California Institute of Technology.

He will then return East, stopping at Chicago and Boston and going on to Lewiston, Me., where he will receive the degree of doctor of laws from Bates College. He will be back in Washington June 17.

Ordnance Officers' Wives to Meet

In order that the wives of officers in the Ordnance Department of the Army may get to know each other better and may meet the wives of ordnance officers here on reserve duty, a luncheon will take place today at the Army-Navy Country Club.

The committee responsible for organizing the affair is headed by Mrs. John B. Bellinger. The other members of the committee are Mrs. Alfred B. Quintan, jr., Mrs. Burnett R. Olmstead, Mrs. Arthur D. Elliott and Mrs. Paul M. Seleen.

Senorita Boyd Is Honored At Luncheon

Senorita Lillian Somoza, daughter of the President of Nicaragua and Senora de Somoza, entertained at a luncheon at the Shoreham yesterday in honor of Senorita Lola Boyd, daughter of the former Ambassador of Panama and Senora de Body.

Both hostess and honored guest are leaving at the end of next month to return to their homes in Central America. The luncheon, however, was not a farewell affair. It was to celebrate the acquisiti onby Senorita Boyd of a master of arts degree from Maryland University in Spanish and French literature.

The guests were Senorita Christina Michels, daughter of the Chilean Ambassador and Senora de Michels, Senorita Matilde Pastoriza, daughter of the Minister of the Dominican Republic and Senora de Pastoriza, the Senoritas Laura and Beatriz Recinos, daughters of the Minister of Guatemala and Senora de Recinos, Senorita Elena Castro, daughter of the Minister of El Salvador and Senora de Castro, Senorita Leda Fernandez, Senorita Eugenia Sosa, neice of the Ambassador of Ecuador and Senora de Alfaro, Miss Dolly Legos, Iagos, neice of the wife of the Minister of Nicaragua, Senora de DeBayle, Miss Marth Watts, Miss Amy Watts, Miss Sky Phillips, Miss Marie Taylor, and Miss Anita Cajigas.

Helen Coburn Plights Troth

Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Henry Clay Coburn, jr., of Fort Bragg, N. C., announce the engagement of their daughter, Helen Kerr Coburn, to Lieut. Carl Kenneth Warren, jr., U. S. A.

The bride-elect was graduated from Holton Arms in 1937, and she received her degree at Duke University, Durham, N. C., on June 2.

Lieut. Warren, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl K. Warren, of Okelika, Ala., was an honor graduate of Auburn University, class of 1936.

The wedding will take place this summer.

Van Swinderins Ranking Guests At Heweses Party

The former Netherlands Minister to London and Mme. Van Swinderen were ranking guests at a dinner given last evening by Clarence Hewes at his home on Massachusetts Avenue. The guest of honor was Mrs. Edmund E. Richardson, of New Orleans.

Arriving here several days ago, Mrs. Richardson has been visiting Col. and Mrs. Kemper Williams, who entertained at a dinner for her on Saturday evening. Mrs. Richardson is the former Miss Eleanor Bright, daughter of Mrs. Edgar H. Bright, of New Orleans and Hot Springs, Va., and is widely known in Washington. She will leave tomorrow for New Orleans.

Annette Grosner Wed to Wahrburg

At a ceremony last Friday afternoon in New York, Miss Annette Grosner, daughter of Clarence W. Grosner, of Washington, was married to Theodore H. Wahrburg, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard G. Wahrburg, of New York.

The Rev. Dr. Samuel H. Goldenson of Temple Emanu-El performed the ceremony in the Jansen Suite of the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel.

Fetracom Club Honored at Davies Barbecue Supper

At a combination "field day" fete and reception, rounded out with a barbecue supper followed by a motion picture, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph E. Davies entertained more than 200 guests at their Foxhall Road residence Sunday afternoon and evening.

The party was arranged in honor of Fetracom, the organization made up of members and the staff of the Federal Trade Commission. Mr. Davies was the first chairman appointed to the Federal Trade Commission in 1915 by the late President Woodrow Wilson. And since that time, he has taken an active interest in the Fetracom Club.

Helen White Married To Carl Krogmann

Mr. and Mrs. Malcom H. White announce the marriage of their daughter, Helen Geraldine, to Carl Francis Krogmann, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl A. Krogmann.

The ceremony took place February 3, 1940, in Hagerstown, Md. The couple, who are now in Florida on a trip, will make their home here at 4400 Fourteenth Street Northeast.

Invitations Issued

Mr. and Mrs. Barge L. Hartz have issued invitations to the wedding reception of their daughter, Bette Hartz Kendall, and Harry Frederick Duncan on Saturday, June 14, at noon at the Columbia Country Club.

Notes of Society

Official and Residential

Senator and Mrs. Charles O. Andrews, of Florida, returned to Washington yesterday after spending ten days at Winter Park, Fla., where Rollins College conferred on Senator Andrews the honorary degree of doctor of laws. They also visited their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Charles O. Andrews, jr.

J. Ronald McCrindle, former manager and director of the British Airways, and Mrs. McCrindle have taken an apartment for the season at Alban Towers. Mrs. McCrindle is Susan Ertz, the author.

Countess Laszlo Szechenyi has issued invitations to a luncheon on Thursday.

Mrs. George Mayo, wife of Col. Mayo, has issued invitations for a tea to be given tomorrow in honor of Miss Margaret Frances Heileman from 4 to 6 at 50 Woodmont Road, Belle Haven, Va. Miss Heileman will be married to Lieut. George Mayo, jr., in the near future.

The former Governor of New York and Mrs. Alfred E. Smith are passing a few days at the Shoreham.

Mrs. and Mrs. Stanley O'Connor entertained Sunday afternoon in their Westchester apartment in honor of Mr. and Mrs. William MacArthur, of Los Angeles. Mr. and Mrs. MacArthur will be at the Shoreham Hotel for a few days before going on to New York to attend the wedding of the former's brother, Duncan MacArthur, June 18.

Mrs. Leo Kasehagen is the guest of her son and daughter-in-law, Dr. and Mrs. Leo Kasehagen 3d, in Tamaqua, Pa. She will return to Washington in a few days.

Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Zane are going to Hanover, N. H., this week to attend graduation exercises at which their grandson, George J. Seel, will receive his degree from Dartmouth College. Mr. and Mrs. Zane will spend several days in Hanover before returning to their apartment at the Shoreham.

Col. E. W. Cowan, of Fort Bragg, N. C., is at the Martinique.

Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Lust, accompanied by their daughter, Miss Geraldine Lust, are on a trip to the West Coast and will make an extended visit in Los Angeles before returning home.

Miss Ramirez de Arellano, Richard C. Durham Engaged

Two of the oldest families in the Americas will be brought together in a few months when Miss Zorahayda Ramirez de Arellano, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfredo Ramirez de Arellano, of Puerto Rico, becomes the bride of Richard Claiborne Durham, of Washington and Fairfax, Va.

The engagement has just been announced, and plans are being made for the ceremony to take place in the late autumn or early winter. The prospective bridegroom is the son of Mrs. M. T. Farr, of Richmond and Fairfax, and the late Richard Thomas Durham. He is a direct descendant of William C laiborne, who was appointed the first royal secretary of the Colony of Virginia in 1620, and of W. C. C. Claiborne, first Governor of Louisiana.

Mr. Durham, a native of Richmond, attended the Columbian College and George Washington Law School here and Columbia University in New York. Formerly a member of the administrative staff of the Secretary of the Treasury, he is now acting secretary of the Democratic National Committee.

Miss Ramirez de Arellano was born in San German, Puerto Rico, and attended the Sacred Heart Convent in her homeland. She also attended Georgetown Visitation School nad Fairmont School here, and Hollins College in Virginia. The Ramirez de Arellanos, a very old Spanish family, first came to America in 1523 when Don Antonion Ramirez de Arellano was appointed governor of Puerto Rico, succeeding Ponce de Leon.

The wedding will take place in San German at the Porticello Monastery Chapel, oldest church in United States territory.

Nancy Buckingham, Henry T. Snowden Are Engaged

Of interest in Washington was the announcement made by Mrs. Charles Benedict Buckingham, Watertown, Conn., of the engagement of her daughter Nancy to Henry Taft Snowden, of New York. The prospective bridegroom, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. George H. Snowden, of Sewickley, Pa., is a grandnephew of William Howard Taft.

The betrothal was made known at a tea given by the bride-elect's mother at Watertown. Miss Buckingham attended Miss Porter's School, Farmington, Conn. She is a member of the Junior League. Mr. Snowden was graduated from the Taft School and Yale University.

C. W. Sprouse, Jr., And Bride on Way To Kansas City

Mr. and Mrs. Claude William Sprouse, jr., are now on their way to Kansas City, Mo., where they will spend the summer.

The former Miss Beverley Mason Easley, daughter of Mrs. George Gilmer Easley and the late Mr. Easley, and Mr. Sprouse were married Saturday at noon at Pohick Church, the ancestral church of the Mason family in Virginia.

Officiating at the ceremony was the bridegroom's father, Dean Claude W. Sprouse of the Kansas City Episcopal Cathedral. Assisting Dean Sprouse was the Rev. Mr. Runkle, rector of Pohick Church.

Due to the recent death of the bride's father, the ceremony was a quiet one, attended only by members of the immediate family.

Parkers Give Bridal Couple Supper Dance

Another in the gay list of parties honoring Miss Nancy Hoskinson and James O'Grady, who will be married Wednesday, was the buffet supper and dancing party last evening given by Mr. and Mrs. John E. Parker. A long buffet table on the grounds of the Burning Tree Country Club and small tables illuminated by Japanese lanterns were the scene of the fete. The hostess received informally wearing a chiffon skirt o fpale green, topped by a peach-colored blouse of the same material.

Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. Hilleary G. Hoskinson parents of the bride-to-be, Mr. and Mrs. Cyril Edmonds, Mr. and Mrs. Robert V. Fleming, Mr. and Mrs. Francis Thomas, Mr. and Mrs. William Renchard, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Mackintosh, Mr. and Mrs. Grant Boss, Mr. and Mrs. Allan Moulton, Miss Julienne Cahill, Miss Nancy Rheen, Miss Ruth Quinn, Miss Doris Becker, Miss Margot Mink and the Misses Dolly and Edythe Cohen.

Still others there were Miss Margot O'Grady, Miss Margot Mink, Miss Martha Wills Schoenfeld, Dean Rucker, Robert W. Fleming, J. Henry Hoskinson, Hilleary F. Hoskinson, Thomas Tighe, Frank Holcomb, Robert Niepold, John P. Pero and John Parker.

Dorothy Shelton, To Be Wed Today, Is Feted at Party

Honoring Miss Dorothy Shelton who will marry Lieut. Lowell Bradford this afternoon at Fort Myer Chapel, Miss Patsy Ruth Kelsey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Victor V. Kelsey, entertained at a luncheon yesterday on the Shoreham Terrace.

The guests were Miss Ann Swanson, Miss Mary Dyer, Miss Mollie Stonestreet, Miss Mary Ellen Brown, Miss Betty Ann Swagart, Miss Caroline Wadden, Miss Mary Jane Moran, Miss Patricia Hill and Miss Janet Hartz.

Margaret Lahner Wed To John J. Lloyd

At a quiet ceremony Saturday evennig in Baltimore, John J. Lloyd, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Lloyd, formerly of Washington, and Miss Margaret Lahner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Lahner, were married. The parsonage of St. Catherine's Catholic Church was the scene of the wedding at 7 o'clock.

A reception, attended by a hundred friends and relatives, followed the ceremony.

Engagement Announced

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Harvey Palmer, of Baltimore, have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Curtis Hayes Palmer, to Zechariah Chafee 3d, of Norfolk, Va., son of Mr. and Mrs. Zechariah Chaffee, jr., of Cambridge, Mass.

Women's Organizations To Unite for Defense

By Lucia Giddens

A vast volunteer defense effort of women's national organizations will be launched at a meeting in New York Friday at the invitation of Mrs. John L. Whitehurst, new president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, who announced yesterday that acceptances to attend are pouring in from many sections of the country.

Heads of organizations of various creeds and political convictions have indicated their eagerness for such a united effort, Mrs. Whitehurst said in a statement from federation headquarters here.

Mayor LaGuardia of New York, director of Office of Civilian Defense, has been asked to address the meeting, called for 10 a. m. Friday at the Hotel Biltmore.

D. C. Leaders Invited

Among the leaders of national organizations a number of Washington women have been invited to take part in the meeting. They include Mrs. Jean Bennett, president of American Federation of Soroptimist Clubs; Miss Marguerite M. Wells, president, National League of Women Voters; Mrs. Harvey W. Wiley, National Woman's Party; Mrs. Charles W. Tillett, assistant chairman, Democratic National Committee; Miss Marion Martin, director, women's division, Republican National Committee; Mrs. Curtis Shears, president, Women's National Democratic Club; Miss Ruth McClelland, president, Women's Overseas Service League; Mrs. Edna Knight Gasch, president, National League of American Pen Women; Dr. Dorothy Bouldnig Ferebee, president, Alpha Kappa Alpha sorority; Mrs. Mary McLeod Bethune, president, National Council of Negro Women.

Mrs. William H. Pouch, of New York, president general of the Daughters of the American Revolution, and Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, chairman, national women's division, Committee to Defend America by Aiding the Allies, are among women well known in Washington who have been asked to participate in the meeting.

Mrs. Whitehurst will suggest that the women's groups coordinate their activities with Mayor LaGuardia's program and that they center their efforts in counties in the beginning.

Opposes Conscription

Emphasizing that she does not believe in conscription of the Nation's woman power, Mrs. Whitehurst said: "Volunteer service will permit many women to carry on their home life, contributing their services during hours which will not interfere with domestic responsibilities."

"I have no fear of a lack of volunteers. I have already received more than 1,000 letters from women asking for something definite to do," she said.

Among other organization representatives invited to attend the meeting are:

Dr. Helen C. White, American Association of University Women; Miss Anna M. Tracy, American Dietetic Association; Miss Gladys Branegan, American Home Economics Association; Mrs. Louis J. Lemaire, American Legion Auxiliary; Miss Julia C. Stimson, American Nurses Association; Dr. Reginald M. Atwater, American Public Health Association; Mrs. Robert Eugene Rideneur, American War Mothers; Mrs. Lucius Cole, American Women's Auxiliary to Medical Association; Mrs. Alice McLean, American Women's Voluntary Services; Mrs. George W. Ferguson, Association of Junior Leagues of America; Mrs. Wales Latham, Bundles for Britain.

Mrs. Lola Duval Williams, Camp Fire Girls; Miss Katherine M. Rosney, Catholic Daughters of America; Mrs. Harvey S. Mudd, Girl Scouts; Miss Mabel P. Meetz, International Association of Altrusa Clubs; Mrs. Mabel C. Tanner, Ladies' Auxiliary of the Veterans of Foreign Wars; Mrs. Jennie B. Moton, National Association of Colored Women; Mrs. Frederic Beers, National Committee on the Cause and Cure of War; Mrs. Virginia Kletzer, National Congress of Parents and Teachers; Mrs. J. M. McCollum, National Council of Catholic Women; Miss Mary C. Smith, National Council of Church Women; Mrs. Marie M. Goldman, National Council of Jewish Women; Mrs. Harold V. Milligan, National Council of Women.

Mrs. Percy Young Schelly, National Society, United States Daughters of 1812; Dr. Minnie L. Maffett, National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs; Mrs. Vincent H. Ober, National Federation of Music Clubs; Mrs. Charles Weis, National Federation of Women's Republican Clubs of America; Mrs. E. C. Embody, National Women's Auxiliary to the Railway Mail Association; Mrs. Ida B. Wise Smith, National W. C. T. U.; Mrs. Rose Schneiderman, National Woman's Trade Union League of America; Mrs. Edgerton Parsons, Pan-Pacific Women's Association, American Committee; Mrs. Wilfred P. Jones, P. E. O. Sisterhood; Mrs. William Henry Hays, Women's National Republican Club; Mrs. Henry C. Ingraham, Young Women's Christian Association.

Doll Adoption Teas Scheduled

Scenes which will look like "Christmas in June" will center at the neighborhood "doll adoption" teas, sponsored by the Washington Council of Church Women, in a series beginning tomorrow.

Women are urged to attend the teas in their neighborhood, bringing dolls which will be "adopted" by underprivileged children for training in homemaking.

First of the teas will be in Mount Pleasant from 3 to 5 p. m. tomorrow in Francis Asbury Methodist Church, 3140 Sixteenth Street Northwest, with Mrs. E. C. Myers as chairman.

The tea for the Southwest community also will be given tomorrow with the place and hour to be announced. Mrs. Eugene Fugitt is chairman.

Samuel Moores To Mark 50th Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Moore, parents of Mrs. Elizabeth M. Cox, recently reelected president of the Women's Bar Association of the District, will celebrate their golden wedding anniversary with a tea this afternoon at the American Association of University Women clubhouse.

Mr. and Mrs. Moore, who have lived in Washington since their marriage here June 10, 1891, will greet 75 friends and relatives, some of whom have come from afar.

Mrs. William F. Doyle, who as Bessie Shreve was maid of honor at the wedding of her sister, Mrs. Moore (Georgie Shreve), will attend the party. Mrs. Doyle makes her home in Washington.

Mrs. Paul Richmond, a daughter of the Moores, will come from Norfolk, Va. A grandson, Robert Paul Richmond, will be here from Boston, where he is a student at Massachusetts Institute of Technology, while a granddaughter, Ruth Richmond, is from Stanford University. Two other grandchildren attending will be Carolyn Richmond, of Norfolk, and Eleanor Cox, a sculptor, daughter of Mrs. Elizabeth M. Cox. Mrs. Moore's brother, Richard S. Shreve, of Arlington, will join the family reunion.

Chaplines to Show Films of Flowers Taken in Capital

The proceeds of this entertainment will be used, under the supervision of the president, Mrs. William H. Wagner, to aid and cheer some aged women in memory of the members' own mothers.

The Hunt Country

By Nina Carter Tabb

Forty-four women have just completed the nutrition course of the District Chapter, American Red Cross—with certificates in hand—and already half of them have enrolled in the canteen course, which will prepare them to run Red Cross emergency canteens, when needed.

Homemakers and office workers were included in the groups which met for two hours twice a week to learn about wise food buying and balanced diet, in the five-week nutrition course.

Mrs. William S. Anderson, volunteer chairman of the chapter's nutrition committee, pointed out in a report on the course that it was not a cooking class—but a scientific approach to nutrition. However, it was enlivened by demonstrations. Various foods were arranged on plates in a row, to show the servings necessary to give a person the needed vitamins.

Miss Dorothy Bovee, assistant nutritionist at American Red Cross headquarters, volunteered her time to teach the courses for the District chapter. Mrs. Anderson, who was formerly on the staff in nutrition at Johns Hopkins Hospital and at Cornell Medical Center, is assisted on the committee by Mrs. Christie Plattenberg and Mrs. Sherman Trowbridge.

"Because of the importance of nutrition in the defense program, we expect to expand these courses greatly in the next month. It is obvious that people who are well nourished are more productive and have better morale, so we feel that these courses have a real contribution to make," Mrs. Anderson pointed out.

"Wise food buying is particularly important these days. Consumers can do a great deal to stabilize buying, when some prices go high. In our courses, women are taught how to use, attractively, cheaper cuts of meat, for instance, when choicer cuts are high-priced."

The 20-hour canteen course which will start soon, will give instruction in buying and preparing food in large amounts, and in the use of improvised equipment, when necessary.

Legion Auxiliary Committee to Meet

The Department Executive Commitee of the American Legion Auxiliary will meet at 7:45 p. m. Monday at the Department of Commerce building in room 7057.

Mrs. Helene M. McCabe, department president, has called for the department chairman and vice president of each division of the Auxiliary to make reports to local headquarters by June 16, in order for them to be at national headquarters in Indianapolis by July 1.

Boys' Club Big Sisters Raise Funds for 2 Boats

The Big Sisters of the Metropolitan Police Boys Club, 1940-41, a group of 25 young girls, with Miss Molly Stonestreet as chairman, and Mrs. Lucille Bernard, vice chairman, have raised funds for the building of two large rowboats to present to Camp Ernest W. Brown at Scotland, Md.

The camp will open June 28 for members of the Police Boys Club.

D. C. Alumnae Of Stephens Hear Dr. Wood

Education of mothers of the United States in the privileges and responsibilities of democracy will be one of the strongest forces with which the country can arm itself against future wars, Dr. James M. Wood, president of Stephens College, Columbia, Mo., said in an address here last night.

"We have welded the strongest possible link for the maintenance of our democratic way of life if the mothers, guiding children in their formative years, understand the responsibility of the individual toward the economic, moral and spiritual strength of the Nation, he said.

Dr. Wood spoke on "Education of Women in a Democracy" at the banquet of the Stephens College Club of Washington at the Mayflower Hotel.

After the banquet, members of the club were asked to sign a seven-point pledge which is being circulated to all Stephens alumnae, and which calls for support of democracy in "my town, my State and my Nation." One of the points pledged the signers to "fight those philosophies of government which would reduce men to soulless automatons and women to kitchen slaveys and mere incubators for the State."

Miss Helen Schmid, newly elected president of the club, presided at the banquet. Dr. Wood described how the college evolved courses to help students solve the problems which recurred most frequently in three-year diaries kept by 305 women in various walks of life.

Fleet Reserve Auxiliary To Nominate Officers

Unit 4 of the Ladies Auxiliary to the Fleet Reserve Association will nominate officers at the regular meeting to be held tonight at 808 I Street.

The unit is planning its annual strawberry festival, to be held at the home of Mrs. Jack Fuller, 2104 Branch Avenue Southeast, June 14, at 6 p. m.

Tri Delta Picnic

The Washington Alliance of Delta Delta Delta will hold its annual picnic at 5:30 p. m. today in Rock Creek Park. Tri Delta daughters are invited. Mrs. Howard Hosmer is in charge of instructions for transportation.

Hebrew Home Plaque Is Given To Mrs. Levy

Mrs. William Levy was honored for her 23 years' volunteer service for the Hebrew Home for the Aged yesterday when a bronze plaque was presented to her at the Spring luncheon of the Home's Ladies' Auxiliary.

The presentation from the board of directors was made by Charles Goldsmith, president of the Home. The plaque will be placed near the front entrance of the building at 1125 Spring Road Northwest, where the luncheon was held.

Mrs. Levy, now chairman of the house committee of the Auxiliary, had just returned to Washington from the social work conference in Atlantic City in time to be greeted with the surprise presentation at the luncheon. As committee chairman and in several previous posts, she has assisted in working out plans for rremodeling the home and for the comfort of its inhabitants.

The aged persons who live at the home were among the several hundred guests at the luncheon, at which Mrs. Simon Davis, president of the auxiliary, presided.

Representative Sol Bloom (Democrat), of New York, who was to have made an address, was called out of town.

Mrs. Elias Gelman served as chairman of the program. Mrs. David Kushner gave monologues, and Mrs. Ann Cherkassky sang. Mrs. Alexander Wolf gave the opening prayer.

Mrs. Collins Again Elected President Of Mail Association

Mrs. William M. Collins was reelected president of the Washington auxiliary to the Railway Mail Association at its annual meeting last night at the Capitol Park Hotel.

Mrs. H. G. Hughes was named recording secretary. Other officers reelected were Mrs. E. L. Blessing, vice president; Mrs. Leo Kasehagen, corresponding secretary; Mrs. B. N. Burleyson, treasurer.

Plans were discussed last night for sending delegates to the National Women's Auxiliary in October in St. Paul, Minn.

The Washington Auxiliary is joining with the Athletic Club of the service in sponsoring a dance and card party at Beaver Dam Club Thursday, for the benefit of the club.

Women Law Students Honored by K. B. Pi

Eight women law students of National University were honored at the initiation dinner of Omicron Chapter, Kappa Beta Pi International Legal Sorority last night at the Mayflower Hotel.

Justice Wiley Rutledge of the United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia was speaker.

Court Told of Moscow's Propaganda Network

By Dillard Stokes
Post Staff Writer

How the Kremlin poured tons of Communist propaganda into this country for more than a decade was described to a District Court jury yesterday by Special Assistant Attorney General Benjamin Parker.

The broad revelations promised by the prosecutor obscured the three alleged Soviet agents who called them forth. The trio went on trial for criminal conspiracy, after the court spent two hours finding a jury without prejudice against them.

From official agencies of the Moscow government, said Parker, a massive stream of propaganda flowed into the United States. Samples of the material—books, papers, pictures and pamphlets—will be brought into court in the three weeks' trial, he said.

Anti-Americanism Charged

Parker told the jurors they would find the propaganda, in all the 20 languages in which it was expressed, "pro-Russian and pro-Communist, but anti-American, anti-democratic and anti-religious."

The well spring of the stream of propaganda, said Parker, was the Soviet corporation Mezhkniga, an official government concern which operated through Amtorg, the American agency of the Commissariat of Foreign Trade.

First, Parker declared, Amtorg handled the propaganda through its book department. But when the Fish committee began digging into Soviet methods 10 years ago a separate corporation called Amkniga was set up.

Plotting Described

Thereafter, said Parker, as often as a corporation was exposed as a tool of Moscow it "went underground" and another was formed to do its work. Thus, he said, Mezhkniga worked in succession through Amtorg, Amkniga, Bookniga Corporation, Booknight, Inc., and currently through Four Continent Book Corporation.

However, said Parker, while changing their names, these corporations changed neither their offices, their employees, their telephone number, which was the same as Amtorg, nor their mission of "belittling and discrediting the American way of life" in favor of Russian-style communism.

The three men on trial were officers of Bookniga Corporation. Morris Liskin, 54, white-haired, black mustached New Rochelle dress shop operator, was its president. Born in Russian Poland, he came to America in 1906 and was granted citizenship. Parker said he has a son on the staff of the Moscow Daily News. Liskin's attorney is Isadore Englander, New York.

One Is Native Born

Native born is Norman Weinberg, 25, who recently completed a course in the New York Merchant Marine School. He was secretary-treasurer of the Bookniga Corporation and has a former district attorney, Leo A. Rover, as his counsel.

The third defendant is Raphael Rush, 42, Russian born but a naturalized American citizen, who was vice president of Bookniga Corporation. He is defended by David A. Hart, a former assistant district attorney. Parker said it was Rush, fresh from Russia, who brought Liskin into the propaganda organization.

All three were indicted on a charge of conspiring to have the corporation evade the law requiring foreign propagandists to register with the State Department. Rush and Weinberg are accused also of helping the corporation to evade the law.

Liskin Pleaded Guilty

At a hearing December 19, 1939, Liskin pleaded guilty to the latter charge, paid a $500 fine and won suspension of a 4 to 18 months' jail sentence.

Defense counsel protested in vain when Parker revealed Liskin's earlier plea in his opening address. Bookniga,, Inc., which followed Bookniga Corporation; its president, Boris Nikolsky, and its treasurer, I. A. Ilyin, also pleaded guilty, December 27, 1939, and paid fines totaling $2,500. Nikolsky and Ilvin promptly went back to Russia.

FBI Aids Prosecution

Aiding Parker in the prosecution are Assistant District Attorney George E. McNeil, Attorneys Charles Fisher, George McNulty and A. F. Ostholthoc, special agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

The jurors accepted after two hours of questioning, which was closely followed by Presiding Justice F. Dickinson Letts, were:

Robert W. Ballard, 49, 1401 Sheridan Road Northwest, secretary of the Walter Ballard Co.; John H. Nall, 30, 809 Nineteenth Street Northwest, restaurant owner; Arthur Coplin, 40, drug sales manager, 2308 Ashmead Place Northwest; Thomas G. Tassa, 55, 1365 Meridian Place Northwest, food merchant; Frank L. Shears, sr., 62, colored, 4720 Sheriff Road Northeast, butler; Arthur Miller, 56, 3071 Canal Street Northwest, carpenter; Mrs. Isabelle N. Nichols, 37, 2331 Cathedral Avenue Northwest, Government Accounting Office clerk; George L. Howells, 50, 11 Nicholson Street Northwest, plant supervisor; Noble L. Veirs, 51, 856 Venable Place Northwest, salesman; Sol L. Kasdon, 53, candy and tobacco dealer, 5327 Belt Road Northwest; William L. Lunger, 41, 1629 Columbia Road Northwest, auto finance salesman, and Charles E. Yeatman, 46, 4005 Twenty-first Street Southeast, grocery manager.

Army to Make War Games Real as Possible

Troops, commanders and staffs taking part in the Army's series of gigantic maneuvers now getting under way will face warfare as realistic as ingenuity and experience can make it, Maj. Gen. Lesley J. McNair said yesterday in a frank talk with newspapermen.

Speaking in the auditorium of the Army War College, Gen. McNair, chief of staff of General Headquarters, said control of commanders' movements in the field, which has marked all previous maneuvers, will be abandoned. Instead, he said, commanders will be permitted to meet situations as they develop and to stand or fall on their decisions.

Maneuvers planned for the rest of this year, he said, will involve more than 1,500,000 men, will cost close to $24,000,000 and will bring into action all components of the Army, including the armored force the Air Corps and the new parachute troops. He said it was likely the use of air-borne troops also would be tried.

Realism will be attained as nearly as possible, General McNair said, by the use of noise-making devices, by concealment of information from commanders, by radio control of artillery fire which would indicate a bombarded area as soon as the guns went into action, by dummy tank mines which emit smoke when exploded and by numerous other devices. The noise-maker, he said, which plays records of bomb explosions, the shriek of dive bombers and other battlefield sounds through a loudspeaker, was tried out last week in Caroline County, Va. Police radios, purchased at a cost of some $80,000, will be used to coordinate artillery fire with the movements of infantry.

Relatively few combat aircraft will be used, General McNair said, "not because we don't realize their importance, but because the Air Corps is at present under-equipped and its trained personnel is spread out thinly because of expansion." He added that experiments in air-ground cooperation are constantly underway in the Army.

As to use of armored units, he said, success of the German army is not evidence to us that the panzer division is the only thing on the battlefield. If the armored divisions run wild in maneuvers, we will have to do something about it and we will do something about it."

To reach the maneuver area in the Carolinas next fall, he said, the Twenty-ninth Division, no wat Fort George G. Meade, Md., probably will travel partly by rail and partly by road convoy. In the late August, he added, the entire Second Army of almost 100,000 men, will march from Camp Robinson, Ark., to Camp Beauregard, La.

Introducing Gen. McNair, Maj. Gen. Robert C. Richardson, jr., chief of the Public Relations Branch of the War Department, said the forthcoming maneuvers will be the first evaluation of the new Army."

The Federal Diary

By Jerry Kluttz

House Committee Defies President

The House Appropriations Committee not only ignored President Roosevelt by refusing to accept his recommendation to bring some 20,000 WPA administrative employes under Civil Service, but also defied him on the Civil Service issue by nailing a rider onto the bill that would deny Civil Service to approximately 5,000 employes in other Federal agencies that are paid from emergency funds. It was planned to bring 5,000 employes under Civil Service by the Ramspeck Act on January 1 as the act specifically ordered them covered under and the Civil Service Commission has already made plans to do it.

Employes paid from emergency funds would be barred from Civil Service under the 1942 relief bill, in these agencies: Public Health Service, General Accounting Office, CAA, Employes Compensation Commission, and the following divisions in the Treasury Department: Procurement, Secret Service, Accounts, Disbursement, and the Treasurer's Office.

The committee action, if approved, would not stop thousands of emergency employes from being brought under Civil Service. For example, 3,000 such employes at GAO and several thousand others at Farm Security will be brought under merit on July 1 regardless. The salaries of these employes will be paid from regular funds after July 1. However, GAO expects to hire more than 700 new employes who will be paid from emergency funds after July 1 and these employes, of course, won't be taken from Civil Service rolls, nor will they be brought under merit if the committee rider prevails.

Navy Department, it was learned yesterday, is considering a plan to lengthen the hours of its civilian employes here. Fact is, a War Department official said the Navy was supposed to announce a 44-hour work week last Saturday at the same time the War Department made its announcement. He presumes it will be announced when Secretary Knox returns here. However, to lengthen the work-week at Navy will run into complications.

Overtime Demands

Navy employes, by law, have had to work at least a 40-hour week for the past year while all other Federal employes have been on a 39-hour week. Congress permits Navy to pay time-and-a-half overtime to technical, professional, and subprofessional employes in the District. No other department has that privilege. Meantime, demands are being made for the Government to pay its employes who are compelled to work overtime. Private industry has to do it under the Wage and Hour Act.

The dismissal of Maurice Tepping from the Federal Security Agency within 10 days has been demanded by the Civil Service Commission. The commission stated that "an investigation of his (Tepping's) character and suitability for Government employment developed considerable evidence of Tepping's interest in and connection with people, causes, and organizations with radical and communistic tendencies."

C. I. O.'s U. F. W. A. will fight the dismissal demand as it has in the cases of several other employes who were fired for similar reasons. The union states that Tepping has been an active union member and president of the Washington Youth Council. Tepping told the union that there was no just reason for his dismissal and that he did not belong to any organization barred to Federal employes. The union will ask for reinstatement. Tepping is a member of Local 10. The local's executive committee stated that "dismissals founded on hearsay or personal opinion should not be a part of the Federal service nor a function of an executive agency."

Bertram Gross, president of the U. F. W. A. local at USHA, has been given his furlough notice. He is employed in the information section which is forced to reduce its staff due to an appropriation slash. Gross is a leader in the move to expel three "right-wing" members who protested against the local's opposition "Trials" of the accused are supposed to be held next week.

Cousins Born on Same Day

Cousins, born on the same day, were getting acquainted at Sibley Hospital yesterday. Marcus Lee Primm and William Gilbert Woodend, jr., are their names. They were born Thursday to sisters, Mrs. Herschel Primm, of Hyattsville, and Mrs. William Woodend, of Colmar Manor.

Occupation: Gentleman

He was just a raw-boned mountaineer. And the draft board down in Tennessee was kind and friendly.

They filled in all the questions and answers—until they asked him his occupation which stopped them. "Son," they asked, "what do you do for a living?"

Alexandria Begins USO Funds Drive

ALEXANDRIA BUREAU OF THE POST, Telephone, Temple 2356.

Alexandria citizens yesterday started their phase of the $10,765,000 United Service Organizations campaign with an intensive house-to-house canvass, following receipt of an initial contribution of $115 from the Alexandria Teachers Association. The city's quota of $5,500 is to be used in equipping and maintaining a service men's recreation center, soon to be established locally with the aid of an expected Federal grant of $50,000.

With William G. Ilich having been named as general chairman, the personnel for the city-wide campaign was released on the opening day of the drive. These subdivisions have been established:

General committee—Mayor William T. Wilkins, honorary chairman; Marshall Beverly, treasurer; Martin E. Greene, secretary; Mrs. J. Paul Tribles, assistant secretary; Gardner L. Boothe, steering chairman; John R. Schafe, group solicitor; D. C. Book, special gifts chairman, and Richard M. Wright, publicity.

Youth division—Mrs. Sidnie A. Greenleaf, chairman, and Edward H. Hitt, cochairman.

Ward and area directors—Mrs. A. D. Rorex, first ward; Joseph W. Phillips, second ward; Isadore Bregman, third ward; Miss Alice Whitton, fourth ward; William C. Sherman, and Mrs. M. H. Burchell, fifth ward; Glenn U. Richard and R. G. Koiner, sixth ward, and Andrew W. Clarke, Belle Haven.

Preparations for the drive were completed last weekend, when pamphlets explaining the purpose of the program were distributed to all homes in the city by volunteers representing Alexandria Boy Scout units.

Graduation Delays City Council Session

The Alexandria city council, scheduled to meet tonight in regular session, has postponed its meeting until Wednesday to permit members of the body to attend graduation exercises at George Washington High School at 8 o'clock this evening. A record class of 196 graduates will receive diplomas.

At the high school commencement, diplomas will be presented by Superintendent of Schools T. C. Williams, while scholarships and honor awards will be presented by Leroy S. Bendheim, chairman of the school board. A student motion picture, depicting outstanding school activities of the past year, will feature the commencement program.

Alexandria Court Collects $2,589

The Corporation Court in Alexandria collected the sum of $2,589.40 for the State in May, according to the monthly report submitted yesterday by Elliott F. Hoffman, clerk. The collections represented taxes on deeds, lawsuits and marriage licenses.

During the month four wills were probated, 24 suits were filed, 412 deeds were recorded and 172 marriage licenses were issued, Hoffman said. The figures represented a 13 per cent increase in deeds over the April report, while the marriage licenses showed a "substantial gain," he added.

The court also collected $242.20 for the City of Alexandria as the result of taxes on deeds and wills.

Judge William P. Wools presided over the opening of the June term of the Corporation Court yesterday, when 17 cases were set for trial in the remainder of this month. Hoffman said a majority of the cases involved appeals from civil and police court decisions.

Oakcrest Man Shoots At Snake, Hits Wife

Mrs. Maria Conway, 27, colored, of Oakcrest (Md.), was injured in the left foot by a charge from a shotgun, fired, she said, by her husband when aiming at a snake in the back yard of their home.

She was treated by Dr. J. M. Warren, of Laurel and taken to Casualty Hospital by the Brentwood Rescue Squad.

Montgomery Civic Federation Elects J. B. Matre President

Joseph B. Matre, of the North Woodside-Montgomery Hills Citizens Association, was elected president of the Montgomery County Civic Federation last night.

Matre, who succeeds O. M. Kile, was chosen unanimously after Richard H. Akers, of the Edgemoor Citizens Association, withdrew from nomination. Akers said he would not remain a candidate should Matre choose to run.

Akers was then elected vice president.

Other new officers are Walter C. DeGroot, East Sligo Valley Citizens Association, recording secretary; Courtland K. Townsend, Greater Kensington Civic League, corresponding secretary; William B. Horne, town of Somerset, treasurer.

Elected to places on the executive committee were: Allen H. Gardner, Woodside Park Civic Association; James D. King, Montgomery County Farm Bureau; Carey E. Quinn, Battery Park Citizens Association, and Clarence N. Smith, Sligo Park Hills Citizens Association.

The federation went on record as opposed to apartment house construction in the county "as a permanent policy." In a resolution unanimously adopted the organization said it is against the erection of any multiple-family dwelling in the metropolitan area," except where two-family dwellings are used as a buffer between residential and commercial, or between residential and industrial zones.

O. M. Kile, retiring president, presented his annual report. He declared the federation year just closed has been another period of important activity, interest and accomplishment." Membership reached a new high of 52 constituent bodies.

"Several of the most important lines of work this year have been merely continuations and new phases of work started in previous years," he said, pointing to the work on zoning regulation accomplished by the legislation and legal action committee, headed by Richard B. Barker, and to the publication of the Brookings Institution report after several years of active campaigning by the federation. He declared that the federation had its usual degree of success in obtaining legislation "getting most through but failing on several important measures."

Kile said that speechmaking should be held to the minimum but that free discussion of measures before the federation should be encouraged. He asserted that "occasionally some of our valuable time is consumed by discussions inspired primarily by personal or partisan political considerations."

"Right minded delegates to the federation park their partisan politics, if any, at the door as they come in." He said that it is only common sense to follow a policy of cooperation with the party in power if the officials of that party show any disposition to cooperate but that this policy does not preclude vigorous dissent and active attack if necessary.

USO Quota For Montgomery Set at $14,600

A quota of $14,600 for the United Service Organization in Montgomery County was set last night at a committee meeting in the Montgomery County Courthouse. Nearly half of the quota was placed in Chevy Chase and Bethesda.

Fred L. Lutes, chairman of the organizing committee, presided at the meeting, which was attended by 22 persons. Fred Spaulding, director of the U S O in the District, discussed the work of the organization in Washington.

The county was divided into 13 areas for the campaign which began this week and will continue through July 4.

Oxon Hill P.-T.A. Forum Tonight

A forum on extra-curricular activities by student leaders of Oxon Hill High School will be presented at the Oxon Hill Parent-Teacher Association meeting tonight at 7:30 o'clock at the school.

Discussion leaders and their subjects are: Student forum, Adelbert Thomas; bank, Mayo Shives; dramatic club, Alma Birekner; publications, Clinton Dalton; societies, Virginia Csonka; traffic squad and boy patrol, Paul Underwood; choral club, Lorraine Hall; honor society, Shirley Lee Taylor, and other clubs, Raleigh Powell. New officers for the P.-T. A. will be elected at the meeting.

Four Liquor Law Violators Fined In Upper Marlboro

Four violators of the Maryland State liquor law were fined Friday and yesterday in circuit court at Upper Marlboro.

All pleaded guilty to selling liquor on Sunday.

Herbert Sachs, proprietor of the Del Rio Restaurant in Bladensburg, which burned January 16, was fined $100 and costs. Mrs. Ethel Cox of Cox's Liquor Store, Oxon Hill, was fined $100 Friday and given a suspended sentence of three months in the Maryland House of Correction.

A fine of $300 and a suspended sentence of six months in the house of correction yesterday was given Mrs. Gussie Lieber of the Hi-Boy in Colmar Manor.

Hoyt Hutchinson of the Town Hall Restaurant, Berwyn, dismissed an appeal yesterday and was fined $250. He had been convicted in Magistrate's Court December 20, 1940.

Mrs. Haines Heads Health Council

Mrs. Mehrle Haines, of Gaithersburg, was elected chairman of the Montgomery County Public Health Lay Council yesterday at an all-day meeting of the organization held at the Rockville Courthouse.

Mrs. Morrison Clark, the retiring chairman, was elected vice chairman. Others elected included Mrs. Louis Gravelle, second vice chairman; Mrs. Raleigh Chinn, recording secretary, and Mrs. Dexter Bullard, treasurer.

2 Arlington Junior Highs Award Medals

Winners of the citizenship awards at the Thomas Jefferson School were Isabel Sadler and Mitchell Deck. At the Claude A Swanson school the awards went to Geraldine Tyson and Derik Breintenbach.

Scholarship award winners at the Thomas Jefferson school were Margaret Roberts, Jean Gibbs and George Stoner. Each was presented with a book. Lois Anderson won medals for excellence in history and spelling.

Thomas Jefferson graduates presented the school with pictures of Fletcher Kemp, county superintendent, and Charles J. Walsh, principal.

Lubber Run Park To Open Saturday

Plans have been completed for opening of Lubber Run Park Saturday in connection with Flag Day exercises.

The program, starting at 2 p. m., will include an address by former State Senator Frank L. Ball, sr., selections by the Kiwanis Club boys band and massing of colors by Arlington County patriotic organizations. F. Freeland Chew, president of the county board, will preside.

3 More Named To Alexandria Police Force

The appointment of three additional men to the Alexandria police force was announced yesterday by City Manager Carl Budwesky, completing an increase of ten men authorized by the city council two months ago. The new policemen are Harry M. Snapp, 1617 King Street; James F. Smith, 100 East Oak Street, and James Barber, 1213 Prince Street.

Budwesky said the men will be required to serve a probationary term of six months, after which their appointments are to be made permanent, at the regular salary scale.

With the ten men having been selected, four officers soon will be assigned to night guard duty at the Virginia Public Service Co. power plant, under terms of an agreement recently completed with the utility. The company will pay the guards' salaries, uniform costs and other expenses.

$4,124 Robbery Spurs Police In Alexandria

Spurred by a report of a weekend jewelry theft involving property valued at more than $4,000, Alexandria police yesterday intensified their efforts to solve a series of robberies which have been reported in the northwest suburbs in the last few months.

Detective Russell Hawes, in disclosing that jewelry and personal effects valued at $4,124 had been stolen from the residence of Lieut. Comdr. and Mrs. J. D. Jones, 2210 Russell Road, early Saturday, said the department is convinced the recent robberies all have been the work of a single intruder, or a group of men operating as a band. The methods of entry and the loot have been similar in each case, he pointed out.

Among articles reported stolen from the residence of Commander Jones were a diamond ring valued at $1,200; a platinum, diamond and sapphire bracelet valued at $800, and another diamond ring valued at $1,000.

STAG DINNER—Members of the Takoma Park (Md.) Chamber of Commerce last night staged a stag dinner at the Indian Spring Country Club. District and Montgomery County Commissioners were honored guests. Among those attending were (left to right) Thomas E. Hampton, president of the Montgomery County Board of Commissioners; Dr. Julian G. Zier, principal speaker, of the Pan American Union; John Coffman, president of the chamber, and Brig. Gen. Charles W. Kutz, Engineer Commissioner of the District

Montgomery Sentences 2 As Firebugs

Volunteer Fireman Confesses Igniting School to Appear Hero Before Girl

Two former Bethesda volunteer firemen yesterday pleaded guilty to setting fires in Montgomery County Circuit Court at Rockville, Md.

Wilson E. Everhart, 19-year-old senior at Bethesda-Chevy Chase High School, was sentenced to serve four years in the Maryland House of Correction by Judges Charles W. Woodward and Stedman Prescott. Everhart told the court he set fire to the high school to make him appear a hero to his former sweetheart.

In pronouncing sentence Judge Woodward pointed out to the youth that indirectly he had been the cause of the death of Fireman John Adair of the Chevy Chase Fire Department, who was killed when a motorist struck him at the fire ground. Judge Woodward said he would have to sentence him, first because he was afraid to allow him at large, and second, because it is necessary to teach other boys they can't get away with such actions.

He Was "In a Mood"

The youth told the court that he had started "going with" a girl at the school but had stopped seeing her at the insistence of his parents. He joined the Bethesda Volunteer Fire Department to "take my mind off of her," he testified.

"I set the school fire thinking she would be there and I would be a hero," he testified. After the school fire, Everhart said, he heard the girl was writing to a former boy friend in Canada and that he was "in a mood" when he set fire to an unoccupied house in Bethesda. He said he also attempted to set fire to the Bethesda Paint and Hardware Co. store, where he was employed on Saturdays.

Dr. John E. Lind, psychiatrist in charge of the criminally insane ward at St. Elizabeth's Hospital, was called to the stand by State Senator Robert Peter, of defense counsel. Dr. Lind said the youth appeared to have had an abnorml interest in fires but was not of unsound mind. He urged that Everhart be placed in an institution where he could be under care of a psychiatrist. The court asked Dr. Lind if he could assure them the boy would not set any more fires and he said he could not.

Average Student

State's Attorney Ben G. Wilkinson called Principal Thomas W. Pyle, of the high school, to the stand, and he testified the boy was an average student with nothing unusual about his conduct prior to the fire.

Former County Commissioner Robert D. Hagner, Trial Magistrate James C. Christopher and the Rev. J. Lloyd Black, pastor of a Washington church but formerly pastor of Rockville Christian Church, were among the character witnesses for the youth.

Paul J. Voight, 22, pleaded guilty to setting fire to a brush field on the old Bergdoll estate on Wisconsin Avenue, March 14. He was sentenced to serve six months in the House of Correction.

John P. Dodge Begins Training At Pensacola

John Parker Dodge, son of Parker Dodge, Washington patent attorney, has begun his advanced flight training as an aviation cadet at the Naval Air Station, Pensacola, Fla., according to announcement by the Naval Aviation Cadet Selection Board.

DODGE

Dodge, whose home is at 9 Grafton Street, Chevy Chase, Md., completed preliminary flight training at the U. S. Naval Reserve Aviation Base in Anacostia in May.

A former student at Bethesda-Chevy Chase High School, he was graduated last June from Johns Hopkins University with the degree of bachelor of arts.

Duelists Given Suspended Terms In Hyattsville

Two colored men who engaged in a gun battle Friday at Ardwick in Prince Georges County, received suspended sentences to the Maryland House of Correction yesterday in police court in Hyattsville.

Linwood Duvall, 23, and John Swan, 33, fought over an alleged threat to Duvall's sister, Harriet, 7, made by John Swan, jr., 12, in a fight between the children over possession of a baseball. According to police, the elder Swan, with a .22-caliber rifle, and Duvall, with a 12-gauge shotgun, fired several times at each other.

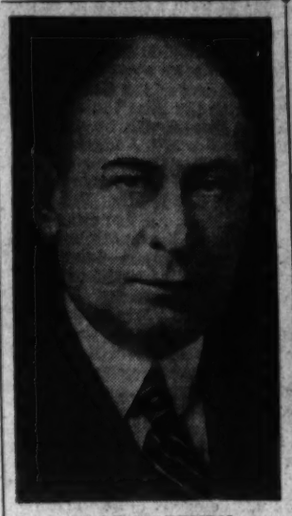
Duvall was given a 9-month sentence and Swan a 3-month sentence.

Marbury Named Chief Judge Of Seventh Maryland District



OGLE MARBURY

Laurel Man Replaces Judge Mitchell, Had Been Associate

Ogle Marbury, of Laurel, an associate judge of the Seventh Maryland Judicial Circuit, has been appointed chief judge, it was announced yesterday by Gov. Herbert R. O'Conor.

He had been associate judge since January 10. Marbury replaces Judge Walter Mitchell, recently retired head of the circuit court.

The new appointee will go to Annapolis this week to be sworn in by the Governor.

Marbury's appointment creates a vacancy in the circuit court. A second vacancy will occur next month when Judge Joseph C. Mattingly reaches the retirement age of 70.

The Seventh Circuit includes Prince Georges, Charles, Calvert and St. Marys Counties. Judge Marbury was appointed to the bench under a State constitutional amendment approved last fall providing for four instead of three judges in the circuit.

The appointment as chief judge automatically makes Marbury a member of the Maryland Court of Appeals.

He resigned as attorney to the Prince Georges County Commissioners and Laurel Town counsel when named to the bench. A graduate of Johns Hopkins University, he obtained his law degree from the University of Maryland Law School in 1904 and practiced as a member of the State Bar for 36 years. He was an assistant State's attorney general under the late Gov. Ritchie.

In 1910 Judge Marbury was elected to the Maryland Legislature and served one term. He was a Democratic floor leader in 1912.

Falls Church, Herndon Elect Officers Today

Voters of Falls Church and Herndon in nearby Virginia will go to the polls today to elect municipal officers.

At Falls Church three councilmen are up for reelection. In the First Ward, Charles E. Kellogg is unopposed. Charles A. Pendleton, Second Ward councilman, is opposed by J. H. Marr. The contest in the Third Ward is between Councilman Lawrence Laing and James E. Anderson.

Polls will be open in the council room of the Town Hall from 1 p. m. to sunset.

Herndon voters will select six councilmen from eight candidates. Mayor Russell A. Lynn and Treasurer M. Waite Wilkins are unopposed.

Mount Vernon High Class Finishes

Winners of scholarship and citizenship awards were announced yesterday at commencement exercises in the Reed Theater, Alexandria, for graduates of the Mount Vernon (Va.) High School.

Winner of the D. A. R. citizenship medal was Catherine Sheperd, of Woodlawn. The presentation was made by Mrs. John W. Brookfield, in behalf of the Fairfax County Chapter of the D. A. R.

The medal awarded annually to the best all-around student went to Irvin Holmes, of Mount Vernon. Marguerite More, of Mount Vernon, won the scholarship offered by Temple Secretarial School.

Diplomas were presented to 58 graduates by Fairfax County Supt. W. T. Woodson.

U. of Md. to Give Aircraft Material Inspection Course

A training course for aircraft material inspectors, sponsored by the Glenn L. Martin Airplane Co. of Baltimore, will be offered this summer at the University of Maryland, Dean S. S. Steinberg, of the College of Engineering, announced yesterday.

The course will be given in two sections during the day, beginning June 23. It will be open to graduates of arts and sciences colleges and to high school graduates.

Graduates of the course will be guaranteed jobs with Glenn L. Martin. Tuition will be paid by the Federal Government. Applicants should write immediately to Dean Steinberg at the university.

Mothers Forming Nursery School At Takoma Park

Mothers in the Takoma Park-Silver Spring, Md., area are organizing a cooperative nursery school which will be conducted in the Takoma Park Elementary School, Philadelphia Avenue, it was announced yesterday.

It will open with a six-week summer session after July 4 and will be continued in augmented form in the fall. As in the cooperative nursery schools operating in Kensington and Chevy Chase a small monthly tuition fee will be paid by the parents.

A business meeting of the group, to which all others interested will be asked to attend, is scheduled for June 17 to complete preparations for the opening of the school.

Information will be supplied by the following: Mrs. Samuel H. Horne, Mrs. W. H. Corey, Mrs. PGad Bryan Morehouse, Mrs. Leland F. Gleysteen and Mrs. Carlos A. Greenleaf.

Ignore Recent Headline And Substitute This One

Gracie Barrie to Appear at Earle, June 27; The Little Offers a Double-Header Tonight; This, That and the Other About the Theater

THERE SEEMS TO HAVE BEEN a slight crossing of wires. A few days ago we went to some pains and a headline to announce that Gracie Barrie, one of Washington's favorite canaries, would be coming along to an F Street stage in July as a member of the cast of the tabloid musical "Crazy With the Heat" . . . Now it comes out that Gracie will be featured with Eddie "Rochester" Anderson and Dick Stabile and His Orchestra on the stage bill at the Earle, beginning Friday, June 27. . . . She is Mrs. Dick Stabile in private life. . . . If not otherwise easily identifiable in the public mind—and that seems preposterous—Miss Barrie surely will be recalled as the volcanic young singer who succeeded Maxine Doyle, after her three years of service, as mistress of ceremonies on the same stage to which she shorly will return. . . . And let's not have any more confusion about this business. . . . Not as yet having had an opportunity to annoy him with a backstage visit, I wonder if Victor McLaglen remembers his last visit here eight years ago. . . . He was "interviewed" then by this desk in that springtime blimp that used to float over the Capital on its way North from Miami. . . . Everything was very elegant until Vic conceived the quaint notion that he could operate the ship. . . . Then he scared the living daylights, in a manner of speaking, out of Photographer Lou Johrden, me, the pilot and himself by putting too much heft on the controls. . . . The only reason he didn't petrify a greater number was that we four were the only ones who went up.

BELL

If you want to see what "tap" dancing looked like back about the turn of the century, go to the Capitol and take a gander at Jack Murray, the septuagenarian "hoofer" with Major Bowes' Sixth Anniversary Revue. The amazingly agile Mr. Murray is picking them up and laying them down in the manner that used to be known as "buck and wing," back in the days of George Primrose, Barney Fagan and the other top steppers of their day. The youthful Murray is satisfying a long-standing ambition after a lifetime of railroading. To watch him, one would think it would have been the other way around.

Two for the Price of One

Following the last screening of "Flight from Destiny" tonight at 10, the Little Theater will present, at no additional cost to the customers, a preview of the gay British comedy, "George Takes the Air," a tribute to both the bravery and the gaiety of the English people. . . . The star is George Formby, Britain's No. 1 screen comedian, a past master of mirth, with a horse face and graveyard teeth. . . . The producers' description, not mine. . . . I haven't seen him yet. . . . Roly-poly Donnelly James is rolling them on the decks of the Wilson Line's S. S. Mount Vernon these moonlit excursion nights. . . . He does the vocals and specialty entertainment for McWilliams' Orchestra. . . . A graduate of pictures, Paul Whiteman's Leviathan Band and two years of conducting his own orchestra at the Denver Theater, in Denver, Colo., not to mention many local semi-private appearances at parties and clubs. . . . When the Roxyettes put on their "cavalcade" of unique routines on the Earle stage, beginning Friday, they will give out with the Walking Globes, Bouncing Beach Balls, Juggling Hoops, Stilts, Drums, Megaphones, Fencing Foils, Unicycles, Unsupported Ladders and Bicycles. . . . Sounds like a lot—and is—but the whole skillfully display will consume less than 10 minutes. . . . Roll back the rug and try it some time.

So Twentieth Century-Fox subjected their production of "Man Hunt" to a jury of its peers—actors who have become identified with the characters of Hollywood film detectives. With the picture's two stars—Walter "Nick Carter" Pidgeon and George "The Saint" Sanders—as hosts, the celluloid Hawkshaws who thought "Man Hunt" was plenty good included Basil "Sherlock Holmes" Rathbone, William "Nick Charles-Philo Vance" Powell, John "Bulldog Drummond" Howard, Ralph "Ellery Queen" Bellamy, Warren "Lone Wolf" William, Sidney "Charlie Chan" Toler and Lloyd "Michael Shayne" Nolan. Well, it got a paragraph, anyhow, which seems to have been the main idea. Now let's see the picture.

Since Hector Was a Pup

The man's name isn't Hector at all. . . . It is C. J. Tryon. . . . But Hector was the name of the first poodle he ever trained, 25 years ago, and Hector and His Pals, now at the Earle, has been the best dog act in captivity, in our book, even since. . . . Tryon graduated from the University of Michigan as a mining engineer and taught his first dog some tricks while working in an Arizona gold mining camp. . . . He's been leading a dog's life ever since. . . . Has 13 miscellaneous pooches in his present act, each with knowledge of a vocabulary of about 100 words. . . . The Ph. D's of the canine colleges. . . . Oh, yes, and just after Tryon left, they struck gold in that Arizona camp. . . . From all I hear, that party hurled by the Rhythm Rockets at the Carlton Saturday night may be going on yet. . . . At any rate, our Mr. Coe can only get one eye open. . . . The blind one, at that!

Close-Ups and Long-Shots Of the Motion Picture Scene

Hollywood, June 9 (INS).—To Sam Wood, one of Hollywood's top directors, falls the plum of directing the most controversial book of 1940—"For Whom the Bell Tolls," the most talked-of best-seller destined for a movie since "Gone With the Wind." I might add that Sam is one of Hollywood's best-liked megaphoners. Never temperamental, he goes along year after year making box-office hits. Not long ago he was up for the Academy Award for "Our Town." The prize went to John Ford, although "Kitty Foyle," which won Ginger Rogers an award, was a Wood picture.

PARSONS

Director Wood moves to Paramount for the Ernest Hemingway novel after he finishes "King's Row" for Warners, and later he films another best seller, "Miss Susie Slagle" for Para.

The amazing stick-to-itiveness of Mary Beth Hughes inclines me to think that one of these days you'll hear from that young lady. Her director told her she was too hefty. She dieted and took off 25 pounds and those who have had to eat a lettuce leaf and let it go at that realize how hard it is. Mary Beth knows that the meaty roles are not the "bread and butter" simpering ingenues, but the gals who are not always all they should be. She plays that kind of gal in "Hearses Don't Hurrry," based on a novel by Stephen Ransome.

Ran into Wes Ruggles at Hollywood Park and I don't know whether Wes was more excited about being on a $58 long shot or over the story that he has selected for his picture with Clark Gable, "Somewhere I'll Find You." Don't let the title of this Cosmopolitan Magazine story by Charles Hoffman fool you. Far from being a hearts-and-flowers romance, it's a yarn about present day war correspondents covering the headlines.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random: Ever hear of a honey millionaire? Well, Carole Landis was at Ciro's with Jack Payson who made his money in honey—the singular, not the plural; Bob Sterling, the lad Gene Tierney nearly married, stepping out with Elsye Knox; Pat Stewart is so in love with Wayne Morris she say if he's stationed at Long Beach she'll go there. The funniest sight of the week—Marlene Dietrich explaining a baseball game to Jean Cabin; Raymond Massey, just back in town, at the Hollywood Brown Derby; Hal Wallis broke the record at Guaymas and brought in over 200 sword, marlin, sail and other denizens of the sea; Lynn Root (his play, "Cabin in the Sky" opens here shortly) becomes a father in September.

Groucho Marx (and I saw him with my own eyes) bicycling in Beverly Hills in shorts followed by a police dog; Charles Wendling, Claudette Colbert's brother, accompanies Margaret Lindsay and her mother across country to Detroit where Maggie will buy a new car; Carol Bruce and Keith Richards (he's a Para contract player) are finding each other good company; Ann Sothern's mother, well known voice teacher, has gone East to make her home.

That's all today. See you tomorrow!

Leonard Lyons:

New York, June 9.

KATHARINE CORNELL gave a cocktail party last Friday in honor of a group of R. A. F. flyers who have been ferrying bombers to Britain. Diana Barrymore helped entertain, and one of the flyers became most attentive to her . . . "I hope to see you again soon," he told her, and then added, "Will you find time?" . . . "I'm afraid that will be impossible, since you're returning to England," replied Diana. "I'm going to do 'Philadelphia Story' in summer stock and I'll have to leave in two weeks" . . . "That's fine," said the flyer, and then he began his reckoning: "Let's see, now . . . I'll be in Bermuda Sunday morning, London on Monday . . . Do you think Wednesday night will be all right?"

LEONARD LYONS

IN PREPARATION for the publicity campaign for M.-G.-M.'s new picture—the adaptation of the Pulitzer prize-winning story, "The Yearling"—an M.-G.-M. crew was sent to the Book of the Month Club to make a trailer showing how thousands of copies of the book are being rushed to readers . . . The lighting was arranged, the cameras were set up and the workers in the shipping department submitted to makeup . . . It was then discovered that there were only two copies of "The Yearling" in the place. And so old "Yearling" book jackets were used as covers for various other books which were substituted.

BEFORE EQUITY'S bitterly-fought-out election of a new council a theatrical weekly published an advertisement in which the supporters of the regular slate were listed. One of the names was that of Betty Allen, who understudied Ethel Merman in "Panama Hattie" . . . "Why did you put your name on that list?" Miss Allen was asked . . . "Because Ethel Merman's name was on it," the understudy explained, "and offstage, as well as on, I try to do whatever she does."

WALTER DURANTY, the foreign correspondent whose friends feared that he would be stranded in Europe, now is back in New York . . . Dorothy Parker may go to London as a correspondent . . . The United States Navy won a decision over Restaurateur Billy Moore at his place of business at 3 a. m. . . . Tom Adair, who was discovered by Tommy Dorsey in California, wrote two song hits, "Everything Happens to Me" and "Let's Get Away From It All." Adair has had it happen, and is getting away—to Camp Jackson, N. C., as a draftee. Private Adair, however, will write Dorsey's new Astor program, "Camp Upbeat" . . . Steve Early's warning about certain measures which the Axis powers were planning here was directed against John Cudahy's interview with Hitler, which Life published.

HONEYCHIL' WILDER lunched at the Colony Restaurant, where Paul Flato's $65,000 diamond necklace was being displayed. Gene, the proprietor of the Colony, placed the necklace around Miss Wilder's neck and told her she may wear it for the next few days . . . Honeychil' went away for the weekend. Sunday afternoon she suddenly remembered that she had left the necklace on top of a dressing table in her apartment—and immediately phoned Ruby, her maid. Ruby reported that it was still there. "It's a pretty thing, and almost looks real," said the maid. "I was a killer last night—I wore it up in Harlem."

WHEN KING CAROL of Rumania arrived at Bermuda the correspondents all dispatched news stories revealing that Lupescu's first name was not Magda, but Elena. Capt. Allen, of the Alcoa liner Acadia—which carried Carol and his party from Bermuda to St. Thomas—has a menu which Carol and his entourage autographed. Lupescu signed it "Helena" . . . The showgirls in one of the largest night clubs threatened a walkout and strike . . . Read Arthur Koestler's "Darkness at Noon," a fascinating book which explains the Moscow trials . . . Tony Ross, who plays the cop in "Arsenic and Old Lace," came up against some real villains last week. Ross, who helps Allyn Joslyn capture Boris Karloff at every performance, was beaten up by the thugs and lost his money.

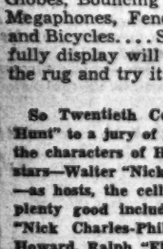
—With Hedda Hopper

Hollywood, June 9.

Even my enemies admit that I don't take too much time out talking about myself. But heck, you have a fifty-first birthday only once in a lifetime, so here goes.



HOPPER

To all my friends, and I didn't know how many there were until my natal day came around, I wish to thank you for your wonderful messages and beautiful flowers. I'm doubly grateful the flowers came while I'm still able to enjoy them, and that you didn't wait until after I'd died.

Nobody likes to surprise people better than I, but believe me, I got the surprise of my life when, after we'd finished a dramatized episode of Jack Barrymore's life on the air show, Barrymore walked into the studio, sat down at the microphone and took over. I was so stunned and touched at his beautiful speech that I was speechless.

Then friends from the studios and the networks sang "Happy Birthday." Believe me, that's something to tell my grandchildren. If I'm lucky enough to have any. What can you do when you're an old lady who feels young, and something like that happens? Sure, I bawled—so would you!

My sponsor had a little speech prepared, but there wasn't time to get it on the air, so he phoned it to me this morning. Even the bride and bridegroom, Gene Tierney and Count Cassini, came; and it was the day after their wedding. Kay Keyser and Ginny Simms, the Cobina Wrights, Lum and Abner, Jane Russell—and what a beauty she is!—Bob Stack, Anita Louise, Martha O'Driscoll, Jean Parker, Donald Wood, Bill Goodwin, Freddie Bartholomew and Aunt Cissie, John Beal, who's welcoming his wife home in a few days, Jerry Colonna, who wouldn't even gag but turned serious, Arthur Lake and Penny Singleton, who'd left the rehearsal of "Blondie," Nan Gray, Ann Rutherford (with the cutest bonnet), Michael Whalen, my darling Ida Koverman, and my good friend Arthur Ungar, Nancy Marlowe, Cecelia Callejo, and Kay Proctor.

Martin Broones and Charlotte Greenwood gave not only from the head but the heart. They got a toy orchestra, each individual piece made of wood, tin, wool, or straw, and on each was inscribed a year and a verse from a popular song of that year, the whole group covering 51 years. . . .

It's grand to have your old friends show up, but when the kids turn out and studio people leave their busy desks at 2 p. m., it does something to you that makes 51 years of ups and downs infinitely worthwhile.

Great heavens to Betsy! Merle Oberon and Alan Marshall were emoting in 6 inches of snow the other day on a Nantucket set for "Illusions," when the sky burst into flames and a large hunk of cloud fell out and beaned Merle. The crew got the big canvas under control but not before Merle had issued a snappy complaint—said there was such a thing as carrying "illusions" too far.

When Bette Davis returned to work on "Little Foxes," the first person she asked for was Charles Ray. She wanted to congratulate him on his marriage—and so do I.

Incidentally, Theresa Wright, ingenue of "Foxes," was one of the ten youngsters mentioned by old sourpuss George Jean Nathan as most likely to succeed in their chosen profession. . . . And the jerk in the same play, Dan Duryear, who looks like a mature "Dead Ender," is one of the finds of the year. You scream at every line.

'Strike Up Band' Aids City's Morale

"Strike Up the Band" struck hope to the hearts of hundreds of Coventry bomb victims, according to a letter received by Judy Garland—a letter bearing a postmark from the bombed city.

Immediately following that devastating German air raid, the manager of one of the local movie houses opened his doors to the citizens of the city to see the picture free of charge.

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

Cleveland, June 9.—An open letter to Clark Griffith: Dear Sir:

POVICH

I don't mean to butt into your business but the thought has occurred to me that you could do worse than sign that young man, Dick Wakefield, who has hit nine home runs for the University of Michigan in 26 games this spring and is being besieged with offers from nine big league clubs, including your own.

Into your lap is being dumped the chance to restore public confidence in your organization. Faith in the Washington Club and its operations has lapsed somewhat, it seems, what with your ball team floundering in eighth place and no help for it in sight. Recent trades you have made, including the Rick Ferrell-for-Vernon Kennedy deal and the purchase of such as Bill Zuber have caused folks to be very skeptical, indeed, of the astuteness of the Nat's front office.

At first glance it may appear preposterous to sign young Wakefield at any such figure at $30,000, which is the top offer he is reported to have. The boy has not so much as swung a bat in anything outside of college ball, and no such sum was ever before offered to a college ball player. But in your situation, Mr. Griffith, it could easily be a sound investment.

All right, suppose the fellow is not a big league ball player and that he has been overpaid; the action of the Washington Club in signing him would still be worthwhile. It would demonstrate that your team is trying to help itself. If the fellow is a complete flop, as an outfielder, the investment could be charged off very easily to publicity or good will. And in these times, good will is important to your ball club, your team being what it is.

You would discover that, all of a sudden, you owned the most widely-publicized player in the league. That would count for something. Young Wakefield, if he never made a hit, would be a gate attraction up to a certain point, and some of your money would be recovered. But more important it would be a demonstration of your willingness to go all-out in an effort to do something about the worst Washington Team in years.

Bidding against such as the Tigers and Red Sox and Yankees, is no fun, of course, in view of their fatter bankrolls, but the higher the figure that the deal requires, the more publicity it would command, and the deeper would be the faith you would be building. You could be very easily forgiven if Wakefield proved to be a flop. It would be recognized as a brave attempt to do something about your ball club, and the cost could, as we were saying, be very easily justified by the present plight of your team.

There is always the possibility, of course, that it might be not a costly but, in fact, an excellent investment. There seems to be a unanimity of opinion by every club that has scouted him that Wakefield in sure-fire to be a big league star. Never has there been such a frenzy to sign a college ball player. Your own manager and scouts have added their stamp of approval to the lad, and if his purchase resulted in any embarrassment later on it would not be exclusive with you. Nine clubs are of the opinion that he will do.

For the Washington Club, he represents a particular value. The lad has color, a commodity that your teams have lacked for years. He demonstrated in a brief tryout with your team at Detroit the other day that he is completely uninhibited and a trifle on the exhibitionists' side. If only for his physical resemblance to Ted Williams, screwball outfielder of the Red Sox, Wakefield is certain to be a considerable character.

He's a 6-foot-4-inch, turkey-necked gawk who breathes power at the plate. Big league pitching may stump him, of course, but that isn't the opinion of three or four clubs who would take him at the $30,000 price tag. They already know that he can get over the ground in the outfield, and that he can throw that ball. The fact that his dad was a big league ball player would not seem to be any drawback, either.

Far be it from this department to suggest to anybody how he should spend his dough (hear! hear!), but we are just trying to be friendly. This is a chance that we would welcome if we were in the baseball business and were being faced with a slackening of interest in a ball team which has been none too hot. If we had the borrowing power we would try, somehow, to buy a guy like this Wakefield, at a time like this. Yrs. truly, S. P.

On the Line

With CONSLDINE

Fort Worth, Tex., June 9.—The man who made the forty-fifth annual U. S. Open championship as successful as it was thundered "what the tarnation is the United States Open championship?" when a few Fort Worth golf enthusiasts came to him some time ago and asked his support of their ambitious dream to bring the tournament here.

CONSIDINE

He is Amon G. Carter, the fabulous Texas newspaper publisher and oil man who crashed up the ladder of success and dragged the city of Fort Worth along with him. Carter is a six-shootin', gusty, husky go-getter whose rise in the world has run such interesting gamuts as selling the newspapers he now publishes. He breathes of Texas, and the State's bigness is in everything he does.

He gave an intimate little barbecue for 500 golfers and guests at his Shady Oak farm the other night and, as Clarence Buddington Kelland pointed out over the loud speakers which nestled in the immense trees of the farm, Amon set a new record for bigness by having 16 men in the quartet which entertained during dinner.

After Carter demanded of the Fort Worth golf people that they tell him what it was they wanted him to back with his dough, his endorsement, and the vast publicity forces at his command, he suddenly recalled that Grantland Rice once had taken him to an Open.

"It's a golf tourney, isn't it?", he roared. "Well, get it. Have it sent down here, and we'll do it bigger and better than it's ever been done."

And, brother, he wasn't overstating facts. It even rained harder than it has ever rained before, though Carter modestly denies having arranged for the cloud ruptures.

Carter blames the rain on Dallas. Every setback Fort Worth ever had, absorbed from the hand of God or man, Carter sincerely believes emanated in Dallas. The latter city, twice as big as Fort Worth, lies 30 miles to the East. Carter, through the long years of baiting Dallas by persuading big firms to move their headquarters out of Dallas and into Fort Worth, has erected a high wall between the two Texas cities. He has consigned Dallas to the decadent East, and in the masthead of his Fort Worth Star-Telegram he has this legend: "Where the West begins."

He invited President Roosevelt, all the members of his Cabinet, Jim Farley, heads of U. S. and Bethlehem Steel, heads of a veritable Dunn and Bradstreet book full of big firms to attend the open. He sent them all gold badges with their names engraved on them. He chartered floors of hotels, had the city airport (which is dedicated to him) cleared for the arrival of private planes, and told his city to throw open its heart to the golfers.

He distributed countless Western hats to friends for he buys them in gross lots. Carter even got around to seeing a few holes of the tournament played. The tournament must have cost him a mint—but it got Fort Worth's name in the paper from coast to coast, and that's enough for Amon.

Carter hasn't missed a world series for 30 years, or a big fight, or a football game. He adopted Texas Christian University a decade or two ago and built it up into a great football power and became the father confessor of such of its all America stars as Sammy Baugh, Davey O'Brien, Ki Aldrich, I. B. Hale and Rags Matthews.

A couple of years ago when a national magazine which was about to run a story on him couldn't find him in Texas, to verify a few facts, its editors discovered him leading the T. C. U. cowboy band in a street recital in front of the magazine office in Philadelphia. He had on a long white polo coat, a ten gallon hat and fancy boots. What's more, he was leading it well.

There isn't much doubt that he is America's No. 1 sports fan. He has been called an exhibitionist, and hard-headed and a super-salesman. But not by many who have gotten around to knowing him. The man was just born colorful, and what is ostentation for another is little more than instinct for him. He keeps his name and picture out of his papers even though he is the most newsworthy man in the State. When economist, B. C. Forbes wrote a eulogy to him the other day, he ran it under Forbes' stockhead—with a little bold-faced precede that read:

"The opinions here expressed are not those of the Star-Telegram, but those formed by B. C. Forbes."

Cards Defeat Giants, 5 to 2; Regain Lead

New York, June 9.—The St. Louis Cardinals, combining Harry Gumbert's four-hit pitching with some timely hitting and Brooklyn's defeat, rode back into first place in the hectic National League pennant race today with a 5-to-2 victory over the New York Giants.

Gumbert, adding to Bill Terry's regrets about the deal that sent him from the Giants to St. Louis in a trade deal for Bill McGee, held his former teammates to one hit for five innings and checked them in the fifth when they loaded the bases on two walks and an error after two were out. The victory was Gumbert's fifth since going to St. Louis and his sixth of the season.

Mel Ott's teenth homer, hit in the sixth inning on top of Dick Bartell's single, saved the Giants from a shutout. Bob Carpenter lost the game for his first defeat as a major leaguer after copping two straight for the Giants last September and three for them this season.

Martin Marion's two-run homer sent the Cards away in front in the second. They bunched five of their 12 hits in the sixth for the three other runs with Enos Slaughter's triple starting the rally and Jimmy Brown's third single finishing it.

Patty Berg Takes Western Open Medal

By the Associated Press

Cincinnati, June 9.—Miss Patty Berg, red-haired, freckle-faced golf professional from Minneapolis, ripped two strokes off par with a scintillating 71 today to pace a field of 82 over Cincinnati Country Club's treacherous terrain in the 18-hole qualifier for the twelfth annual Woman's Western Open Championship.

The sparkling round, including four birdies and an eagle, gave the Minnesota miss a 5-stroke edge for the medal.

In second place with 76 was Miss Helen Dettweiler, of Washington, D. C., winner of the tourney in 1939 and the only former champ in the field.

Miss Betty Jameson, National Amateur champ from San Antonio, was the only other qualifier to crack 80, her 79 landing her in third place. Recent heavy rains and a steady drizzle which fell during the afternoon round made the 5,877-yard hill-and-dale course long and tough.

Miss Berg's round set a new competitive record for the layout, Mrs. Burt Weil of Cincinnati, another qualifier, having toured the course in 72 several years ago in a district meet.

Championship match play starts Tuesday and runs through to Saturday's 36-hole title round.

The pairings put Miss Berg and Miss Jameson in the upper bracket, while Miss Dettweiler was in the lower half with Mrs. Weil, three-time Ohio champion, and Mrs. James D. Platt, of Dayton, Ohio medal play queen.

Miss Berg is making her second start in the tourney, three years ago lost in an extra hole to Mrs. Opal Hill, of Kansas City, who sank a chip shot to oust the redhead. Miss

Hey, Louis! Look What Simon Did!

By the Associated Press

New York, June 9.—Big Abe Simon, making his first start since he gave World Champion Joe Louis a 13-round tussle last March, stopped Pete Tamalonis, of Buffalo, N. Y., in 56 seconds of the second round of a ten-round bout at the Coliseum tonight.

Outweighing his opponent by more than 75 pounds, Simon didn't even have to work hard. After taking a hard right to the jaw early in the second, Tamalonis told the referee he had had enough. Simon took things easy in the first round and didn't land any damaging punches.

Ken Overlin Defeats Charles

Cincinnati, June 9 (U.P.).—Taking his time and matching his experience against youthful power, Ken Overlin, of Washington, rapped out a ten-round decision tonight over Ezzard Charles, young Cincinnati Negro middleweight.

Overlin, weighing 162½, had Charles, 161, staggering in the late rounds, although the early part of the bout was on more even terms. The former middleweight champion of the world, who lost his title just a month ago on a disputed decision to Billy Soose, scored a no-count knockdown on Charles in the second round.

The Post boxing writer, a lazy fellow by nature, watched Buddy idly pecking away on a typewriter and prevailed upon Scott to hand over the manuscript, thereby saving the effort of digging up a daily story. I was born in the booming oil town of Electra, Texas, March 27, 1917, the last of five children, having two brothers and two sisters. At the age of three my family moved to Clovis, New Mexico, due to the ill health of my father.

At the ripe old age of nearly four summers I started to discover the wonders of ranch life. However, I was very timid around horses and cattle and I was nearing my sixth birthday before I learned the art of riding a horse by myself. I had ridden many times on the same horse with one of my two brothers, but never by myself. They were about to give up in disgust and disown me as a brother.

Regaining his health, my father moved us back to Electra where I attended grammar school. I had an ordinary American boy's life doing different jobs such as a newsboy and holding the ranking position of "printers devil" on one of the two weekly Electra papers.

But being more interested in playing than studying I tried out for most of the school sports when time permitted—such as softball and basketball—and I jumped in the running broad jump in the track meets. My coach told me confidential that I would be a good dash man later if I could only get out of the habit of running in the same place so long. He admitted that I was the bravest of all the boys in the dash races, because I always

3 Outbursts In Closing Innings Win

Champions Score 3 in 7th, 4 in 8th And 2 in 9th; Casey Cracks in Seventh

By the Associated Press

Brooklyn, June 9.—The red hot Cincinnati Reds pulled another victory out of the fire today with a lightning fast finish that beat Brooklyn, 9 to 7, and dropped the Dodgers out of the National League lead.

It was the eighth triumph in ten games for the world champions and moved them within half a game of third place.

After being shutout for six innings on one hit, a single by Jim Gleeson in the sixth, the Reds took advantage of every break, and there were several, to score three times in the seventh, four in the eighth and twice in the ninth as the Dodgers desperately paraded three pitchers to the relief of chubby Hugh Casey.

Dodgers Take Lead

Brooklyn succeeded in making things tough for Gene Thompson right from the start and took a lead in the fourth when Babe Phelps slashed a home run over the right-field fence after Bill Herman and Pete Reiser singled.

They added two more in the sixth on Phelps' double. A fielder's choice and three singles. They were given their final pair in the seventh by Whitey Moore, who loaded the bases with two walks and a hit batsman ahead of a single by Jim Wasdell, his third straight hit.

Casey came apart completely in the seventh afther his spill was broken. Eddie Joost doubled, Jim Ripple walked, Ernie Koy doubled for one run and Ernie Lombardi singled for two.

Curt Davis No Better

Curt Davis was no better in the eighth, giving a double to Bob Mattick, a pinch single to Harry Craft, a triple to Joost and Lonnie Frey's fifth home run of the year—the combination good for four runs and a tie score.

Bill Swift put out this blaze, but with Kirby Higbe on duty in the ninth and one out, Shortstop Pee-Wee Reese made a two-base overthrow of first, Higbe fanned Pinch Hitter Eddie Shokes fresh from Duke University, then walkid Joost and Frey doubled for the two winning runs.

State College, Pa., June 9.—Army service may suspend Barney Ewell's track career just as he is approaching his peak, but the Penn State Negro sprint champion said today "I'm ready to do my duty."

Ewell, only athlete to win three I. C. 4-A titles two years in succession and defending sprint champion in the National Collegiate meet at Palo Alto, Calif., June 20-21, has been notified by his selective service board to report early next month.

"If folks think our country is in danger, I'm ready to do my duty," the brown bullet said philosophically. "I guess that's more important than athletics."

Ewell, a junior with another year of collegiate competition ahead of him, is just coming into his own as a track star, in the opinion of his coach. Chick Werner, one-time Illinois hurdle star.

Wedemeyer has announced he will pitch his last Eastern Shore game tomorrow night when the Indians meet the Federalsburg A's at Salisbury.

Owner Reuben Levin has appointed Bobby Maier, veteran utility performer, to take over the managerial duties. Maier, a consistent hitter, has been with Salisbury for four seasons.

American League To Hold Special Days for Soldiers

By the Associated Press

Chicago, June 9.—President William Harridge announced tonight that the American League baseball clubs will charge no admission for United States service men on special days for the remainder of the current season.

He added he had instructed each club to work out its own system of admitting soldiers, sailors and marines free of charge.

Under the plan outlined by the president the clubs are expected to set aside certain days for the service units and reserv espace for them.

The Chicago White Sox already have used a similar system in admitting free service men in training at nearby Fort Sheridan and the Great Lakes Naval Training Station.

School Title Game Moved Again—It's At Western Now

A final (he hopes) shift in the interhigh playoff game between Eastern and Western for the public school baseball championship was announced last night by Hardy Pearce, head of the department of health and physical education.

The latest change moves tomorrow's clash to Western from its original site at Anacostia field. Starting time will be the same, 3:30. Each team has won one game in the three-game series so far.

Hartley Expects to Present Ring Body's Salary Bill to House

He'll Discuss Draft Today With Morgan

'Father' of D.C. Fight Bill Praises Local Body; Measure Calls For $3,000 Salaries

By Al Hailey

Representative Fred Hartley, of New Jersey, who "fathered" the bill legalizing boxing in the Capital, is expected to be the House sponsor for the District Boxing Commission's latest brain storm—a bill calling for salaries of $3,000 per year for two of its members.

The New Jersey Republican said he will confer with Thomas P. Morgan, jr., this morning about the provisions of the bill, now being drafted by Corporation Counsel Richmond B. Keech.

"Of course, I'm not going to present myself before I see the bill and know what is in it," Hartley said last night, "but I do expect to present it. I am going to go over the bill with Mr. Morgan in the morning."

Morgan Key Figure

Morgan, although he is the junior member of the three-man commission, has been doing all the talking for the boxing body of late and has been the key figure in demanding that the salary item be included.

"A man who gets paid for a job is going to do a much better job of it, and if he is going to receive compensation it might as well be something worth while," is Morgan's attitude.

The salary bill is expected to run into stiff opposition in the House, where several members have been considering a resolution calling for a Congressional investigation of boxing nationally.

Hartley said he had heard reports of the measure on Capitol Hill, but had taken no part in the move.

Favors Probe of Boxing

"It might be a good idea to have some sort of national control of professional boxing," he said. "As far as the District boxing commission is concerned, I think the members have done a pretty good job so far, and anything I can do to help them I am going to do.

"I think the Capital ought to be one of the finest boxing centers in the Nation, and I'm going to do everything in my power to make it so."

The bill which Keech is drawing up was to be modeled after the redraft of the New York State boxing bill, which is expected to go into effect in the next 60 or 90 days. Morgan, however, said he could see nothing in the New York bill which would better conditions in the District.

Major points in the new bill, in addition to salaries, provide that commissioners' tenure of office be extended from two to three years; that the District government take over all boxing commission funds exceeding $12,000, and that weight of gloves be reduced from eight to six ounces.

Doerer, Smith Indian Spring Golf Victors

Smith had an individual 75 and Doerer a 76, but when one was out the other was in and their three-under-par score was best of the small field. Smith had a three handicap stroke allotment.

Four Deadlocks

Four pro-amateur combinations deadlocked for second prize, Cox and Maury Fitzgerald, 69; George Diffenbaugh and two Kenwood members, Bob Fuchs and V. G. Myers, 69, and Mel Shorey, host pro, and Ralph Bogart.

Wood Hopes Title Will Net Him $25,000

By the Associated Press

New York, June 9.—Craig Wood hopes to make around $25,000 out of the National Golf title, he said today on his arrival here fresh from his triumph at Fort Worth, Tex., last Saturday.

"The title isn't worth what it used to be," he amplified. "In 1928 Johnny Farrell must have made $75,000 out of it. However, I'm satisfied just to have won it."

Wood said his plans would be indefinite until he had talked with the officials of the Winged Foot Club at Mamaroneck where he is the pro, but he said that if he obtained permission from the club he would spend the summer playing exhibition matches.

The 39-year-old linksman still was wearing a polo belt to brace his injured back, but he said the injury in no way interfered with his play. In fact, it was an advantage, he insisted.

Buddy Scott Tells All—About Himself

I was reaching the age of eleven or twelve when the opportunity to become famous as well as to gain wealth was presented to me by the barker of "Add." or Athletic show, that had come to town with a Carnival. The fame? Well wouldn't one be famous by getting up on the platform before all of his neighbors and townsmen and boxing? Fortune? Wouldn't it be considered good fortune to walk right in through the front gate of the boxing show and not having to sneak under the tent in the rear? Imagine a perfectly good pass to the wrestling show and all you have to do is fight somebody.

It was at this time that I proved to be as good a manager as a fighter, for Barker told me to go find someone to fight and here the managership came to the fore—I picked a school mate that I had all ready licked on the way home from school four or five times before.

At this time we lost our father and the family broke up somewhat, moving to San Angelo, Texas, and I soon had an opportunity to go to High School in Ada, Oklahoma. However I had a great desire to go to Oklahoma Military Academy at Claremore, Oklahoma, so I went there to try and see if I might be able to enroll but discovered that the tuition was more than I could raise. Thinking that perhaps I could make it the next year if I made a good name as a football player I hunted up a job in a cafe for room and board and enrolled in the local high school and did make the football team, but by the next year I had become a part of the regular arrangement of the coming year, so I stayed in school and graduated with honors. At this time brothers Howard and Tommy were making quite a name for themselves as professional boxers. I had had a warm spot in my heart for this sport all of the time and had trained all along. After graduating from high school I was offered a scholorship at O.M.A.* Boxing, football and polo were the chief sports here.

As I had made the second team on the Oklahoma all-State football team I played football until the season was over and then started training for boxing. After the following year I had competed in fifteen tournaments, winning twelve, losing in three National tournaments. I competed in the middleweight and light-heavyweight divisions. In the nationals at St. Louis in 1935 as a middleweight I won three kayos but was withdrawn because of an injured jaw. This was the year that Nova won the amateur heavyweight title.

One of the early thrills of my life was in being introduced to the immortal Will Rogers while I was attending school at Claremore. Later he become one of my best friends. Turning professional in 1935 I came to Washington because there was much more money to be made here than in the Southwest. After fighting all summer I decided to continue my schooling and enrolled in G. W. U. in the fall.

Quite an important incident has been overlooked. During one of the tournaments being held in Ada there was a very interested spectator—and I might add not an admirer of mine. She happened to be very enthusiastic rooting for my opponent in the finals, even going so far as to lay a wager on him—but I got even with her for that: I married her. Revenge is sweet, they say. She was Jerry Nichols, a local college girl. Since then we have been blessed with two fine baby girls, twins, born Jan. 29, 1938. We have been extremely lucky with them and I intend to see that they have everything that is needed for their comfort and happiness. If that isn't worth fighting for what could be?

80,000 HuntingLicenses Ready in Maryland

Baltimore, June 9 (AP).—The clerks of courts of Maryland counties were ready today to begin sale of nearly 80,000 State hunting licenses provided them by the game and inland fish commission.

Attached to each license is a postal card to enable the hunter to report his kill, as provided by law, before January 15 of next year. Under the new law, all nonresidents, whether or not they own land in Maryland, are required to buy licenses.

Skinker and Whittlesey Take Medal Playoff at Bannockburn

Best Ball of 67 Beats Former C. U. Teammates by Two Strokes

Earle Skinker, Columbia, and Merrell Whittlesey, Manor, won the playoff for the Bannockburn Invitation Tournament medal yesterday with a 3-under par best ball 67 to the 69 of John Jankowski, Central High coach, and George Shanly, a prominent Rochester, N. Y., golfer who is now employed in the Government here. They tied with 68s in the qualifying round Friday.

Jankowski and Shanly, former teammates on the Catholic University golf team, played their round Sunday afternoon and turned in a 37, 33—69, with Jankowski posting an individual 73.

Skinker, the 19-year-old former scholastic champ who is playing the best golf of his career, and Whittlesey played yesterday and turned in a 34, 33—67, Skinker posting an individual 71. Skinker had four birdies and Whittlesey two but they went over par on three holes, the former clinching the victory with a 10-footer for a birdie 4 on the eighteenth.

Miller Lone Pro to Pick Craig Wood

Craig Wood's victory in the National Open Championship was predicted by only one of the Middle Atlantic P. G. A. members who answered The Post's golf questionnaire—Congressional's assistant professional Jocko Miller.

Miller liked Wood because "He got that certain something by winning at Augusta," and he's been calling the turn on the New York pro since his April victory in the Augusta classic.

Second choice of Wiffy Cox's assistant was Sam Snead who tied for thirteenth and third Byron Nelson, who tied for seventeenth. He liked Ben Hogan fourth and Hogan tied for third and he picked Horton Smith, who tied for thirteenth with Snead, for fifth place.

The pro consensus was not too good as for the first five places they liked Nelson, Hogan, Snead, Wood and Ralph Guldahl. Johnny Bulla, who finished in a tie for third, and Paul Runyan and Herman Barron, who tied for fifth, were not mentioned as likely finishers in the first five by any of their brother pros.

Al Houghton, of Beaver Dam, picked Wood for third place and Hogan as the winner, while Johnny Bass, Baltimore, also picked Wood third and Hogan second.

Bob Barnett, the Chevy Chase mentor, was the only M. A. pro to pick Denny Shute, who led all the way through and finished second, for better than fifth place while he was also close with Harold McSpaden and Gene Sarazen, whom he picked for second and third and finished seventh and eighth.

Skinker, Willetts Seek Schoolboy Medal Today

Earle Skinker and the Willet brothers, Carroll and Alton, will officially open John Connolly's new Fairfax Golf Course today with a playoff for the medal in the Metropolitan Schoolboy Championship at 3:15 p. m.

Alton Willett, who dethroned Skinker as champion, and Carroll, Bethesda High golfer, and Skinker, of Devitt, tied with 75's in the qualifying round two weeks ago.

The Fairfax Course has been open since May 30, but today will mark the first competitive rounds over the nine-hole public links layout in nearby Virginia.

Men's District Bowlers Meet Tomorrow

A special meeting of the alley owners sponsoring teams in the Men's District League has been called for Wednesday night by Ed Schlegel, president. The group will meet at the Lucky Strike alleys and 8 o'clock has been designated as the hour. All alley owners now owning franchises in the league are expected to be present, or to be represented by the team captain or properly authorized person.

It will be assumed, league officials stated, that nonattendance at this important meeting signifies that absentees are not interested in a District League franchise for the coming season of play.

A number of the recently completed bowling establishments of Metropolitan Washington, recognizing the publicity value of a house team in the Districts fastest duckpin league, have already made application to enter teams, and these alley owners, managers, or their representatives, are strongly urged to be present to discuss replacements, if any, and to complete other necessary organization details.

One of the important matters coming up Wednesday night, besides deciding as to the roster of teams for the 1941-42 season, is the election of officers. Incumbent officers are: Ed Schlegel, Georgetown Recreation, president; Astor Clarke, Lafayette Bowling Center, vice president, and Elsworth Geib, secretary-treasurer-scorer.

The Men's District League closed one of its most successful seasons a few weeks ago, and if present plans materialize the coming year's play will show a decided increase in popularity as well as a still higher quality of bowling. There are 12 teams in the present organization and it is thought this total will hold for the new season.

With Lucy Rose herself leading the way with highs of 132-337, the Rosslyn girls' team defeated the Brookland Recreation All-Stars by the score of 1,572 to 1,532. At the end of the second game the Rosslyn girls were 54 pins down and the Brookland girls seemed well on their way to duplicating their victory over the Virginians of several weeks ago. But with the pressure on, the Rosslyn girls had their biggest scores of the evening, each one coming through in splendid fashion. Hilda Sprinkle was second high for Rosslyn with her 124-330. Evelyn Naylor had 113-311, and Blanche Wootton a 307 set. Vickie Crwoggon's 128-320, Evelyn Sebastian's 115-319 and Martha Biggs' 117-309 were best for the Brookland girls.

BILL GILLER

Try pitching regularly for a good ball club, holding down a job in the United States Maritime Commission and pacing the floor at night with a 4-week-old offspring and you'll understand how William Bender Giller spends his time.

Yet the press of other duties doesn't seem to take a toll on Bill's mound performances. He's concededly the ace of the Mattos A. C. mound staff, in the Washington-Virginia League.

The "Bender" part of Bill's name is no gag. It's a family hand-down. He's worried, however, for fear people will think he's bragging about his curve ball when he mentions it.

A lanky right-hander, Giller depends a great deal on a fast ball and excellent control. His latest start, Sunday against the Arlington Maccabees, proved his first setback of the season when he was driven from the hill in the sixth inning with five runs charged against him. He had allowed only four hits, however. Previously, he had won three straight for Mattos.

A graduate of Tech High in 1933, Giller claims no high school pitching record. His first real starring role was with the Read's Pharmacy nine, which reached the play-offs of the Capital City "A" League. Last year he hurled for the J. C. Flood club of the same circuit.

So far this year the clever hurler's best effort was in a league clash with the Gibson Grays. He won by a 17-8 score, issuing only three hits and fanning 17.—BURNETT.

Banks to Race At W. Lanham Inaugural

Henry Banks, for six years a colorful big car competitor in the annaul Memorial Day Indianapolis Speedway classic and today the individual point leader in the Cedarhurst, Long Island, Speedway competition, yesterday was signed to compete in West Lanham, Md., Speedway's dedicatory midget automobile races a week from tonight, June 17.

Banks, who thrilled a sellout crowd with a brilliant victory at the Cedarhurst Bowl just last Saturday night, has compiled 413 points as against 311 for runner-up Wild Bill Holmes, who is to appear on the same program.

One of the most popular drivers in the country, Banks will be driving a newly purchased $3,400 Offenhauser car, one of the neatest midget jobs in the East. He is a speed demon who bears down every minute and seldom slackens his pace.

Banks agreed to appear at West Lanham yesterday after several days of dickering with Racing Director Walter Stebbins. He pleaded prior booking when he was first invited to compete on the new speedway last wekend, but since has revised his schedule sufficiently to warrant an appearnace at the new track.

Banks is the sixth big name driver of 22 expected to compete here to be definitely lined up. Bill Schintler, Wild Bill Holmes, Ted Tappett, Ernie Gessel and Mike Joseph had signed.

Favorable weather within the last few days has enabled workmen to nearly complete the fine racing layout at West Lanham and indications are that the new track will be tested by midget drivers from local and nearby points over the weekend.

Patty Berg Wins Medal in Western

In the opening round, Miss Berg is destined to meet Mrs. Jake Searl, of Cuyahoga Falls, Ohio, while Miss Jameson will oppose Mrs. George Wilcox, of Miami, Fla. Miss Dettweiler drew Miss Dorothy Foster, of Springfield, Ill., as her opening foe.

Miss Betty Jane Haemerle of St. Louis, 15-year-old school girl, was the youngest entrant to get into the select 32, her 87 being well up among the leaders as the wet going lifted the qualifying limit to 95 strokes.

Beer Softies Hold Lead, Beat Manhattan, 7-2

Senate Beer retained its one-game lead in the Merchant's Night Softball League last night at Ballston, turning back a scrappy Manhattan Auto and Radio, 7-2, in the first game of a doubleheader. Second place Standard Linen came from behind with a two-run rally in the sixth inning to nip Plaza Wine and Liquor, 4-3, in the nightcap.

Going into the sixth inning Plaza held a 3-2 lead, but Jimmy Woodward's walk and Eli Blank's bouncing double accounted for two runs. Blank tallied when Norman Baulsir's throw to catch hi mat second hit Umpire Coleman and bounced into rightfield.

Tomorrow night Washington's first inter-city series will be featured when Senate meet Baltimore's champion Schavitz ten in the nightcap; of an exhibition doubleheader, while International Business Machines plays Bethleheam Steel, also of Baltimore, in the first game.

Gil Hunt Falters, But Beats Hackett In Pa. State Tennis

Hunt, ranked fourteenth nationally, lost the first set, 6—3, to Harry Hackett, of Philadelphia, but rallied to win the next two, 6—3, 7—5.

Special Dispatch to The Post

New Market, Va., June 9.—Though it suffered a 5-3 setback at the hands of Broadway's nine Sunday, Mount Crawford still retained a share in the Rockingham County Baseball League lead, being tied with Keezletown and Broadway with three victories and two losses. Other league results saw Keezletown trip Spring Creek, 7-6, and Ottlbine defeated Linville, 6-4.

New Restriction Put on Upper River Fishing

By the Associated Press

Richmond, Va., June 9 (AP).—An agreement between the State commission of game and inland fisheries and the State fisheries commission will give the game commission jurisdiction over three areas in the upper Potomac River next year and will result in the prohibition of commercial fishing in those sections.

The agreement was announced by Carl H. Nolting, chairman of the game commission, after a controversy lasting several months.

Licenses issued by the fisheries commission for this year in the contested areas of Dogue Creek, Gunston Cove and Belmont Bay will be honored until they expire and the new jurisdictional arrangement will go into effect next year.

Nolting said he received notice of the fisheries commission's acceptance of the other commission's claims from J. Brooks Mapp, commissioner of fisheries, which has control over all fishing in tidal waters of the State.

The fisheries commission contended the waters should be open for seine fishing and under control of that body, while the game commission held that it should have jurisdiction since the areas were fresh water fishing grounds and adapted to hook and line fishing.

Bartell Explains Crack at Feller

Says Fireballer Can't Compare With Grove, Lyons in Brain Work

By George Kirksey

United Press Staff Correspondent.

New York, June 9.—Baseball potpourri:

Dick Bartell, the fiery little shortstop now back with the Giants after helping Detroit win the pennant last season, wants to correct the impression that he thinks Bob Feller is "dumb" . . . Bartell told somee New York scribes he thought Feller was a "dumb pitcher" and thought no more about it until clippings started bouncing back from all over the country in which "Rowdy Dick" was berated no end . . . Feller is easily the most popular player in the country because of his sportsmanship, modesty and gentlemanly conduct on and off the field.

"I am sticking by my original statement that I think Feller is a dumb pitcher," Bartell says, "but I don't mean it the way it sounds. I mean he isn't a smart pitcher like Ted Lyons or Lefty Grove or like Carl Hubbell a few years ago. But Feller doesn't have to be. He has so much natural stuff he can get by without trying to outsmart the batter. You can know what Feller's going to throw and still not hit him. But with fellows like Lyons and Grove, you have to be careful or they'll outfox you. Maybe ten years from now Feller will resort to guile and cunning but right now he just rears back and throws the ball."

The first name of Ace Adams, Giants' relief pitcher, is the real handle tagged on him by his parents. . . . He used to be a professional fighter. . . . Tom Ferrick, the Athletics' surprise package, pitched for the Brooklyn Bushwicks last season and was picked up for a song by the A's. . . . Clark Griffith, who has watched his Washington club sink to the American League cellar, says in all his years in baseball he never felt so helpless over the situation. . . . "I'm not blaming Bucky Harris and I'm not going to fire him," Griffith says.

Bob Feller and Jeff Heath are roommates and when Feller pitches Heath does his best hitting. . . . In 14 games Feller has started Heath has made 22 hits in 48 times at bat for an average of .479, with five homers. . . . Several National League umpires say the Reds' Elmer Riddle has more stuff on the ball than any youngster in the league. . . . Bill McKechnie says it was a crime Johnny Vander Meer didn't get a no-hitter against the Phillies last Friday night. . . . The only hit off him was an infield single by Danny Litwhiler. . . . "Joost was in front of the ball all the way," McKechnie said and said he could have thrown the runner out if he hadn't stepped in a mudhole getting the ball."

Jimmy Wilson, Cubs' boss, and Frankie Frisch, Pirates' skipper, are the strictest managers in the majors about their ball players being in bed at midnight . . . Wilson, or Dr. Andrew Hemingway Lotshaw, Cubs' trainer, calls each Chicagoan on the phone to see if he's in bed.

Those critics who lambasted Joe McCarthy for selling Babe Dahlgren to the Braves should take note of the fact that Cassy Stengel has had to bench him because of weak hitting . . . Dahlgren's batting average is .217 . . . with Rosar hitting .405 and Dickey .269 the Yanks have the best hitting catching staff in baseball . . . and over in Newark the Yanks have Ken . . . with McCosky hitting .353, up next year, who's blasting .356 Sears, young catcher, due to come Campbell .340 and Mullin .339 the Tiger outfield isn't doing so badly without Greenberg . . . ineffective pitching is the Tigers' big trouble.

French-Born Salford II Takes Queens 'Cap at Aqueduct

Can't Wait Second to $13.10 Shot

Don Meade Pilots Victor; Corydon Runs Third; Crowd Of 13,111 Attends

By the Associated Press

Aqueduct Race Track, N. Y., June 9.—R. B. Strassburger's steadily improving French-bred 5-year-old Salford II, rank outsider in the field of four, today proved the equine hero of the Queens County Handicap, traditional feature of the opening-day festivities of this popular track. The smooth-striding gelding, unknown here until he won a pair of class "C" handicaps at Belmont Park, held on to beat Myron Selznick's 3-to-4 favorite, Can't Wait, by a half length.

Third money in the mile-and-a-sixteenth test went to Mrs. Payne Whitney's Corydon, a half dozen lengths behind, while Samuel D. Riddle's The Finest completed the small field, far back.

Salford 2nd, ridden by Don Meade, was timed in 1:44 2-5 as he collected purse gleanings of $4,275 for his owner and pair his comparative few backers $13.10 for two.

A crowd of 13,111, as compared to the 1940 opening throng of only slightly in excess of 9,000, was on hand for the inaugural program. It was a perfect day for the sport and the fans were pleased with the more commodious stands, made larger since last fall.

Can't Wait, which recently returned to competition with a sprint victory at Belmont, was considered something of a cinch to win today over his favorite racetrack, especially after the withdrawal of Dit, Robert L., Devil's Crag and Moscow 2nd.

Bucs Shut Out Phillies, 5-0, Behind Wilkie

By the Associated Press

Philadelphia, June 9.—With Aldon Wilkie allowing the Philadelphia clubbers a niggardly six safeties, the Pittsburgh Pirates scuttled the Phillies today, 5 to 0.

Lee Handley started things off for the Bucs in the fourth inning when he singled and advanced to third on Merrill May's wild heave. Bob Elliott followed with a triple off the right-field wall.

The Pirates put over two more runs in the seventh on a walk and successive singles by Al Lopez and Wilkie. They added an additional pair in the eighth, when Handley walked, Elliott and Maurice Van Robays hit safely and Elbie Fletcher poled a long fly to the outfield.

Cubs Defeat Braves, 13-6; Root Is Victor

Boston, June 9.—Forty-two-year-old Charlie Root coasted to an easy victory today as his Chicago Cub teammates bombarded four Boston Brave pitchers for 21 hits in capturing their third decision in the four-game series, 13-6.

Every Cub hit safely, Lou Stringer, with four for five, including a double, and tiny Dom Dallessandro, who collected a single, double and homer, led the assault.

The Braves hopped into an early two-run lead, and in the fourth the team deadlocked at three-all. The Cubs broke out in the sixth, chasing seven runs across while they knocked starter Tom Earley and relief Pitcher Frank Lamanna out of the box. Jim Tobin and Joe Sullivan finished the pitching chores.

Cameo Tries Again To 'Beat Heurich'

The perpetual attempt of Manager Connie Wyche and his Cameo Furniture nine to "beat Heurich" in The Washington Post-Industrial League will get another airing today at the South Ellipse, when the furniture club and the Brewers square off at 5 o'clock. To date the Beermen have won two games in the second half of league play, while Cameo was rained out in its only scheduled outing.

Vander Meer Winning Friends Influencing Baseball People

'Perfect Game' Star Appears on Road to New Fame With Reds

By the Associated Press

Brooklyn, June 9.—Johnny Vander Meer, whose popularity with his fellow Cincinnati Reds last fall was such that Commissioner Landis had to intercede for him in the split-up of the World Series pool, is earning himself back into favor with the World Champions.

He may never be as beloved to his teammates as Buck Walters or some of the rest, but the pitching of the double no-hit southpaw star has been the brightest beacon in belated rush of the Reds and his one-hitter against the Phillies last Friday night was a masterpiece to which they all point with pride.

His Greatest Game

"It was the best gam ehe ever pitched," declared big Ernie Lombardi, who caught both his no-hit spectacles in 1938. "He walked the first man he faced and after that nobody got on base except Litwhiler in the second. That could have been called an error as well as a hit."

The Reds have won eight of their last ten games, but the performance of Vander Meer is about all that the champs are proud of—that and the facts that they are back in the first division of the National League and won three straight from the Dodgers.

We've been doing pretty good—with the help of some of the other clubs," he observed. The hitting is a little better, but not good enough. The pitching has been all right, but that's something that you always need more of."

Thompson didn't win a game until the Dodgers played the Giants last week, and then today he was knocked out of the box trying to repeat. But Vander Meer has something the club can tie to.

Vander Meer Finds Self

He got off to a fast start, then faltered along with tre rest of the club, but he found himself the last time the Reds were in St. Louis.

McKechnie started him with the admonition that if he walked two men he would be replaced. Vandy walked the first man, gave three balls to the next, then made him ground out and went on to win easily.

His teammates say he is a much improved pitcher over the start of the season, and his total of five victories lends authority to their opinion. They came when sorely needed and took up some of the slack left by Walters and Paul Derringer.

VANDER MEER

Vander Meer is due to pitch in the series beginning tomorrow at Boston, and if he can win again the Reds will be back in the running. Today they were only a half-game out of third place. In any case, he seems sure to get his full financiti benefits this year.

He came back from exile in the minors last August 31 and his teammates voted him a $1,000 share of the series cut, which was less than the Yankees used to give their bat boy, but Landis made the players change it to a percentage—one quarter share.

Gillis Named 'Outstanding' Army Grad

Special Dispatch to The Post

West Point, N. Y., June 9.—The Army Athletic Association's trophy to the graduating cadet voted the outstanding athlete of his class was presented today to William G. Gillis, of Cameron, Tex.

In addition, Gillis also received the Edgerton award as the outgoing football captain, and was commended for placing second in the Penn Relay 120-yard high hurdle race.

Brig. Gen. Robert L. Eichelberger, superintendent of the United States Military Academy, presented the awards during the annual athletic review this morning.

Fifty other cadets, most of them team captains and place-winners in intercollegiate championship meets, were given awards during the ceremony, at which members of the 17 Army corps squads appeared in their respective sports uniforms.

Those cadets, other than Gillis, receiving major prizes were Herbert Richardson, Camden, N. J., and Robert Maloney, Jersey City, N. J., Pierce Currier Foster Memorial Trophies as first and second best all around gymnasts; Edawrd H. De Saussure, Charleston, S. C., Heiberg Trophy for horsemanship; John F. Harris, Chicago, Ill., Hughes Award as most valuable player on the Army football team.

George S. Brown, Washington, D. C., Howze Trophy as outstanding polo player; Joseph J. Thigpen, Ruston, La., W. P. Fickes Memorial Trophy as outgoing lacrosse captain; Alfred J. F. Moody, Hamden, Conn.; Sands Trophy as outstanding fencer; Richard G. Tindall, Fort Meade, Md., Army Tennis Association award as outgoing tennis captain.

Powerboat Tosses Driver in Drink, Then Runs Amok

New Orleans, June 9.—The Flying Cloud VI, entrant in a powerboat race, tossed her driver, Charles Bihli, into Bayou Barataria yesterday, and then:

Raced madly in circles, forcing Bihli to dive under water several times as she approached;

Nats Face Feller Today at Cleveland

By Shirley Povich
Post Staff Writer

Cleveland, Ohio, June 9.—Look now, or you might not see that one-game winning streak of the Nats. Because tomorrow they face Bob Feller, of the league-leading Indians, and as our old scoutmaster used to say, if you keep the wrong kind of company you can't win.

Feller has won his last seven starts, three of them shutouts, and the Nats are not exactly tough opposition at this time as 18 defeats in their last 23 games would seem to indicate gently. The last time the Nats encountered Feller they were shut out for 11 innings, because it was an 11-inning ball game.

The Nats aren't conceding tomorrow's affair to the Indians, however. They will trot out Sid Hudson as Feller's opponent and hope that Hudson has one of his better days. Behind Hudson, Manager Bucky Harris will throw an almost complete left-handed hitting line-up.

For the past week, the Nats have been hitting with a great deal of vigor, but their pitchers have been giving runs back to the opposition faster than the Nats could score, which is always pretty fatal. Even with George Case and Jimmy Pofahl unable to buy or get the loan of a base hit in recent games, the club's hitting generally has been very good.

Manager Bucky Harris is in a mood, however, to restore Buddy Lewis to third base after recent experiences with Lewis in the outfield where he is playing like a third baseman. The Nats' manager is willing to return Cecil Travis to shortstop.

When he returns to Washington, Harris will make another plea to Clark Griffith for some pitching help. Harris' starting pitchers have been no bargains, but he has been extremely tolerant in leaving them in the box because of the pain he saw when he looked into the Washington pull pen where the Nats relief pitchers represent as completely an inept crop as could be herded onto one club.

Cliff Bolton, who joined the club yesterday after hitting .400 in the South Atlantic League, is scheduled to see little action behind the bat, what with Jake Early doing an adequate job of catching and beginning to appear, positively, as one of the most dangerous hitters on the club. Bolton, however, will see service as a pinch hitter.

Harris these days is orating somewhat on the gallant battle by Early, who has finally graduated to the No 1 catching job after being overshadowed in the South by Rick Ferrell and Al Evans. "He's a game guy," Harris was saying today, "and he's a better catcher thany any of us suspected. I'm not worrying about our catching any longer."

Tomorrow's affair will open a three-game series with the Indians that threatens to conclude what may be the Nat's worst road trip in years. Today the Nats had an off-day in the schedule, which was some sort of a triumph in the light of recent events.

Third Cavalry Drops Polo For Emergency

The signs over at the Polo Field in Potomac Park still proclaim there'll be three games a week there—but don't be fooled, all you'll see there this summer is softball.

It's going to be a pololess spring and summer in the Capital. The crack outfit from Fort Myer's Third Cavalry is not going to be able to play because of the emergency, it was announced yesterday.

"Because of the training program there will be no polo team from Fort Myer," Maj. E. F. Walker announced from the office of his brother, Capt. P. N. Walker, Fort Myer public relations officer. The Third Cavalry team played an active schedule last spring and early in the summer, taking on Pennsylvania Military College, teams from the War Department and other officers' teams of officers in the service.

Six Cash Tickets on Record $780 Charles Town 'Double'

Long Shots Give Crowd A Field Day

Day's Prices Range From $195.20Down; Marie F. Rewards The Top Pay-Off

By Walter Haight

A Staff Correspondent

Charles Town, W. Va., June 9.—Records for individual and daily pay-offs for this meeting were set here this afternoon as longshots won seven of the eight races. The mutuel championship for the season here went to G. E. McCoy's Marie F., which forced the results board to display $195.20 after she surprised by winning the third race. The six persons in the crowd of 3,500 who placed Marie F. in the daily double with Miss Wing, winner of the second event, collected $780.60 for the usual $2 investment.

Only $42 was played to win on Marie F. when she turned back Miss A. Morris's Nijinsky, the favorite, in a field of eight. The fact that the public choice was second, however, cut the place price on Marie F. to $35.80. She paid a mere $8.60 to show. Miss Wing also had a good price, coming through with a $16.40 mutuel.

Vendor's Lien Surprises

The day's feature race also went the way of the majority of other events. E. B. Lee's Vendor's Lien awoke to score a length and a half-victory over O. S. Jennings' Blablah and paid $14. Arthur Hullcoat's The Fop was third in the five-horse field. Jockey Eddie Churchill, of Washington, rode the winner which was clocked in 1:15 3-5 for the Charles Town course of 120 feet more than 6 furlongs.

The program opened with J. E. Hughes' Dashing Doe causing a mild upset by defeating R. C. Waple's Hiblaze. Third money in this field went to C. M. Feltner's Scootie. Dashing Doe turned in time of 0:51 for the 4½ furlongs and supplied scattered backers with a $12.40 mutuel.

Jockey A. F. Martinez rode three winners on the program. He took the second with Miss Wing, the fourth with Indian Sea, a $40.20 shot, and the eighth with Pack Saddle. The last named, paying $6.80, was the only favorite to win during the day.

Dear Al:

I received a telegram yesterday that smacked a lot like Art Brown, although it was signed "An Admirer." It read: "In this morning's column you wrote that you had been hiding under a log stop if it was a log it must have been the trunk of a California Redwood Tree stop." Thanks for not sending it collect. The Stewards had a busy day. They fined Jockey Carson Kirk $25 for carrying Hiblaze out at the head of the stretch in the first race. This disallowed J. E. Webber's claim for High Bud because he did not have an authorized agent's license for W. B. Casilear. They fined Trainer C. O. Ferguson $10 for being late in the paddock with Petit Fours for the first race. They should have fined Clerk of Scales Snocks Winters for working in his number 8 suit. Abner Risler, the regular bugler, has returned to action. He grew up with the track and could not work until he returned from college for the summer holidays. Clymene is in the entries for today but can be labeled a doubtful starter. We are going to scratch here, if possible, and give her some more rest. However, if she is forced to run, she will be right in there tussling. George Cook, trainer for A. C. Paul and others, was a visitor yesterday. The St. James Church is giving its annual chicken dinner here Thursday night at the Charles Town High Gymnasium. The race track boys always pitch-till-they-win at these dinners. There's sadness in the clan Stevens. Mrs. Harry M. Stevens, widow of the founder of the concession business, died last week-end at the Stevens family home at Niles, Ohio. She was the mother of Hal, Frank, Joe and Bill and was 84-years-old. Today's feature race is the Appalachia Purse a test of seven furlongs. A field of seven has been named with Don Orlan the probable favorite. See you on the rail.

BILL.

First race — JIMJOFOR was hemmed in on the rail most of the way last out. With better racing luck this one should score. MYRTLE M. has shown speed and is the one to beat. MISS RIPPON to take care of the others.

Second race—RED WINGS might take this at good odds. Has plenty of speed and will appreciate the abbreviated route. BUDDY AL is fit and ready for the best. LIKELY LAD will be a keen contender if taken off the reserve list.

Third race—BRAINCHILD seems to have found the right spot in this field. Should make the most of the inside position and I see no reason for mistakes. REAL BOY has worked well and belongs close in this company. DRAGON WATCH will improve on a fast oval.

Fourth race—CAT'S CRADLE appears ready to down a field of this kind. Gets in with steadying weight and I'm going to string along. VEEPEE should go well on the improved track. WAY OUT to take care of the minor award.

Fifth race—FRANK H. despite high weight, deserves the call in this event. This is his favorite distance and I see no reason for mistakes. WALE SIGNAL and WAR SCARE to take care of the place and show.

Sixth race—DON ORLAN is likely to hang up that long-awaited set of brackets in this company. Gets in light and is sharp as a tack. BEAMING LADY is a tough mare when right and will be close up. MASON DIXON for the show end.

Seventh race—KAI MIN raced over her head last out and comes back to the right company. Needs only a share of the racing luck. EASTER HOLIDAY is as good as those recent efforts. VICTORY LIGHT should improve off that last.

Eighth race—CHALATOUR is the tops in this field. The route and the weight are right. SUMMER STOCK has been rested and should be close. PENNY ARCADE to account for the minor award. We're going to scratch CLYMENE.

Substitute race—If this event is used I'll take CAIDON, ACE OF TRUMPS and BRAZEN HUSSY.

Boesch Booked On Arena Mat Card

Paul Boesch, of Long Beach, N. Y., who not only is considered one of the best scientific grapplers in th egame today, but also one of the ace radio wrestling commentators, has been booked against Henry Kulkovich, the Gotham Villain, on Thursday night's show at Turner's Arena.

Boesch is gunning for a headliner with either Lou Plummer or The Green Hornet, both of whom are on the Thursday card. Plummer will engage Able Coleman, the gnome, in the feature match, and Rough Rudy Dusek will take on The Hornet in a semiwindup.

Promoter Turner also closed out for a bout between Maurice LaChappelle, the French master, and Jim Austeri, veteran Italian grappler.

Canadian Pig Iron Firms Cancel All Orders on Books

Ottawa, June 9 (AP).—Acting to conserve iron and steel for essential war industries, Steel Comptroller H. D. Scully canceled all orders on the books of Canadian pig iron producers today.

"An acute shortage of pig iron has existed in Canada for some time," Scully said, "but we felt that control measures should not be instituted until a thorough statistical summary of production and consumption had been completed and meetings held with the foundrymen and blast furnace operators."

New customer orders must be forwarded to the steel comptroller for approval, with castings required for war work receiving priority.

Week's Steel Rate Dips Fractionally

New York, June 9 (AP).—Steel will be manufactured this week at 98.8 per cent of the nation's mill capacity, the American Iron and Steel Institute estimated today.

The new rate is .6 of 1 per cent lower than a week ago. A month ago, as last week, the rate operations was 99.2 per cent of capacity. A year ago it was 84.6 per cent.

Sharp Upturn Continues in Commodities

By the Associated Press

Moving ahead on the second leg of a bull market which suffered temporary interruptions late in May, commodities for spot and future deliveries attained sharply higher levels yesterday over a wide front.

The Associated Press index of 35 staples in wholesale cash markets registered a new 3-year top at 86.64 pre cent of the 1926 average compared with 86.13 per cent Saturday.

Ahead at one time more than $1 a bale, cotton closed with net gains of 40 to 85 cents a bale. Wheat's extreme gains of around 2 cents a bushel also were cut down by late profit taking and final quotations were 1 to 1⅛ cent higher. Corn was ⅛ to 1⅜ cents lower.

Both cotton and wheat were started upward last week by announcement of government loan rates under the 85 per cent of parity loan bill. The former was also stimulated by a revival in the cotton textile market.

Straits tin, up .32½ to 42½ cents a pound; Santos coffte, up .01 to .14 of a cent; cottonseed oil, up .13 to .16 of a cent; wool tops, p .7 to .8 of a cent; domestic sugar, unchanged to up .01 of a cent; cocoa, up .04 to .06 of a cent; rubber, unchanged to up .20 of a cent; silk, up 2½ to 3½ cents; hides, up .03 to .06 of a cent.

Business Highlights

(By Standard & Poor's Corp.)

Eastern Oil Scarcity

Despite the fact that this country has enough reserve crude oil and refinery capacity to meet not only the present record-breaking domestic volume but also all predictable defense needs, the supply of petroleum products on the East Coast is in jeopardy. More than 95 per cent of the petroleum consumed on the Eastern Seaboard is hauled there by tankers. Numerous tankers have already been transferred to foreign service, 8 of the largest have been requisitioned by the Navy, and 25 have been or will be transferred to the service of the British. The result is a shortage of tankers—a tight situation so far as the East Coast is concerned. The oil is there, but the ships are not available to haul it in the required volume.

Office Equipment Sales

Domestic sales of office equipment thus far in 1941 have run about 30 above those for the like period last year. Exports, which declined about 25 per cent in 1940, have been holding within 10 per cent of the comparable year-earlier totals. Both figures will taper as the year progresses. Moreover, while the office appliance makers use relatively small tonnage of die castings and aluminum, some supply problem may develop. Labor relations thus far have remained peaceful, but defense iondustries are understood to have weaned away skilled workers. The industry is no better situated than the average with respect to proposed excess profits tax revisions and rising normal tax rates. Thus, any improvement in profits probably will not be large.

May Sales Soar 24%

New York, June 9 (AP).—J. C. Penney Co. reported today May sales totaled $29,383,174 compared with $23,600,961 for the like 1940 period, an increase of 24½ per cent. April sales showed an increase of 30.1 per cent over April 1940.

Failures Total Dips

New York, June 9 (AP).—Industrial and commercial failures in the holiday week ended June 5 numbered 218 Dun & Bradstreet, reported today, compared with 221 in the previous week, and 249 in the same week last year.

Visible Grain Supply

New York, June 9 (AP).—Visible supply of American grain showed the following changes from a week ago (in business): wheat increased 462,000; corn decreased 763,000; oats decreased 283,000; rye increased 42,000 and barley 398,000.

General Motors Sets New High For May Sales

New York, June 9.—General Motors Corp. reported today the biggest May sale in its history, establishing the first five months of 1941 as the greatest comparable sales period in the company's existence.

Sales of cars and trucks to dealers and export shipments during May combined in a total of 235,679 units compared with 185,548 in May 1940.

This brought the total dealer-and export sales for the first five months to 1,201,280 compared with 931,447 in the like 1940 period.

Sales to consumers in the United States in May totaled 265,750 cars and trucks compared with 165,820 in May, 1940, bringing the five months' total sales in this category to 1,147,305 compared with 768,609 in the like 1940 period.

Sales to dealers in the United States in May amounted to 217,120 units, compared with 171,024 in May, 1940, bringing the five months' total for dealers to 1,104,239 compared with 861,373 in the like 1940 period.

Thep revious May world sales record was in 1929, when 220,277 units were sold. The year 1929 also previously held the first five months' world sales record of 971,114 cars and trucks.

The previous May sales record to dealers in the United States was established in May, 1936, wiht 187,119 units and the previous first five months' record for dealers was made in 1940, with 861,373.

May, 1936, also previously held the record in consumer sales, 194,828, and the first five months of 1936, with 774,695 sales to consumers, held the previous record in that category.

Plywood Price Cut Is Ordered

By the Associated Press

Leon Henderson, price administrator, has asked manufacturers of plywood to reduce prices from $30 to $28 a thousand square feet on one-quarter inch plywall and to reduce all other plywood prices in the same proportion.

"Unless this is done immediately," Henderson said, "it will be necessary to impose a ceiling price."

The manufacturers also were asked on all future quotations on Government projects to allow a 5 per cent jobber discount to the Government contractor.

Officials said that Henderson's request was issued after a price increase of approximately 5 per cent in bids received by the War Department last week for 60,000 feet of plywood for delivery in Milan, Tenn.

Rails Continue Heavy Buying

Chicago, June 8 (AP).—The nation's railroads placed orders for 85 locomotives and 19,121 freight cars and the Government 16 locomotives and 100 freight cars during May, Railway Age reported today.

Orders for the first five months of the year—312 locomotives and 53,492 freight cars—exceeded the number placed in any corresponding period from 1929 to 1941, the magazine said.

Bank Loans Up 33 Million During Week

By the Associated Press

Leading banks are maintaining a pace of $33,000,000 a week of commercial, industrial and agricultural loans resulting largely from the defense program.

The Fediral Reserve Board reported yesterday that in 101 leading cities, banks boosted such loans $33,000,000 in the week ended June 4 to a total of $5,706,000,000. The gain also represented the average weekly rise of such loans the last six weeks.

Largest gain last week was $16,000,000 in New York City.

The board's 101-city member bank condition statement gave the following summary of assets and liabilities on June 4 together with changes for the week and with the same week last year, in millions of dollars:

'Blue Chips' Lead Rally in Stock Market; Average at Best Level Since April 8

New York, June 9.—"Blue Chips" took the rallying lead in today's stock market and brought support for many other industrials. While utilities, rails and oils inclined to hang back, steels pushed up in the final few minutes and closing gains for favorites ranged from 1 to 2 points, with a few isolated issues showing wider advances.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks emerged with a net upturn of .4 of a point at 40.8. This was the best level for the composite since April 8. Slow-downs during the session were interspersed wi h lively periods when bidders seemed anxious and transf ers totaled 440,040 shares compared with 327,570 Friday.

Resumption o fthe forward move was attributed by brokers partly to reports of allied successes in Syria, generally rising ocmmodities and the belief Washing on would take a tsronger stand in labor disputes threatening the defense program. Hopes for a more "reasonable" tax bill getting through Congress also were seen as a bullish factor.

Action of the Army in taking over the s rike-bound North American Aviation plant in California was viewed by the financial sector as a step in the right direction, although some skeptics suggested stockholders might have to do a lot of guessing if Washing on makes similar moves in other lines. Business news generally was more satisfactory than otherwise.

Prominent shares on the forward swing in cluded Westinghouse, du Pont, Allied Chemical, Eastman Kodak, Air Reduction, U. S. Steeel, Bethlehem, General Castings preferred, Chrysler, General oMtors, American Smelting and Union Pacific.

New highs for he year were posted for Consolidated Aircraft, Great Northern Iron Ore certificates, International Paper preferred, Standard Oil or Ohio and Union Carbide. Aircrafts, farm implements, rubbers and mail orders managed to retain modest plus signs.

Unchanged to off a shade were N. Y. Central, Grea Northern, Texas Corporation, Cerro de Pasco, Johns-Manville, Western Union, North American and Public Service of N. J. U. S. Gypsum dropped 2 points.

In the Curb improvemen was held by Brewster Aero, Carnation, Creole Petroleum, Heyden Chemical, American Cyanamid "B," Raymond Concrete and Sherwin Williams. Volume here was around 77,000 shares versus 79,000 last Friday.

Gains, when made, came in the more active issues, making those on the downside appear to be sagging because of he lack of trading interest.

Among the session's most energetic movers, all of which rose, were Baltimore & Ohio stamped convertibles at 27½; Lehigh Valley Coal stamped 5s of '64 and '74 at 52 and 52¾, respectively; Illinois Central 4¾ at 46¼; Southern Railway 4s a 61¼; and Youngstown Sheet 3¼s at 101¼.

U. S. Governments varied 5-32 point higher to 1-32 lower in the Stock Exchange, bringing those prices into line with the over-the-counter market, where the Federals slipped 1-32 to 2-32 poin .

Chicago Grain

Chicago, June 9 (AP).—Buying orders accumulated over Sunday and inspired partly by rain that soaked some sections of the wheat belt where harvesters should be at work gave wheat prices here a quick advance of as much as 2¼ cents at the opening today.

Thereafter, the market labored within a range below early highs of $1.03⅛ for July delivery, $1.05 for September and $1.06¾ for December, best figures posted here since May, 1940. Profit taking, encouraged by an 8-cent upturn since last month and independent weakness of corn, unsettled the market, and at one stage prices came with ⅞ of Saturday's close The finish, however, was 1 to 1¾ higher than Saturday, July 1.02⅝@1.02¾, September 1.04@1.04¼.

Corn closed ⅝ to 1¾ lower, July 72⅞, September 74¾; oats unchanged to ⅜ off; sorbeans ½ to 1 down; rye ⅜ off to ¼ up and lard 3 to 8 higher.

59 Become Priests in Rites At Shrine

The Most Rev. Joseph M. Corrigan, Bishop of Bilta and Catholic University rector, yesterday ordained 59 candidates to the priesthood in rites at the Shrine of the Imaculate Conception.

They came from the Sulpician Seminary, the Oblate Scholastic, Holy Name College and St. Anselm's priory, and included one local young man.

He was Elmer M. Taylor, son of Mrs. Anna Chamberlain Taylor and the late John Elmer Taylor. He attended St. Patrick's Parochial School here; St. Charles' College, Catonsville, Md., and St. Mary's Seminary, Baltimore, before enrolling at the Sulpician Seminary's School of Theology. Father Taylor will celebrate his first solemn high mass this Sunday at St. Patrick's.

Those ordained yesterday and houses of study where they prepared for the priesthood follow:

96, Tops Age List in Typical Father Contest

His 91 years mage him five years the junior of Joseph Messina, of 730 Otis Place Northwest, whose hat was tossed into the ring by his daughter-in-law, Mrs. P. Messina.

The 96-year-old champion in point of years, boasts 11 children to Talbot's seven but has a mere 47 grand- and great-grandchildren, compared with 73 for his younger rival for Father's Day honors.

Another patriarch entered yesterday was 83-year-old R. B. Kendall, Mrs. Anna Padgett, 613 L Street southeast, is his sponsor—the eldest of his 15 children.

From Indianhead, Md., came a strong vote by Mrs. B. W. Williams for her father, Louis M. Hyde, who is "76 years old . . . still goes to the office and sometimes he walks as much as 6 miles a day" . . . and who with a "small salary . . . managed to buy his home, keep life insurance, have a savings account and educate all of his 14 children."

Charles F. Elliott, also the father of 14, is the choice of one of his daughters, who forgot to sign her name. He has a farm near Colesville, Md., "is about 5 feet tall, has a swell personality and what makes his children love him so well is because he doesn't drink."

But all of the letters received so far by the Father's Day editor in response to the clarion for Greater Washington's ideal day don'e describe men with big families exclusively. On the contrary, many of the nominees have only one youngster and the majority have four or fewer.

Nine-year-old Marilyn K. (we won't give her last name because the following might make her dad blush) winds up a paean to her father with the postscript: "He doesn't go out with any other girls than my mother, too."

Three girls nominate their stepfather, a taxicab driver. An officer attached to the office of the chief of Cavalry is the choice of two of his associates. A 4-year-old, dictating the letter to his mother, picks his dad because "he even took me on the train with him to Detroit and turns the hose on me in the yard."

Today, incidentally, is your last chance to make nominations. Address your letter to the Father's Day editor, in care of The Post. Entries must be postmarked no later than midnight. The winner will be announced Friday.

Silver Spring Lions Club

509 Graduates at Georgetown Hear O'Conor Call Youth the Only Hope of a Somber World

Five hundred and nine graduates received their degrees yesterday at Georgetown University and listened to Gov. Herbert R. O'Conor of Maryland.

Gov. O'Conor, addressing the graduates on the lawn of the university yesterday, told them they were entering a vastly different world from that encountered by graduates of any other previous year. He said:

"Amid all th tremendous changes that have occurred and that portend, however, it is a solace to kno wthat there has been no change in the basic cultural and spiritual dowry that Georgetown gives to her sons."

"These are stirring times in the world and young men who have spent the last four years on the banks of the Potomac, within earshot, so to speak, of our National Capitol, know perhaps more fully than do the graduates of otner sections, of the fast-changing and increasingly ominous developments in national and international affairs. If elsewhere in the country observers may not be apprehensive, here in the Capitol City, it must have been borne home with special significance to you that before your very eyes were being unfolded dramatic events and far-reaching decisions. These events and decisions will influence to the very core the future not only of this country with its 130,000,000 free people, but of the entire civilized world—if, indeed, the world of today may merit that term."

Governor O'Conor said we have heard many times, "That it can't happen here." He said France felt a similar security before the Nazis marched in. He added:

"America must be made so impregnable in defense that our Nation can resist successfully any attack made upon it or upon our national integrity. It is not overstatement to assert that we are in danger from external forces. In our determination to make America impregnable, the only way in which this will be brought about it through the united effort of our people. Just as educative completeness presupposes proper development of mind, so complete preparedness means unity on the part of all diverse elements in the country."

The Very Rev. Arthur A. O'Leary, S. J., president, conferred the degrees upon the graduates and honorary degree of doctor of laws upon the Most Rev. Thomas A. Emmet, S. J., vicar apostolic of Jamaica, and upon Senator Joseph C. O'Mahoney, of Wyoming. Former Gov. Alfred E. Smith of New York, who borrowed a Georgetown blue and grey hood for the occasion, was one of the guests.

Lieut. Col. Charles E. Rayens, U. S. A., commandant of the R. O. T. C., awarded commissions as second lieutenants in the Infantry Reserves to the following students:

James P. Anderson, John Paul Beall, William F. Becker, John B. Boothy, John Buckley, William V. Burke, Archibald P. Comiskey, jr.; William R. Desobry, Donald D. Donahue, Maurice F. Dozier, William J. Funeral Today For C. L. Linz, Newspaperman

Funeral services for Clarence Linz, veteran Washington newspaperman who died Sunday, will be held at 2 p. m. today at Lee's funeral home, Fourth Street and Massachusetts Avenue Northeast. Burial will be in Glenwood Cemetery.

Mr. Linz was Washington correspondent of the New York Journal of Commerce for 23 years. He was bureau manager here when he retired three months ago. He was also Capital correspondent for the Newport (R. I.) Daily News. He lived here at 4107 Legation Street Northwest.

Specializing in tariff and financial news, Mr. Linz received honorable mention in 1930 by the Pulitzer Prize committee for his coverage of the Hawley-Smoot tariff law. He also did notable work on the bank crisis of 1933 and the subsequent bank law changes.

Mr. Linz was an active Mason and a member of the National Press Club and White House Correspondents Association.

He leaves his wife, Mrs. Ethel A. Linz; his mother, Mrs. Henrietta Linz; a daughter, Mrs. Dorothy L. Hagen, and a brother, Bertram F. Linz.

Representing the National Press Club at the services will be the following committee: Lynn Lamm, Alfred D. Stedman, Walker S. Buel, T. C. Alford, Raymond P. Brandt, Ashmun N. Brown, Arthur J. Dodge, Kendall K. Hoyt, B. D. Hulen, Louis B. Montfort, L. W. Moffett, James D. Preston, Henry Ralph, William Raymond, Richard Saunders, and Henry L. Sweinhart.

Contract Bridge

1. Sitting East, you hold this combination:

♠KQ106
♢SOUTH

Declarer, South, plays a small spade from his hand and the queen from dummy. What do you do, figuring partner for the jack?

♡Q75
♢76
♣843

The bidding has gone:

West	North	East	South
1 ♡	Double	Pass	3 ♢
Pass	4 ♣	Pass	4 NT
Pass	6 ♣	Pass	Pass
Double	Pass	Pass	Pass

What is your opening lead?

3. Sitting North, you hold this combination:

♢Q10
♡NORTH
♢AKJ96
♢SOUTH

Trying to establish the suit at no trump, Declarer East plays the ace from dummy before deciding if he should finesse. You figure East for a doubleton in diamonds; what do you play?

Answers

1. East should not win his ace, else South will be almost forced to finesse against West's jack on the second round. When South enters his hand again after the holdup, he must guess where the ace and jack are located. He may easily misplace the cards and put on dummy's king. Holding three spades, including the jack, West will make his jack after his partner overtakes the king with the ace.

2. East's normal opening would be a heart, his partner's suit, but West's double tell him an unusual lead is required to set the contract. East should lead a small spade, as spades are his longest suit, and if a ruff is to be obtained it is more likely to be in that suit than in any other.

3. North should throw his queen under West's ace. This play almost certainly will lead declarer to place the ten in South's hand. Declarer probably will then finesse dummy's nine on the second round, letting the ten take the trick. Holding a doubleton, East must finesse at once, as the lead of another round of diamonds leaves him void in the suit.

Prince Georges Warned Of Beetle Invasion

An invasion of Prince Georges County by Japanese beetles is due to begin about June 15, P. E. Clarke, county agricultural agent, stated yesterday.

The beetle will reach maturity at that time. The county recently appropriated $1,987 for a trapping and spraying program to combat the beetles.

SUPERMAN — The Meeting — BY JERRY SIEGEL AND JOE SHUSTER

HERE SHE IS, BOSS--LOIS LANE!
WHO ARE YOU?
WHO AM I, MISS LANE? I AM KNOWN AS BLOCK, AND I'VE HAD YOU BROUGHT HERE FOR A PURPOSE.
I AM CONVINCED THAT YOU ARE THE ONLY PERSON IN THE WORLD WHO KNOWS WHO SUPERMAN REALLY IS. YOU WILL TELL ME!
I DON'T KNOW WHO HE IS, AND EVEN IF I DID, I WOULDN'T TELL YOU!
DETERMINED TO BE DIFFICULT, EH? I'M PREPARED FOR THAT! FOLLOW ME!
I'LL DO NOTHING OF THE KIND!
YOU HEARD WHAT THE BOSS SAID!
LOIS IS FORCED INTO THE CASTLE'S DANK BASEMENT....
A MEDIEVAL TORTURE CHAMBER!
AS YOU CAN SEE, WE ARE WELL EQUIPPED SO THAT THE POSSIBILITY OF ANY OF OUR GUESTS NOT TALKING--FOR LONG--IS VERY REMOTE!

"Millions for Defense," a weekly, hour-long mirth and music mobilization of radio, stage and screen stars, makes its debut over WJSV and the Columbia network Wednesday, July 2, as a result of the donation by the Texas Co. of its regular "Star Theater" time to the United States Treasury Department in behalf of Defense Bond sales. The new radio show is to be heard each Wednesday night from 8 to 9.

As you probably know, that's the time that the sponsor has been presenting Fred Allen, but Fred is to go on vacation then and return in the fall.

In accepting the offer of the Wednesday hour on the air, Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau announced that Howard Dietz, of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, a famous name in Hollywood production, will be chairman and coordinator of the "Millions for Defense" series.

The direction of the program will be in the capable hands of CBS's Earle McGill, who's been in charge of "Columbia Workshop" and any number of other superior CBS programs these many years.

The broadcasts in the main are to originate in one of Columbia's Manhattan theaters and there will be cut-ins from Washington, Hollywood and Chicago.

THE FLAG SPEAKS

★ Born during the Nation's infancy, I have grown with it, my stars increasing in number as the Country has grown in size; the domain over which I wave expanding until the sun on my flying folds now never sets.

★ Filled with significance are my colors of red, white and blue into which have been woven the strength and courage of American manhood, the love and loyalty of American womanhood.

★ I represent the Declaration of Independence.

★ I signify the Law of the Land.

★ I tell the achievements and progress of the American people in art and science, culture and literature, invention and commerce, transportation and industry.

★ I am the badge of the Nation's greatness and the emblem of its Destiny.
